October 11-13. Outlandish Hillsborough. The Alliance for Historic Hillsborough and Ayr Mount Historic Site in collaboration with the Hillsborough Tourism Board will present Outlandish Hillsborough, a weekend of activities centered around Scottish heritage, colonial history and the wildly popular Outlander series. Activities are 10 am – 4 pm each day. In-town walking tours, a movie night at the Library, discussion on William Wallace, Scottish Colonial food, an exhibit on the history of Scots in early North Carolina, and other themed programs are a few of the activities planned. Many of Hillsborough's merchants, artists, restaurants, bars, businesses, and historic sites will participate. The weekend will also include family friendly festivals at Ayr Mount Historic Site with a Cèilidh at Ayr on Saturday, October 12th and Outlandish Ayr on Sunday, October 13th. Cèilidh at Ayr honors Scottish Heritage and Culture in a nod to the Kirkland Family that built the historic home of Ayr Mount named in honor of William Kirkland's birthplace: Ayr,

Scotland. It will celebrate Scottish entertainment through performances by the NCSU Pipes and Drums Band, Celtic bands, Scottish Country Dancing, demonstrations, storytelling, plus a Wee Bairns area, Scottish food and vendors. Outlandish Ayr will continue to celebrate Scottish Heritage while focusing on the culture of life in Colonial North Carolina and add a fun twist with the Outlander series. Performances by Piobadh na Triantan, Celtic Music, food and lifestyle demonstrations, British and Highlander regiment reenactors, history talks, demonstrations, Marketplace Stalls, readings from the Outlander books, and much more.
