Named one of America's 100 Best Art Towns, Cannon Beach is home to fashionable galleries, sensational shops and fine dining throughout this small coastal village, making it a delight to explore. You'll feel the rich history of this land and community as you walk the cottage-lined streets, gaze out at the historic lighthouse rising from the ocean waves and take in the views described by Lewis and Clark's Corps of Discovery when they visited this land over 200 years ago.

Enjoy encounters with an astonishing variety of wildlife and sealife

From tiny hummingbirds to 35-ton Gray Whales, Cannon Beach offers access to natural areas that reveal a world of fascinating wildlife wonders. Tufted Puffins nest on Haystack Rock and large colonies of seabirds crowd offshore rocks. Colorful and mysterious forms of marine life cover intertidal rocks and fill tidepools. Herds of Roosevelt Elk emerge from the edges of the rainforest to graze in coastal meadows. Bald Eagles patrol the skies and Brown Pelicans skim the surf. Each spring and winter, approximately 18,000 Gray Whales can be observed making one of the natural world's most amazing migrations. A walk on the beach, a visit to a viewpoint or a hike through the rainforest rewards outdoor lovers with exciting scenes of nature.

EXPERIENCE NATURE

A multitude of ecosystems including woodlands, wetlands and rocky shores make Cannon Beach a great year-round wildlife watching destination. Whether hiding in the shadows of tidepools, soaring above the highest tree tops or grazing quietly in meadows, the wildlife here is something to behold.

Tidepools: Exposed at low tide, many interesting creatures live in tidepools and intertidal areas where the rocky coastline meets the sea. Bright sea stars cling to rocks, green anemones lay open like flowers and a trained eye will find a variety of crabs, snails and colorful sea slugs.

Bird Watching: Beaches, rocky shores, woodlands, wetlands and estuaries make Cannon Beach a great bird watching destination year-round. Haystack Rock hosts the seasonal nesting of Tufted Puffins, Brown Pelicans glide over the ocean's surface during non-winter months and Bald Eagles cruise the skies. Birders will also find a nice variety to watch along Ecola Creek and the 2nd Street lagoons.

Roosevelt Elk: Visitors to Cannon Beach often encounter herds of majestic Roosevelt Elk, calmly grazing in meadows. Elk are most frequently seen in early mornings and late evenings and can sometimes be found in the open areas of Ecola State Park or in any of several grassy city parks.

Whale Watching: Several varieties of whales may be spotted any time of year, but the most commonly seen is the Gray Whale, which migrates along the coast twice annually. Any walk on the beach or visit to Ecola State Park can become an opportunity to witness these magnificent creatures.

With the freshest seafood available, crafted libations and restaurants dedicated to seasonal and local ingredients, Cannon Beach is a haven for your inner foodie. Indulge in succulent Dungeness crab, rich salmon or delicate halibut. Sip award-winning local brews, locally distilled spirits and regional wines or feast on a multi-course meal prepared right before your eyes in a demonstration kitchen.

4 Spots for Innovative & Intimate Dining

A tucked-away spot for dinner and cocktails where you'll often find a solo guitarist playing in the corner, The Bistro offers up a tantalizing menu with options like chicken satay over jasmine rice or razor clams sautéed and served with tomato-caper tartar sauce.

In a charming yellow cottage on Hemlock with a menu rooted in classic French and Italian traditions, Newmans at 988 features a nightly prix fixe menu alongside seasonal a la carte entrees, which have included chicken Marsala pasta, duck (pictured above) and lobster ravioli.

Start your visit to the The Irish Table's cozy, wood-toned dining room with one of their tempting soups, try out a savory seafood special or filling shepherd's pie for dinner, then finish your meal with a stiff whiskey drink or some Irish coffee.

With influences that range from Cajun and Creole to gluten free, vegan and vegetarian options, Sweet Basil's Cafe puts a delicious spin on Northwest seafood and organic, locally-sourced ingredients. They're open for lunch and dinner and present a regular schedule of live music.

