Gangsters, Saloons & Buggies on Roofs

Historic Middlebury is full of surprises. John Dillinger was the most famous criminal in the U.S. in the 1930s and it is rumored he passed through Middlebury and even spent the night in a boarding house. In Amish Country, it's not unusual to see buggies everywhere; on the roads, at banks and grocery stores, even at Walmart, but on the roof! Hear these inside stories and secrets and more from a local with this tour of downtown.

Trip Tip: Spend some extra time in downtown Middlebury exploring the unique shops.

Giant Toadstools and the World's Fair

Take a guided tour through living history! The Krider family of Middlebury once captured the imagination of the world. This tour of the park that bears their name opens a window to the family's nursery at the height of its creative powers. The natural beauty will take your breath away. You may even spot a giant toadstool. This tour is great for kids so grab the family and the camera or camera phone. There are plenty of opportunities for fun selfies.

Trip Tip: Take some time and explore the Middlebury Community Historical Museum and learn more about Middlebury's historic past.
