

5 REASONS A VACATION RENTAL MAY BE RIGHT FOR YOU

Choosing the right accommodation for your trip is probably the most important decision you can make. Here are a few reasons why a vacation rental home may be a good choice for your next trip.

SIZE MATTERS

If you are traveling with a multi-generational group, have more than one family traveling together, or are going away with a group of friends, a vacation rental can provide plenty of space for privacy while still offering common areas for gathering.

FAMILY (AND FURRY) FRIENDLY

Many vacation rentals allow pets for an additional fee. For families with small children, a vacation rental offers flexibility for the important things like nap time, while the rest of the group can still enjoy the home's amenities. Plus, with access to a full kitchen, you can save money by cooking at home..

PENNY-WISE PLANNING

A vacation rental can be extremely cost-effective not just because you can save money on food by eating “at home”, but also because the cost of the rental can be shared among each guest.

GO NATIVE

One way to feel like a local is to stay in an area where locals live. A cozy bungalow within blocks of Flagler Beach, for example, would give you easy access to fish off the pier, walk to locally-owned restaurants or enjoy an early morning walk along the beach without having to drive there. More importantly, you'll get to know the friendly, easy-going people in the area.

SAFETY FIRST

Because vacation rentals are generally rented for longer than the average hotel room, fewer traveling parties are staying there in any given month (which may mean less chance of cross-contamination). And more than ever, vacation home owners and guests are aware of the importance of a thoroughly sanitized environment.

