Huntington Beach Pier

Catch a wave in Surf City USA® year-round! Surfing definitely sets the tone of Southern California, and even if you never grab a board, there's great viewing of some of the local dudes riding the waves alongside the landmark Huntington Beach Pier

Things To Do:

At the International Surfing Museum you'll see up close how this Orange County town, with 10 miles of beaches and consistent swells, got its Surf City USA nickname (and don't miss the World's Largest Surfboard on display).

Enjoy Main Street's surf shops and restaurants, many with sidewalk tables or decks that let you bask in fresh ocean breezes and sun-soaked afternoons. Huntington's newest outdoor mall, Pacific City, is where you'll find one-of-a-kind artisanal eats and stylish boutiques—all with an ocean view.

Discover the more natural sides of town by trying horseback riding in the 354-acre Huntington Central Park, or by hiking and bird watching in Bolsa Chica Ecological Reserve, a restored wetlands and one of Southern California's most vital coastal habitats, which is home to over 300 species of birds.

Missing your pup? Check out the 1.5-mile stretch between Goldenwest and Seapoint streets because it is dedicated to the dogs. With a flat expanse of sand and plenty of room to spread out, pups are able to play as they please.
