- Fishing: 830 miles of shoreline, two dozen marinas, and boat ramps give visitors access to the Gulf of Mexico, Charlotte Harbor, and the Peace and Myakka rivers for some of Florida's most diverse salt- and fresh-water fishing.
- Golf: Year-round golf on 20 courses ranging from executive to championship level, each with scenic vistas and spectacular landscapes.
- Hiking and bicycling trails, running tracks, tennis courts, and more can be found among over 70 parks scattered throughout Charlotte County.

The Beaches: The beaches include four barrier islands and two state park beaches. Easily accessible, yet quiet and remote enough to attract abundant birds, dolphins, sea turtles, and other wildlife, they are a local treasure. There are no big crowds here, just plenty of sand lapped by gentle waves from the Gulf of Mexico and decorated with colorful shells.

Natural Appeal: Nearly 84 percent of the Charlotte Harbor shoreline is protected from development providing vistas with broad appeal. With more than 70 parks, preserves, and recreational areas – including four state parks – the Charlotte Harbor Gulf Island Coast encourages inland exploration, as well as waterfront strolling. Nature enthusiasts will want to hike and bike along park paths for expectant encounters with birds of almost every feather including red-cockaded woodpeckers, Osceola turkeys, swallow-tailed kites, ospreys, roseate spoonbills, and the seasonal white pelicans. Diverse local wildlife viewing by land and by sea includes gopher tortoises, otters, dolphins, and manatees. Several area environmental centers offer guided tours and educational programs.

Climate: The area rises only 5 to 25 feet above sea level, which equates to a sub-tropical climate where the temperature in both summer and winter are tempered by the gentle breezes of the Gulf of Mexico. Mild winters, from January to March, draw many visitors from colder climes.

Communities: The Charlotte Harbor Gulf Island Coast ranges from Englewood on the northwest side of Charlotte Harbor to Punta Gorda on the south. Four barrier islands along the Gulf of Mexico include quaint and charming Boca Grande, secluded Don Pedro Island, accessible-only-by-ferry Palm Island, and alluring Little Gasparilla Island. An artsy and cultural personality distinguishes Punta Gorda, Englewood Beach, Placida, and areas of Port Charlotte. Surrounded by nature and water, the picturesque fishing communities of Manasota Key, Cape Haze, and Placida beckon in the soft, warm Gulf winds. Babcock Ranch, America's first solar-powered town, welcomed its first residents in January 2018.

Accommodations: Whether visitors come to Punta Gorda/Englewood Beach for fishing, kayaking, golfing, the beaches, shopping, or just plain relaxing, there are accommodations for every taste and budget. From waterfront resorts to cozy vacation villas and hotels and motels to rental condominiums and homes, the range of accommodations runs the gamut from budget to luxury. And, with many visitors opting to take their recreational vehicles on the road, warm and friendly RV parks and campgrounds await.

Dining: Favorite eateries include a waterfront ambiance with an ever-growing selection of chef-owned and fine dining restaurants complementing elegant steakhouses, ethnic cuisine, and cozy bistros. Of special note, the selection of restaurants and pubs offering entertainment ranging from jazz to reggae to country and everything in between makes dining out in Punta Gorda/Englewood Beach a cultural experience.

Shopping: Fishermen's Village, a waterfront mall, resort, and marina in Punta Gorda boasts a selection of boutique retailers and restaurants right on the harbor. It is the crown jewel of a shopping scene that offers an endless supply of choices. To complement waterfront boutiques, stroll historic downtown Punta Gorda for specialty shops including fine jewelry and clothing. As a bonus, the destination is a haven for artists, so there are plenty of galleries featuring local artwork offering tropical landscapes and collectibles throughout the area.

Cultural Attractions: Anchored by the Charlotte Symphony Orchestra, the Charlotte Performing Arts Center, and the Visual Arts Center, the Charlotte Harbor Gulf Island Coast offers a profusion of art galleries, festivals and exhibits, theatrical productions, museums, and historical sites. Specialty museums include the Military Heritage Museum, the Blanchard House Museum of African American History & Culture, and the Charlotte County Historical Center.

Film Industry: It's all about "location, location, location," and Punta Gorda/Englewood Beach, with its dedicated film office, myriad natural environments, diverse architectural and geographic spectrum, acknowledged "film-friendly" reputation and entertainment industry incentives, is ideal for filmmaking, television, or even print production. Portions of HOOT, Out of Time, Tale of Two Buds, Palmetto, Gone Fishing, Just Cause, and Pink Cadillac were filmed in Charlotte County.

