

MILE HIGH DIY

Denver is a wonderful place to live, visit and meet. 300 days of sunshine and a thriving, energetic spirit mean that urban adventure is never far away. The culinary scene has garnered national attention, from James Beard Award-winning chefs, to a diverse collection of gourmet food halls and markets. Not to mention the Rocky Mountains – nature's best playground – are just a short drive away from downtown. Spot the Denver difference below!

CAN YOU FIND ALL THE DIFFERENCES?

GO TO THE NEXT PAGE FOR THE ANSWERS!

MILE HIGH DIY

Denver International Airport's (DEN) tent peaks are meant to evoke the nearby peaks of the Rocky Mountains, while the "Blue Mustang" sculpture by artist Luis Jiménez greets visitors arriving at DEN.

---

Denver's iconic D&F Clocktower, located on the 16th St. Mall, has been here for more than a century, looking down over locals and visitors as they explore the mile-long pedestrian promenade.

---

The beloved Blue Bear at the Colorado Convention Center was officially named "I See What You Mean" by artist Lawrence Argent when it was installed in 2004.

---

"Toxic Schizophrenia", an illuminated piece by artists Tim Noble and Sue Webster, adorns the front of the Museum of Contemporary Art - Denver building.

---

Denver Union Station, a renovated 1914 Beaux Arts landmark, is now home to 10 eateries, boutique shops and a boutique hotel, in addition to serving as a transit hub for the city.

---

Urban kayaking is a fun way to see the city – rentals are available near Confluence Park downtown, where Cherry Creek and the Platte River meet.

---

The Rocky Mountains – nature's best playground – are just a short drive away from The Mile High City, offering an enticing variety of outdoor adventure.

---