Matilda Joslyn Gage

Matilda Joslyn Gage was a 19th Century women's suffragist, a Native American rights activist, an abolitionist, a free thinker and a prolific author. One of the most radical, far-sighted and articulate early feminists, Matilda was deliberately written out of history after her death in 1898 by an increasingly conservative suffrage movement. She is the eponym for the Matilda effect, which describes the tendency to deny women credit for scientific invention. Matilda's views on suffrage and feminism were considered too radical by many members of the suffrage association, and in consequence, she organized the Women's National Liberal Union in 1890.

The Matilda Joslyn Gage Museum is located in Fayetteville, NY and is open for visits and tours by appointment only. Call 315- 637-9511 to visit during the following hours: Monday-Friday 9:30am-2:30pm, Monday night 4-8pm and the first and last Saturday of every month from 10am-3pm. Admission is free up to 7 people. There is a small charge for groups. Please call for more information.