Charming Communities in Our Natural Paradise

Punta Gorda/Englewood Beach, FL is the embodiment of the charming Florida coastal community that makes up the Charlotte Harbor Gulf Island Coast on Florida's Southwest Gulf Coast. Surrounding Charlotte Harbor, the state's second-largest marine estuary into which the Peace and Myakka rivers flow, this diverse blend of artsy towns, serene fishing communities, and barrier islands brim with unparalleled natural beauty, recreation, pristine beaches, arts, culture, and historic sites. The expansive landscape of unspoiled islands, upland pine flatwoods, meandering waterways, mangrove shorelines, and dune-fringed beaches is a watercolorist's dream.

From Englewood Beach south to Punta Gorda, the coastal communities of Charlotte County share a common bond with Charlotte Harbor, but each has its own distinctive personality:

Babcock Ranch, America's first solar-powered town and welcomed its first residents in January 2018. It was carved out of 91,000 acres of wilderness and ranchland. In 2006, 73,000 acres were sold to the state of Florida creating Babcock Ranch Preserve. Of the 18,000 acres left, half of it is set aside for preservation, leaving 90 percent of the original 91,000 acres preserved, and the other half developed into Babcock Ranch. More than 300,000 solar panels overseen by Florida Power and Light contribute energy to the town.

Boca Grande, a historic fishing village and beach town set on Gasparilla Island at Boca Grande Pass, is highlighted by a circa-1890 lighthouse, a host of charming shops and boutiques, and a walking- and biking-friendly downtown where captains of industry and President's play.

Don Pedro Island, just about the most perfect beach anywhere with plenty of shells and warm water, is a secluded barrier island accessible only by boat. Picnicking, birding, and wildlife viewing are popular here, but the star attraction is the mile-long beach fronting the azure blue waters of the Gulf of Mexico.

Englewood-Cape Haze, fronted by the Gulf of Mexico and Lemon Bay, has all the frills of a Florida beach town: nature parks, cultural events, fishing — the tarpon that runs here are among the greatest in the world, arts, unusual boutiques and galleries along Englewood's Dearborn Street, and of course, the beach.

Manasota Key, home to Chadwick Park at Englewood Beach and Stump Pass Beach State Park where beachgoers can comb for shells or sharks' teeth; take in an afternoon of sunning and swimming, or surf fish for the main course for that night's dinner.

Knight Island, accessible only by car ferry has three miles of beaches where it's easy to get Florida sand in your shoes. A prototype for white sand, blue sky and clear water beaches, Palm Island is home to Palm Island Resort and is the perfect antidote for today's stressful lifestyles.

Little Gasparilla Island, accessible only by boat. More than two miles of secluded beaches are perfect for swimming, fishing, shelling, and bird watching. A boater's paradise, accommodations are available in rental condominiums and homes, but guests need to bring their own supplies as there are no stores or restaurants on-island.

Placida, yet another secluded waterfront community providing instant access to the Charlotte Harbor Blueway Trails. Professional outfitters complement the wealth of natural resources, and a great selection of vacation rentals, restaurants, and shopping lend a civilized touch.

Port Charlotte, the heart of Charlotte County, is centrally located between Englewood to the west and north and Punta Gorda to the south. There are endless things to do near Port Charlotte, but it's also a destination unto itself, featuring a wide variety of golf courses, an incredible array of restaurants and shopping, and hotel and vacation rental choices. Port Charlotte is also home to the Charlotte Sports Park, the award-winning base of Tampa Bay Rays Spring Training. For harbor-front relaxation, the Port Charlotte Beach Park offers 15 acres of amenities including a pool, picnicking, basketball, fishing, and boat ramp access to Charlotte Harbor.

Punta Gorda, perhaps the most well-known of Charlotte County's communities and is the only incorporated city in the county. It is the cultural heartbeat of Charlotte County with diverse performances at The Center for Performing Arts & Education and juried exhibits and workshops at the Visual Arts Center. As the Charlotte Harbor Gulf Island Coast typifies Florida and its great diversity, so does Punta Gorda illustrate distinctive images as a waterfront neighborhood. The streets, lined with towering royal palms, restored period homes complete with wide verandahs, and boutique shopping at Fishermen's Village, is highlighted by flowering shrubs, streetlamps, and town benches. Featuring palate-pleasing restaurants, privately owned boutiques, and a 140-slip marina where fishing, cruising, and boating are but moments away, Punta Gorda easily enchants even the most jaded of travelers.

