THE WRIGLEY MARTINI

The bar at the Wrigley Building Restaurant in Chicago was the exclusive watering hole for giants of the Windy City's newspaper, radio, and television industries- a cozy room adorned with colorful stained glass, rich mahogany, and elegant brass accents. At the center stood a thirty-five-foot majestic, curved bar, and it was there that Philip Knight Wrigley commissioned the signature cocktail now known as the Wrigley Martini. A man renowned for quality and attention to detail, Philip Wrigley directed head bartender, Lou Harrington, to create a martini worthy of its stately surroundings- one that would satisfy the palate and thirst of the Wrigley Building Restaurant's distinguished clientele.

The only son of William Wrigley, Jr. (who purchased the Catalina Island Company in 1919), Phil possessed impeccable taste, which he used over the years to help guide Avalon's transformation from a Victorian seaside village to the Spanish-influenced tropical island getaway we love today.

As you sip your Wrigley Martini and enjoy its generous 3.5oz pour of gin and perfect dash of vermouth, be sure to take a moment to gaze upon the charming town of Avalon and the breathtaking vista that is Avalon Bay. The Wrigley family legacy is still to be found in the serpentine walls, swaying palm trees, and iconic Catalina Casino-- stunning reminders of their love for our magical isle.
