CULTURE

101 YEARS OF HALLOWEEN FUN

The Anaheim Fall Festival and Halloween Parade is a beloved local tradition that marks its 101st anniversary in 2024. The festival, which began as the Halloween Carnival and Festival in 1923, is now a popular community celebration featuring game booths, entertainment, live music, face painting, and storytelling. The festivities also include costume contests, including one for the furry members of the family.

Anaheim's Annual Halloween Parade Celebrates 100 Years

Anaheim's first Halloween parade knocked it out of the park, snagging Major League Baseball's most iconic player to serve as the grand marshal. On October 30th, 1924, Babe Ruth joined the procession of the inaugural parade along with baseball great Walter Johnson, catching the attention of locals and visitors alike. What started as an idea to deter young pranksters during "spooky season" ended up having a massive cultural impact, and the 2024 parade will mark the 100th anniversary of Anaheim's biggest Halloween celebration.

The concept and execution of the first parade are largely credited to the Anaheim Chamber of Commerce in concert with downtown store owners fed up with the pranks of the city's youth. Today's teen pranks—toilet papering trees, maybe a game of "ding dong ditch"—pale in comparison to what was happening across the nation as Halloween grew in popularity during the early 1900s.

In an article titled "When Halloween Was All Tricks and No Treats," in the October 27, 2017 issue of Smithsonian Magazine, author Lesley Bannatyne detailed some examples of the behavior recorded during this time: "Kids strung ropes across sidewalks to trip people in the dark, tied the doorknobs of opposing apartments together, mowed down shrubs, upset swill barrels, rattled or soaped windows, and, once, filled the streets of Catalina Island with boats."

The Anaheim parade was an attempt to channel youthful energy into more productive enterprises—and it worked. The procession of floats and costumed participants was a huge hit, and after the 1944 debut, the number of parade spectators swelled every year thereafter. The parade grew into the "Greatest Night Pageant West of the Mardi Gras," and included specially designed floats, marching bands, equestrian units, children in Halloween costumes, and a costume breakfast. By the 1970s, the Orange County Register reported that it was regularly attracting 75,000 people.

As Anaheim expanded beyond the original downtown center, attendance began to fall. But in 2012, the Anaheim Halloween Parade was revived. To revitalize the parade, a non-profit was formed and then bolstered by a new generation of neighbors keen on returning the community spirit and vintage-inspired art direction to this beloved Anaheim tradition.

In conjunction with local businesses, community members, and Disney, the Anaheim Halloween parade was relaunched in 2012 with a throwback theme that tapped into the parade's heyday. It sparked renewed interest in the parade, and attendance is once again robust.

Where can I see the parade? The parade steps off at the intersection of Anaheim Blvd and Broadway. It will head north on Anaheim Blvd and make a left turn onto and travel west for the length of Center Street Promenade, then exit onto Harbor Blvd, turning left. At Broadway, the parade will turn right and continue on Broadway to Walnut where public viewing will end. Free public viewing is available on city sidewalks along this route.

Where can I park? Public parking is available in marked structures near downtown and parking on non-permit public streets may also be available along the route. Spaces fill up quickly and be sure to keep an eye out for signs noting which roads will be closed for the parade itself. What else should I know about viewing the parade? The parade route is about 1.5 miles long, so while it does get crowded, you should be able to find a spot for great viewing.

LOCAL FLAVOR

Here in Anaheim, we hold food in high regard, and that translates into a creatively diverse dining scene. That's a good thing, obviously, but it can make choosing your next destination somewhat of a challenge. That's where we come in. We've created a list of top Anaheim restaurants that never fail to please, no matter your palate—or budget.