Whether visiting the beaches and communities of Punta Gorda/Englewood Beach, the Charlotte Harbor Gulf Island Coast as an angler, a beachcomber, honeymooner, nature lover, boater, kayaker, hiker, bicyclist, shopper, or just plain vacationer in need of rest, the array of activities available here is endless.

Unrivaled Eco-Experiences

Punta Gorda/Englewood Beach, FL From sea turtles to sea otters, to white pelicans and roseate spoonbills, nature lovers love nature in Charlotte Harbor.

Travelers seeking to learn about the environment, how to become better environmental stewards, and escape life's stresses have been enjoying this amazing destination and our nature-based tourism. Perhaps no place better presents a firsthand look at nature and the environment than Punta Gorda/Englewood Beach in the Charlotte Harbor Gulf Island Coast, with its 830 miles of shoreline incorporating barrier islands, unspoiled beaches, mangrove habitats, pine Flatwoods, meandering rivers, canals and creeks, all outlining Florida's second-largest marine estuary.

Punta Gorda/Englewood Beach is a place of ecological and ornithological wonders where outdoor enthusiasts can observe nature in its undisturbed state. Ideal for photography, shelling, hiking, bicycling, kayaking, and standup paddleboarding, Charlotte Harbor & the Gulf Islands beckons fans of the natural environment to come to play in their backyard. In addition to hundreds of bird species such as osprey, bald eagle, anhinga, cardinal, wood stork, white pelican, and Roseate Spoonbill, a veritable patchwork quilt of biology, zoology, and oceanography abounds with 256 fresh and saltwater fish species, 39 species of mammals, 67 species of reptiles, and 27 species of amphibians.

A favorite activity of nature lovers is paddling either kayaks, canoes, or standup paddleboards through the Peace or Myakka rivers and throughout the expansive aquatic preserves of the Charlotte Harbor watershed. These adventures offer a special, up-close look at the unique features of an estuarine ecosystem. Experience mangrove canopies while paddling among secluded, hidden coves of Coral Creek & Gasparilla Sound along the Intracoastal Waterways. Nearly 200 miles of the Charlotte Harbor Blueway Trails have been mapped out identifying 53 trails rated for access, experience level, and scenic value.

For further exploration, boat tour operators offer inshore and deep-water safaris along with sightseeing cruises into Charlotte Harbor, Florida's second-largest estuary, which has mangroves and sea-grass beds that provide habitat for manatees, sea turtles, wood storks, young fish, and dolphins. King Fisher Fleet's Peace River Nature Cruise offers a 3 ½ hours eco-tour with interpretation by naturalists from the well-known Charlotte Harbor Environmental Center. Visitors can experience the flora and fauna of four different ecosystems as they journey into the winding waters of Peace River. The banks are lined with overhanging trees, native grasses, basking alligators, bald eagles, ospreys, herons, endangered wood storks, and tons of other wildlife.

Inland, Babcock Ranch Eco-Tours takes its visitors on an entertaining, educational 90-minute swamp buggy adventure through some of the woods and pastures of the 70,000-acre Crescent B Ranch, a working cattle farm, and Telegraph Cypress Swamp. Sightings of wildlife such as the boar, alligators, Osceola turkey, and whitetail deer are not uncommon.

Complementing Babcock Ranch Eco Tours is the Charlotte Harbor Environmental Center (CHEC), a 3,000-acre nature center with four miles of nature trails. Visitors will get to know the nature of Charlotte County up close through free interpretative programs including a Wading Adventure, where participants don waders and go out into the estuary with dip nets in search of the cool, gross, and bizarre: sponges called Dead Man's Fingers, sea cucumbers that eject their stomachs, worms that decorate their own homes, shell cases shaped like ice cream cones and an abundance of fish that are just starting their life here in nature's nursery. The Peace River Wildlife Center, an active wildlife rehabilitation center and park; and the Gasparilla Island State Park and Cape Haze Pioneer Trail, two former railroad-turned-bicycle trails Boca Grande Bike Path, also offer diversions of the natural order.