For Seafood Seekers

You'll find fish & chips, chowder and seafood selections at most Cannon Beach restaurants, but some restaurants are in a class of their own when it comes to the catch of the day. Upscale and casual, The Wayarer Restaurant in midtown offers outstanding seafood and the best views of Haystack Rock from any restaurant in town. Popular menu items include pinot noir salmon (pictured above) and Oregon hazelnut-seared rex sole. A bit more casual, The Driftwood Restaurant serves up classics like simply grilled salmon, oysters Rockefeller and halibut baked and served in a creamy dill sauce. An ultra-casual restaurant and market, Ecola Seafoods is a great place to either split some fresh-off-the-owners'-boat fish and chips with a friend or pick up a whole Dungeness Crab to take back to your vacation rental and enjoy.

FIND LOCAL BREWS

When you're in the mood for great brews and pub food, pull up a bar stool at one of Cannon Beach's brewpubs. Public Coast Brewing Co. creates several brews in house including their NW Red and English Style Stout. Veterans on the local scene, Bill's Tavern & Brewhouse has a full line of house-crafted brews anchored by the award-winning Duck Dive Pale Ale. New to Cannon Beach, the familiar Pelican Pub & Brewery offers favorites like their Tsunami Stout (available on Nitro) and the award-winning Imperial Pelican Ale.

AN EPICUREAN EXPERIENCE

EVOO Cannon Beach Cooking School chefs Bob Neroni and Lenore Emery serve up a lively three-hour dinner show that includes three courses, dessert and wine pairings, all prepared before your eyes. A Mediterranean influence and Northwest ingredients permeate all of their tempting dishes.

SIP LOCAL SPIRITS

With small-batch whiskeys that often sell out in less than 45 minutes and a list of national awards, Mike Selberg of Cannon Beach Distillery enjoys sharing his love for the craft with guests during tasting flights of his gins, agave spirits and rums.

THE SEASONS' BEST

A seasonal menu and outstanding wine selection make the award-winning Stephanie Inn Dining Room a destination for those seeking a refined experience. With a menu that has included items like garlic-crusted filet mignon and wild King Salmon, guests can also opt to try the five-course, prix fixe experience, available with wine pairings.

Fall for the arts in Cannon Beach

One of Cannon Beach's most popular events, the festival includes three full days of art and music events.

For tickets and information,

ARTS

Named one of America's 100 Best Art Towns, fine art and crafts flourish in Cannon Beach. Over a dozen galleries feature an array of artwork by established painters, renowned photographers and some of the country's most celebrated sculptors alongside work by emerging Northwest talents. Allow plenty of time to wander and discover what inspires these artists and you'll likely find something to inspire yourself as well.

Soak in the Arts on a Gallery Tour of Cannon Beach

Visual arts have been a significant part of the Cannon Beach experience for several decades and today the town enjoys a reputation as one of America's top art destinations. Tucked throughout this small village are tasteful galleries and artist studios showcasing national and regional artists, as well as local artists known for their contributions to disciplines ranging from glassblowing to watercolors. On a tour of Cannon Beach galleries, you can see work by some of the nation's top sculptors, masterfully hand-printed color landscape photographs and painting styles that range from classic landscapes to abstract and contemporary representational art.

A WATERCOLOR MASTER CAPTURES THE COAST

For over 40 years, Cannon Beach artist Jeffrey Hull has been capturing the natural beauty of Oregon's craggy coast. Known for his ability to control the difficult medium of watercolor, often in very large paintings, you will find his original and limited-edition work exclusively at Jeffrey Hull Gallery.

WHITE BIRD GALLERY IS A CANNON BEACH CLASSIC

Discover Artworks Cast in Bronze by Sculpting Masters

Admiring the art of sculpture and the age old process of casting in bronze is one of the delights of touring Cannon Beach galleries. Don't miss these three galleries where you just may find the perfect piece for your home, office or garden:

Celebrating its 30th year in Cannon Beach, Northwest by Northwest Gallery showcases a carefully curated collection of work by sculptor Georgia Gerber (her pelican pictured above). Her work includes public landmarks including Rachel the Pig, the life-size piggy bank at the entrance to Seattle's Pike Place Market, 25 separate sculptures depicting various Oregon wildlife at Portland's Pioneer Courthouse and many other public art installations. Her Tufted Puffins are part of the City of Cannon Beach's public art collection.

At Bronze Coast Gallery you'll find work by several of the country's top sculptors. Joshua Tobey's large scale animal sculptures are whimsically human as they stretch, scratch or sleep. Look closely at David Crawford's intricately detailed creatures, ranging from dogs to horses to fish, to discover hidden household items, moveable parts and unexpected surprises.

