HISTORIC FREDERICK, MARYLAND

Featuring 11 Sites

HISTORIC HOUSES OF WORSHIP TOUR

A Evangelical Lutheran Church 31 E. Church Street

Evangelical Lutheran Church, initially organized in 1738 in northern Frederick County, moved to Frederick in 1746, building a log church adjacent to the current church at 31 East Church Street. Construction of a stone church started in 1752, but wasn't completed until 1762 due to the French and Indian War. The present building with its twin towers was constructed in 1854 in Gothic Revival style; portions of the 1762 stone church are still visible on the Northeast side of the building. The west tower supports two bells made in England in 1771; they are still used today. From September 1862 to January 1863, the church became a temporary military hospital following the Civil War battles of South Mountain and Antietam. The church is home of one of the largest organs in Frederick County, containing almost 3000 pipes.

B Evangelical Reformed United Church of Christ 15 W. Church Street

This 1848 church was built when the congregation outgrew the older stone chapel across the street. (See C: Trinity Chapel) It is Greek Revival in design, crowned by twin cupolas. The large auditorium was transformed a century ago when the church evolved from “low church” (pulpit-centered) to “high church” (altar-centered). The pews still display the brass numbered plates from the days when the church was supported by “pew rent.” Although Barbara Fritchie was an active member, her pew was removed in renovations. erucc.org

All levels of the church are accessible via elevator, which can be located at the Church St. entrance, between the church and Parish House.

- ❖ Organ music on 28-rank organ (4PM–9PM)

C Trinity Chapel United Church of Christ 10 W. Church Street

The stone tower is all that remains of the original church built in 1763. Rebuilt in 1881 as Trinity Chapel, its graceful 1807 colonial steeple is the oldest of the “clustered spires of Frederick.” The grave of the pastor who baptized Francis Scott Key is in the old tower, and the steeple houses the historic town clock. A beautiful 1898 stained glass window depicting “Christ in the Temple” is on the second floor. The ten bell chimes in the tower and steeple are played weekly. The building contains a cruciform chapel and the classrooms of the Evangelical Reformed United Church of Christ (see B).

D All Saints' Episcopal Church 106 W. Church Street

All Saints' Parish was founded in 1742 by an act of the Provincial government of Maryland in order to facilitate the spread of the Church of England in western Maryland. The first church was on East All Saints Street. The growing congregation built a new church on North Court Street in 1813. This structure is now the Parish Hall. In 1854, Richard Upjohn, America's foremost church architect, was commissioned to build the present sanctuary. Listed among the famous churches in America, it represents classic Gothic Revival architecture and features a distinctive ceiling and four different styles of stained glass artistry.

E Asbury United Methodist Church W. All Saints & Court Streets

Frederick's African American community worshiped with members of the “Old Hill Church” congregation (located where 35 E. All Saints Street now stands) since 1818. By 1864, the community came into full possession of that facility. In 1912, the current lot was purchased, and by 1921, the present building was completed. In 1968, the church became Asbury United Methodist Church. Asbury is distinguished by its original beautiful stained glass windows, which were memorial and honorary gifts from members and friends. Asbury has always been a church of the community. asburyumcfmd.org

F Joseph Dill Baker Carillon Baker Park

Joseph Dill Baker (1854–1938) was known as “Frederick's first citizen” for his many contributions. This 70-foot granite bell tower was erected in 1941 in his memory. It now houses 49 carillon bells, ranging from 22–3,500 pounds, which are still played. A brass bas-relief dedication plaque honoring Baker is located on the base of the tower.

- ❖ Bells played by City Carillonneur, John Widmann, for ½ hour (4PM, 5PM and, 6PM)

G Calvary United Methodist Church N. Bentz & W. 2nd Streets

Calvary United Methodist Church has served the Frederick community since 1770. Built in 1929, this modern Gothic Revival style church is patterned after European cathedrals. It features a beautifully carved wooden screen (“reredos”) behind the altar which depicts the “Tree of Life” symbolizing the words of Jesus, “I am the vine, you are the branches.” Intertwined are shields on which are carved the symbols of the Apostles of Christ. Tiffany stained glass windows from an earlier church building are located in the sanctuary and chapel.

H Frederick Presbyterian Church 115 W. 2nd Street

The original church was built in 1780 at the corner of Bentz and Fourth Streets. The present church on West 2nd Street was completed in 1825 and served as a hospital where President Lincoln visited the wounded from nearby battles during the Civil War. Featured in the sanctuary is a Möller Pipe Organ, dating from 1897, banners of the Presbyterian faith and Roman arch stained glass windows. frederickpresbyterian.org

The congregation took the name “Centennial Memorial” as part of the celebration of the founding of the United Brethren In Christ denomination in 1800, on Rocky Springs Road. The Church is distinguished by its Victorian Gothic design, Möller organ and stained glass windows. The Congregation became United Methodist due to the merger in 1968. Founded in 1898 as a daughter congregation of the Evangelical Reformed Church, Grace Church features Gothic arches and battlemented towers. The Victorian Gothic edifice was dedicated in 1903. J.B. Hankinson of Newark, N.J., Tiffany's general foreman, created the art glass windows and was proud of the rose window, with its Gothic tracery and variegated colors. The sanctuary boasts wooden beams and carved quatrefoils. grucc.com

Sanctuary, fellowship hall, and restrooms are handicap accessible via right side entrance of the church building.

- ❖ Various musical programs.

K St. John the Evangelist Catholic Church 118 E. 2nd Street

Catholics first gathered for Mass on East 2nd Street in 1763 in a two-story house with a chapel. The first actual church was built in 1800 by Fr. John Dubois, SS. The current church was completed and on April 26, 1837, was the first Catholic Church in the United States to be consecrated. Father John McElroy, S.J. was the pastor. The Spire, which is the highest point in the city, is topped with a gold-leaf dome and cross and was restored in 2019. The Greek Revival Style Church houses the masterpieces “The Crucifixion,” (Pietro Gugliardi) behind the altar, and “The Ascension,” (Baraldi) ceiling in the center crossing. In the early 1900s, panels behind the organ in the choir loft were removed during the restoration of the church, exposing several poems and signatures. It seems, because of the height of its windows, St. Johns may have detained Confederate soldiers during the Civil War.