Florida is certainly well known for its potpourri of state recreational areas, and Charlotte County contains four of them, each different from one another and offering even greater opportunities for naturalists to explore the wild side of the Sunshine State. From Babcock/Webb Wildlife Management Area and Charlotte Harbor Preserve State Park to Don Pedro Island State Park and Stump Pass Beach State Park, the area is host to a plethora of nature programs and events and provides exceptional recreational opportunities that include plenty more opportunities for bird watching, bicycling, hiking, swimming, and more.

With more than 330 spectacular and colorful species of birds migrating to and inhabiting about 70 parks, preserves, and natural areas and roughly 830 miles of shoreline edging Charlotte Harbor & the Gulf Islands on Florida's Southwest coast, bird watching here is at a premium. Lemon Bay Sunrise Rotary Park, Cedar Point Environmental Park and Alligator Creek Preserve are just three of 26 sites recognized by the Peace River Audubon Society for excellent birding. Endangered wood storks with their four-foot wingspan, the rare white pelican, and the purple gallinule are part of the extensive Southwest Florida Bird List.

Flowering trees and plants will bloom throughout the year. More than a dozen large-scale sculptures adorn the landscape of the 27-acre property. Flowering trees bloom throughout the year and more than 15,000 sq. ft of boardwalks and docks are planned. Sculptures have been installed and the master plans for the Gardens were developed in 2010. The property is developed and primarily financed by Roger E. and Linda A. Tetrault Foundation, a 501 c. (3) private foundation. This will be one of the largest endowments for a botanical garden in the state of Florida.

Unlock Your Inner Archaeologist

Chances are if you've been shell hunting before, there was a time or two you find something cool and unexpected like a shark tooth or fossil. If you love finding these gems, there's a place in Florida where the fossil supply has been known to be high; you can hunt for fossils at Canoe Outpost - Peace River.

At this watersport outpost, rent yourself a canoe or bring your own kayak and trek the river in search of fossilized treasures. Fossils are known to be found along the Peace River's tea-colored banks – particularly after a storm and when the water level is low. Fossil hunters begin their trip with a short bus shuttle ride up to the launch point, where you can start searching for your treasures. Rent a sifter and swish and swash for fossils from giant sloths, bears, tapirs, capybaras, giant armadillos, jaguars, saber-tooth cats, Llamas, camels, mammoths, horses, mastodons, sharks' teeth, and the prized megalodon tooth.

Sports Anyone?

A fixture in Punta Gorda/Englewood Beach since 2009, we are proud to call Charlotte Sports Park the Tampa Bay Rays Spring Training home. The Rays' involvement in the Charlotte County community goes well beyond baseball and Spring Training. Their year-round community initiatives support youth activities, charitable causes, and local events.

History Buff

This incredible museum is a great family-friendly attraction for all ages. The Military Heritage Museum utilizes multiple methods to educate its visitors on the heritage aspects of US military history. With thirty-thousand-plus artifacts, veterans serving as museum guides, flight and ship simulators, virtual reality experiences, thousands of infographics, live performances, and audiovisual displays, the Museum provides unique and innovative experiences throughout its 17,000 square foot facility.

Trace the City's Roots through a Magnificent Collection of Hand-Painted Murals

An artistic way to learn the roots of Punta Gorda is through its 30 (and counting) beautifully painted murals that are scattered around the city on its historical buildings. The Punta Gorda Historic Mural Society (PGHMS) is a non-profit, 501c(3) organization founded in 1994 whose objectives are to revitalize, preserve, and economically enhance the community through the painting of murals that depict the history of the area. Renderings of all the murals are on display at the Charlotte Harbor Events & Conference Center, The Punta Gorda City Hall, and the Charlotte Community Foundation. Each mural tells its own unique story of the authentic city.

Travel through Four Different Ecosystems on a Swamp Buggy Bus

Discover the natural heart of Florida on a thrilling tour that has you seeing alligators, wild hogs, deer, wild turkeys, sandhill cranes, and cracker cows with Babcock Ranch Eco-Tours. Get back to nature on this adventure.

A Bustling Waterfront Fishing Village

Fishermen's Village is a bustling Waterfront Mall, Resort, and Marina that offers something for everyone. Shopping, dining, live entertainment, and water adventures await locals and travelers. With over 30 boutiques shops and restaurants galore, you are sure to find something that pleases you and your family.