Sculptor Heather Soderberg's animals, that are frequently captured in realistic detail with colorful patinas, can be seen at Primary Elements Gallery. The gallery also features work by noted Oregon sculptor Rip Caswell, known for wildlife and true-to-life figurative bronze sculpture.

A Memorable Meeting Place

Nestled between the Coast Range and the Pacific Ocean, Cannon Beach is known for a unique atmosphere and culture that is all its own. With wondrous views from every direction and state-of-the-art meeting facilities, Cannon Beach is the perfect location to combine business and relaxation. The towering Sitka Spruce trees, crashing waves and intense, tumultuous skies allow you and your team to tap into something primeval. To dig deeper on a project, let your mind expand and become a little vulnerable, thinking and collaborating in ways you've never imagined.

Some might call it unique, cool or colorful. Others will experience it as serene, welcoming and replete with natural beauty. You might spend time here and see it as vibrant, active and flourishing, with places to go and things to do. The beauty of Cannon Beach is that it is all these things and more.

You don't just meet in Cannon Beach, you experience it!

6 REASONS TO MEET IN CANNON BEACH

It's tempting to spend the whole work retreat, well...working. Several days of spreadsheets, work-back schedules, conceptualization, mission-critical metrics and vertical integration can leave your mind and body frazzled.

Relax! You can recharge your mental batteries, reinvigorate your soul and pamper your body at one of Cannon Beach's spas, yoga centers or holistic healing centers.

STEPS FROM THE BEACH, SECONDS FROM ADVENTURE

Maybe a deep breath of nature is what you need to revitalize your spirit? The miles of scenic sandy beach punctuated by beautiful rock formations and sea stacks are just steps away no matter where in Cannon Beach you are meeting and staying. Hikes in world-famous

Surfsand Ballroom

Ecola and Oswald West State Parks will get your blood pumping, while surf lessons just steps from your hotel door or teeing off at one of Manzanita's or Gearhart's ocean-front golf courses will help you relax and unwind.

Fishing from the nearby ports of Garibaldi and Warrenton give you a chance to reel in salmon albacore tuna, Pacific ling cod and more from the deep. Crabbing, clamming and surf fishing are also abundant here on the North Coast and will each get your blood pumping just enough to leave you invigorated and ready to tackle your next set of meetings.

Have Fun & Be Safe

The beach is a great place for family fun, but it can be dangerous for those unaware of the hazards. When visiting Cannon Beach, follow these tips for a safe beach outing:

- Always be aware of incoming tides. Check local tide tables, but never turn your back on the ocean as wave surges can be unpredictable.
- Stay off logs in the surf or wet sand. Incoming waves can easily roll large logs and cause serious injuries.
- Never climb cliffs or rock formations. Cliff sides can be unstable and rock formations can be swamped by sneaker waves or strand visitors with incoming tides.
- Supervise children when near the water. Sneaker waves and strong currents can easily sweep children and even adults off their feet, pulling them into the ocean.
- Swimming is not recommended. Waves and currents can be challenging for even experienced swimmers and cold ocean temperatures can result in hypothermia in a manner of minutes.
- Know what to do in case of an earthquake. Earthquakes can cause dangerous tsunamis. If you feel the ground move, immediately evacuate to higher ground, follow tsunami evacuation routes and listen for official safety announcements.

For more information on beach safety and tsunami awareness, visit:

Take Advantage of Tides

Low tides are an opportunity to explore the fascinating intertidal zone, that edge of the shoreline that spends much of the day underwater. Haystack Rock offers the easiest opportunity to experience this remarkable ecosystem. It's safest to explore the intertidal area as the tide is going out, though vigilance in watching the waves is always important. Tread carefully as you explore, only walking on sand or bare rock to avoid damaging the delicate marine life. Never remove a live creature from its home. The area surrounding Haystack Rock is a protected area, one of Oregon's seven Marine Gardens, therefore removing any animal or material is prohibited, and good etiquette to follow in any intertidal area.

Minus Tides Are a Plus: In spring and summer, lower-than-average tides during daylight hours, known as minus tides, offer the best opportunities to explore the intertidal zone. These are also the tides that attract clammers seeking the local delicacy: Razor Clams. Minus tides also offer the opportunity for the best beach walks, offering continuous access to long stretches of beach often sealed off by small headlands. As always, knowing the tides and careful observation is required to make sure you are not isolated by incoming water.
