Wedding Shows and Valentine's Day Specials Heating Up at the Beach

BOLIVIA, N.C. (Jan. 15, 2013) – Since December is the month for wedding engagements, it's only natural that the wedding planning season would start in January. Coupled with Valentine's Day, winter at the beach is the perfect one-two romantic punch to kick-start the year.

To help eager brides (and grooms) get a good start on wedding planning, the Brunswick Islands hosts two bridal shows – one in January and another in February – where prospective couples can learn about event venues, listen to local entertainment, test out favorite caterers and explore the creativity of area florists.

After a long day of planning, the betrothed can take advantage of any number of Valentine's Day specials at area hotels and bed and breakfasts. Unwind on the wide beaches of the islands or revel in one of the area's historic sites. Sample local restaurants and play a round of golf. Or just enjoy some calm and uninterrupted time together before event preparations get into high gear.

According to an XO Group study, nearly one out of every four couples selects a destination wedding, a 20 percent increase from 2009. North Carolina is one of the top five continental U.S. locations for a destination wedding, and with more beach than any other county in the state, the possibilities in North Carolina's Brunswick Islands are seemingly endless.
