2024 | OFFICIAL VISITOR GUIDE | VISITBARDSTOWN.COM

You're invited:

Step into the warmth of Bardstown

There's no law that says bourbon has to be made in Bardstown. But once you step out of your car and breathe in the fresh country air, walk our gently rolling hills, take in the vast fields of wheat and corn and experience true Southern hospitality, you start to get the sense that Bardstown was made for making bourbon – and you'll understand why we say, "Bourbon Comes from Bardstown".

It's a place to relive history, tour bourbon distilleries, indulge in fine Southern cuisine and explore the great outdoors as only Kentucky can offer. So whatever you're looking for, you'll find it in Bardstown. We recommend you pour yourself a drink (bourbon for the adults, sweet tea for the younger folks) and start planning your visit today.

Taste the world's best bourbons

right where they're made

Welcome to the captivating realm of Bardstown, Kentucky, proudly hailed as the Bourbon Capital of the World®. Here, amidst the picturesque rolling hills, a distinguished collection of world-famous distilleries and newer craft establishments weave a tapestry of bourbon heritage that beckons aficionados and newcomers alike. Steeped in rich history and vibrant culture, our picturesque town stands as a testament to the resilience and spirit of its community. Beyond its renowned distilleries, the town's historic streets and well-preserved architecture tell stories of a bygone era, while its warm Southern hospitality reflects a modern embrace of tradition. As the Bourbon Capital of the World® and a haven for unique cultural experiences, Bardstown invites visitors to explore its past, savor its present, and become a part of a living legacy that continues to shape the essence of this charming town.

Experience living history

Immersing yourself in the rich tapestry of Bardstown, Kentucky means stepping back in time and discovering a town that echoes with centuries of history. As one of the oldest cities in the Commonwealth, Bardstown wears its historical legacy with grace, reflected in its well-preserved architecture and the serene ambiance that defines its slow-paced charm. The town boasts an array of museums that unravel its diverse heritage - from the African-American Heritage Museum, shedding light on the contributions and experiences of the Black community throughout the town's history, to the three historic homes of governors at Wickland offer a glimpse into the lives of prominent figures, weaving together the political threads that have shaped Kentucky, and many more. In Bardstown, beauty isn't merely skin deep; it's a reflection of the stories etched into the very soul of the town, creating an immersive experience that transcends time.

There are no off seasons here

Bardstown, Kentucky, pulsates with a cultural heartbeat that keeps its spirit alive year-round. The town's vibrant culture is celebrated annually through a myriad of events, making every season a reason to revel in its dynamic atmosphere. The renowned Kentucky Bourbon Festival takes center stage, drawing enthusiasts from near and far to partake in tastings, special events, and a collective toast to the town's liquid gold. The Arts and Crafts Festival transforms the streets into a vibrant canvas of creativity, while annual Street Concerts fill the air with melodies that resonate through the historic districts. National Bourbon Day is a jubilant occasion where Bardstown proudly showcases its title as the Bourbon Capital of the World®. Yet, Bardstown doesn't rest during the winter months; instead, it transforms into a picturesque setting reminiscent of a Hallmark movie. The town's unique charm is accentuated as holiday lights twinkle, and festive cheer fills the air. From the lively festivals to the enchanting winter scenes, Bardstown's cultural calendar knows no off-season – there's always something to do, someone to meet, and a celebration to join. In Bardstown, the cultural tapestry thrives, weaving together events, concerts, and festivities that make every visit a dynamic and memorable experience.

So beautiful

there's songs about it

With its timeless charm and captivating landscapes, Bardstown is a living canvas that showcases the extraordinary beauty of the Bluegrass State. As you traverse its inviting streets, the well-preserved architecture and lush greenery create a visual symphony that transcends ordinary beauty. Adding to its allure, Bardstown is not only celebrated for its picturesque scenery but also holds the distinction of being the birthplace of the state song. “My Old Kentucky Home,” penned by Stephen Foster, was inspired by the historic My Old Kentucky Home State Park, a captivating testament to the town’s cultural significance. Whether you’re captivated by the historic homes, the quaint shops lining the charming downtown, or the breathtaking views of the surrounding hills, Bardstown’s beauty is a reflection of its rich history, warm hospitality, and the enchanting allure that has earned it a place among the nation’s most aesthetically pleasing destinations.

Uniquely Bardstown

Bardstown's landscape unfolds like a lyrical ode to nature, where the rolling hills gracefully embrace the town in a verdant embrace. As you traverse the winding paths, there's an unmistakable sense of tranquility that permeates the air, transporting you to a bygone era. The lush, undulating hillsides seem to cradle Bardstown in a timeless embrace, inviting visitors to take a leisurely stroll through history. Bardstown's landscape provides the outer beauty. However, the town's inner beauty comes from the warmth and heart-felt hospitality of its residents who are always willing to share the charms of their town with visitors. It's our true southern hospitality that brings them back - Bardstown is beautiful - on the outside and the inside.
