TOWER TREE

TREE CITY

Rising from the heart of Greensburg, the Tower Tree is a one-of-a-kind landmark where nature and history meet. This growing tree atop the Decatur County Courthouse has become an iconic symbol of the community and a must-see stop for visitors.

HISTORY

- 1870 | First Appearance
What began as a tiny sprig on the courthouse tower of mysterious origin, likely nourished by dust and moisture, grew into five trees standing 110 feet above the ground.
- 1888 | Tree Removal
Concerned about roof damage, officials hired a steeplejack to remove several trees, leaving two, one of which grew 15 feet tall and 5 inches wide before dying years later and being preserved in the Decatur County Historical Society Museum.
- 1900 | New Growth
A tree sprouted on the southeast corner of the tower and another appeared on the southwest corner, leaving two trees to carry on the courthouse's fame.
- 2000 | Gaining Attention
Over time, pruning has been repeated, leaving a tree atop the courthouse for over 130 years, drawing nationwide attention and being featured in newspapers, magazines, international publications, and even Ripley's Believe It or Not.
- 2007 | Species Uncertainty
The tree was once believed to be a linden or silver poplar before the Smithsonian classified it as a large tooth aspen, while Purdue University foresters now identify the current courthouse tree as a mulberry.
- NOW
The current tree is the 12th in succession and features modern upgrades, including a Wi-Fi-enabled soil monitoring system that helps sustain proper moisture levels and irrigation for long-term health.