Ride Green, Ride Free, Ride Like the Wind to Discover the Real Charlotte Harbor

Punta Gorda features the first Florida free bike loan program. The city has been recognized as a "Florida Bike-Friendly Community" by the Florida Bicycle Association for their volunteer organization called TEAM Punta Gorda which offers a complimentary Yellow Bike Loaner Program. All that is required to enjoy a biking adventure for an hour or a day is a credit card, driver's license (copies made for collateral), and signature of a waiver. Bicycles are offered on a space-available basis at various downtown locations. Since Punta Gorda is a bicycle-friendly community, the Punta Gorda Pathways, which is an 18-mile loop trail connecting pedestrian and bike paths around the city, was established to allow the city's bicyclists a more convenient way to get around. Four bicycle routes were also established and marked and range in length from 17 miles to a 31-mile ride.

Undiscovered Beaches

Punta Gorda/Englewood Beach has 28 miles of uncrowded beaches for every interest. Romantics can watch the sun slip into the Gulf at Englewood Beach on Manasota Key or walk hand-in-hand along the shore. Many nearby restaurants offer nightlife. Adjoining Chadwick Park offers volleyball and basketball courts and plenty of fishing. At Port Charlotte Beach Park, families and athletes love the heated swimming pool, basketball, tennis, beach volleyball, bocce, horseshoe courts, and playground. Picnic shelters, a fishing pier, and boating access ramps add to the appeal. Explorer's beach: Stump Pass Beach State Park, with wide-open coastlines and nature trails for viewing wildlife and native plants, is ideal for shelling and gathering fossilized shark's teeth. Most secluded: Don Pedro Island State Park, which can only be reached by private boat. There are plenty of shells and few people to compete for them! Look for manatees, bald eagles, and gopher tortoises. Far removed from civilization, yet amenities include restrooms, outdoor showers, picnic pavilions, and barbecue grills.

From Blue Crab Picking to Dining Like James Beard, The Flavors of Charlotte Harbor

The dining scene in Punta Gorda/Englewood Beach is an eclectic mix of seafood shacks, sidewalk cafes, waterfront eateries, fine dining, and sweet spots. Primary dining districts include downtown Punta Gorda (which has more than 50 independently owned restaurants), Fishermen's Village, and Englewood's Dearborn Street. Familiar corporate-owned restaurants are bountiful, too. Notable culinary experiences include: dinner at Golden Spoon recipient The Perfect Caper, headed by a multi-time nominee for the James Beard Foundation Best Chef in the South, Jeanie Roland who beat chef Bobby Flay on national television; The Burg'r Bar in Punta Gorda is home to the $40 Bloody Mary – an over-the-top brunch in a glass; Peace River Seafood is housed in a Florida cracker shack and for more than 15 years, they've been serving up boat-to-table blue crabs, shrimp, and other fresh seafood.

Paddle Through Paradise - Blueway Trails

Part of the Florida Greenways and Trails System, 200 miles of Blueway Trails are mapped for paddlers whether they're in a kayak, canoe, or standup paddleboard, with 53 trails rated for access, difficulty, and scenic value. Veteran aficionados say these trails are some of the most beautiful in the U.S. Nearly 84 percent of the 830 miles of shoreline is protected from development, providing shelter and habitat for an amazing variety of species. With a guide, one might see hundreds of birds flying home to roost, wild boar, otters, manta rays, and horseshoe crabs. Experienced sea kayakers can enjoy challenges out on the Gulf. Learn kayak fishing, where one can sneak up on the prey. Several outfitters/guides offer wilderness trips, photographic forays, and tailored tours for beginner to expert, perhaps accompanied by manatees or dolphins. One even offers an affordable Kayak Wedding or Vow Renewal package for couples who want to add some splash to their romance.

Taste the Crafts

With the rising popularity of craft drinks, Punta Gorda/Englewood Beach is keeping up with the trend with its craft brewery taproom and craft distiller. Fat Point Brewery has more than four brews that are hand-crafted locally every day. You can visit their taproom to test batches of beers that you won't find anywhere else. Peace River Beer Company is the newest brewery and is in Punta Gorda. Owned and operated by the Voss brothers, Alligator Bay Distillers crafts rum from 100 percent Florida molasses. Be sure to schedule a free tasting tour on their website!