18 Folds

Occupying a farmhouse building next to the hip Packing House food hall, 18 Folds is a dim sum outlet focused on a secret soup dumpling recipe. The number 18 is associated with greatness and prosperity in Chinese culture, which is why local brews flow from 18 taps, while each dumpling—deep-fried or steamed—requires a precise 18 folds. For ambiance, dine alfresco in the outdoor garden space lit with strings of lanterns. 430 S. Anaheim Blvd., Anaheim; 657-208-3494; 18finc.com

ADYA

Winner of Food Network's Chopped and named "2019 Rising Star Chef of the Year" by the Golden Foodie Awards, chef Shachi Mehra serves vibrant, refined Indian street food at this upstairs outpost in the Packing House. Lunch on the boxcar patio is a must, as is one of Mehra's regular virtual or in-person cooking classes. 440 S. Anaheim Blvd., Anaheim; 714-533-2392; adyaoc.com

FIRE + ICE Grill + Bar

FIRE + ICE Grill + Bar offers an incredible variety of fresh meats and seafood, cooked on an open grill. Enjoy the expansive outdoor patio with a fire pit and music on weekends—it's the perfect place for large groups. Anaheim GardenWalk, 321 W. Katella Ave., Anaheim, CA 92802; 714-808-9757; fire-ice.com

House of Blues Anaheim

This popular restaurant and music club offers indoor and outdoor dining surrounded by touches of contemporary and traditional Southern art. The menu is full of made-from-scratch, Southern-inspired favorites, such as Jambalaya and Baby Back Ribs. 400 W. Disney Way, Anaheim, CA 92802; 714-778-2583; houseofblues.com/anaheim

Napa Rose

Disneyland® Resort's signature restaurant at Disney's Grand Californian Hotel® & Spa has bloomed under the leadership of chef Andrew Sutton. Taste the essence of California wine country with a custom tasting menu and wine pairings at the Chef's Counter; or indulge in moderation at its indoor-outdoor lounge. 1600 Disneyland Dr., Anaheim;

disneyland.disney.go.com/dining/grand-californian-hotel/napa-roseRosine's

Rosine's started in 1995 with only six tables. This family-owned establishment, tucked into a strip mall, has since expanded to the spacious and Zagat-lauded Mediterranean restaurant it is today. Order the fresh-roasted rotisserie chicken and a spread of hearty Middle Eastern mezze for the table. 721 S. Weir Canyon Rd., Anaheim; 714-283-5141; rosines.com

The Cafe Krave

This tiny, counter-service gem near Angel Stadium is known for its stellar breakfast sandwiches. After all, who wouldn't want to start the day with the basil sandwich—a fried egg, Swiss cheese, arugula, tomato, and homemade basil pesto on a brioche bun? The coffee is great, too—try one of the pour-over coffees or nitro cold brews. 2400 E. Katella Ave. #175, Anaheim; 714-634-8201; thecafekrave.com

THE RANCH Restaurant & Saloon

This Michelin-recommended California steakhouse takes its farm-to-fork ethos a step further by harvesting produce at peak ripeness from its own farm in the Santa Ana Mountains. The talented culinary team and surprisingly accessible wine cellar—with more than 10,000 bottles on hand—make for memorable evenings. Serving dinner only. 1025 E. Ball Rd., Anaheim; 714-817-4200; theranch.com/restaurant

The Scratch Room

This casual spot features an impressive spread of classic brunch options. While omelets, egg Benedicts, and pancakes are its forte, creative breakfast burgers like “Green Eggs and Ham” (onion aioli, tender braised pork, onions, peppers, pepper jack cheese, and a sunny side egg topped with tomatillo sauce) are also great choices. 2415 W. Lincoln Ave., Anaheim; 714-236-5613

Seeing Stars

POPPY &amp; SEED

► We aren't the only ones who think our dining scene is incredible—the Anaheim area boasts more than 30 restaurants with Michelin recommendations. Two establishments have one star, eight have “Bib Gourmand” status (good quality, good value cooking), and another 24 were selected for inclusion in the guide based on their high-quality dishes.

If you're unfamiliar with Michelin and their coveted stars, a quick history: back in 1889, two French brothers, Andre and Edouard Michelin, founded a tire company. To encourage the growth of the auto industry (and therefore, sales) the brothers printed a guide filled with maps and travel tips. The guide grew over time, and in 1926, the first stars were awarded to restaurants. Initially, only one star was given, but five years later, the system was changed to zero to three stars and it remains so today. The guide now rates over 40,000 establishments across three continents.

