Cape Cod Chamber Podcast Explores What Reopening Plan Means For Cape Cod Businesses

Cape Cod, MA: The Cape Cod Chamber of Commerce details how local businesses will begin reopening under Governor Charlie Baker's four-phase plan on the second episode of The Policy Pod.

In the most recent episode, released on May 18, Cape Cod Chamber CEO Wendy Northcross was joined by Matt Pitta from The Davenport Companies and Kevin Howard from the Cape Cod Chamber to discuss what Cape Cod businesses need to do in advance of reopening.

The Cape Cod Chamber of Commerce's new podcast series mixes interesting conversation with timely issues on the minds of Cape Codders. "The goal of The Policy Pod is to highlight policies that support Cape Cod's spirit of innovation, entrepreneurship and resiliency," said Northcross. "Because tone matters, we take to the airwaves to share our thoughts and your ideas."

This inaugural season of The Policy Pod is supported by The Davenport Companies, a family-owned and operated business serving Cape Codders since 1956 with homes, health and wellness, entertainment, lodging, construction and stewardship of the place we all love.