So what does it take to earn favor with the world's toughest critics? Anonymous inspectors rate each spot using five criteria: the quality of products, mastery of flavor and cooking techniques, how the personality of the chef is represented in the dining experience, harmony of flavors, and consistency. Restaurants are never notified when inspectors will visit, and they return to each establishment multiple times to verify their initial assessment.

While a rating of one to three stars is most coveted, just being included in the famed red book is an endorsement. These places are judged by the same five criteria used for starred and Bib Gourmand restaurants and are recognized as establishments that serve outstanding food.

Keeping It In the Family

Chef David Fuerte's new Packing District steakhouse, En Familia, aims to bring the community together.

You've had success in a wide variety of settings, from huge corporate venues to smaller, intimate spaces. What drew you to this location?

► The moment I was introduced to the [now] En Familia restaurant space, I instantly visualized what it could become. I had been aware of the appeal of the Packing District, so I knew bringing a concept to this location was the right move.

Back in the early days of the pandemic, you were one of the first restaurateurs to help your community, selling everything from medical-grade masks to bulk rice and beans. Obviously, your customers and neighbors matter to you. How do you see En Familia enriching the community?

► Engaging with the community is extremely valuable to me. I believe that food is a common unifier and brings people of all backgrounds together. To "break bread" and the act of sharing a meal can have a lasting impression and is the basis for making great memories. As we were still building out En Familia, we kept a pulse on the local events in the area and we have been so honored by the warm welcome of locals and community leaders.

The restaurant is both a steakhouse and brunch spot. Can you talk about the overall vision for the food?

► The steakhouse concept comes from my passion for open-fire cooking. As a child, I spent much of my upbringing in the ranches of Mexico and I have a deep respect and appreciation for the land and the elements. My connection to cooking comes from those early experiences and now I can share the ultimate quality of steak with our restaurant visitors since we own La Carniceria Wagyu, a luxury butcher shop in Brea, and soon, our second location in Costa Mesa.

The cocktails and mocktails on your Instagram page look incredible. What goes into developing these drinks, and what ingredients might people be surprised to see?

► Our beverage program offers drinks that are lively, colorful, and crafted with premium spirits, fresh herbs, and exotic fruits. The drinks are just as dynamic as the flavors of the menu. Together with our incredibly talented and creative Bar Manager Carlos Ramirez, we are able to provide an awesome artisanal experience.

What do you love about Anaheim? What makes it special?

► Anaheim is a destination for different cultures and an epicenter for travel in Southern California. I love that we can be a highlight of someone's trip. That they can step inside our restaurant, feel the warmth, enjoy the ambiance, taste the food, and genuinely have a dining experience like no other and think, "Yes! We made the right decision!"

TANIYA AHMED

Ahmed opened Sunbliss Cafe in Anaheim Hills in June 2020. This spring, it ranked No. 6 on Yelp's Top 100 Best Places to Eat in the U.S.

by Colette Nguyen

WHY DID YOU START SUNBLISS?

My grandma always said that it was better to serve than to be served. And I feel like in my upbringing, food is like our love language. It genuinely makes me happy seeing people try our food.

WHAT'S THE INSPIRATION BEHIND YOUR DRINKS?

I've always wanted to incorporate things from all the happiest memories in my life and my travels. The blue in our drinks actually comes from a flower I found when I was traveling in Thailand.

WHAT ARE YOUR HOBBIES?

I love boxing, pottery, and eating.

DO YOU HAVE A GO-TO COFFEE ORDER?

A simple caffe latte. But non-coffee would be our house-made chai because I'm a tea girl.

WHAT IS YOUR DREAM JOB?

This is my dream job. I built this place, and I worked hard. I love meeting customers face-to-face on my own, and I still do all the crazy wild stuff like marketing and business management—it's legitimately my favorite thing.
