BUCKET LIST

The list of things to do in Frederick is never ending, but how should you spend your time if you only have a few days to explore? You haven't had the full Frederick County experience until you've done these things.

Share your progress using #FrederickBucketList

WALK THE ENTIRE LENGTH OF CARROLL CREEK PARK

Created as a flood control project, this picturesque body of water is lined with colorful lilies in the summer and illuminated boats in the winter. The mile and a half long stretch includes pedestrian paths, water features, an amphitheater, and stunning public art. Start in Baker Park and end up near the Frederick Fairgrounds to ensure you don't miss anything!

< CLIMB CHIMNEY ROCK

You haven't truly seen Frederick until you've looked down on its tallest trees. The hike is somewhat strenuous, but the view from 1,419 feet over Catoclin Mountain Park is worth every step.

> DANCE IN FRONT OF HUNDREDS OF STRANGERS

Friends and families gather at the Baker Park Bandshell every Sunday for the Summer Concert Series. Bands play everything from Beatles music to reggae. Put on your dancing shoes and let the music move you to the front of the crowd.

▲ DINE AT VOLT'S FAMOUS TABLE 21

Fans of the show Top Chef will recognize contestant Bryan Voltaggio's first restaurant, Volt, as the ultimate fine dining experience. Complete with a 15-course tasting menu, the Table 21 experience is only open to 8 people at a time and reservations fill up well in advance. Get a little bit dressed up and pull up a chair for this once-in-a-lifetime treat.

➤ SHAKE YOUR KEYS

What's the best way to cheer on the home team at a Frederick Keys baseball game? By shaking your car keys, of course! Kids and adults alike have embraced this tradition.

EXPLORE AN ENGINEERING MARVEL

The Monocacy Aqueduct dates back to 1833 and has been restored to be as stunning today as it was when it was built. Float under the seven stone arches or hike and bike along the C&O Canal Towpath across the top.

POSE WITH THE "EDGE OF GRAVITY" MURAL

You might do a double take when you see this incredibly realistic mural of a figure floating above the ground. Mimic this iconic pose and snap a photo of yourself being an "angel in the architecture" at the corner of S. Market Street and Citizen's Way. Spot more of local artist William Cochran's work throughout Downtown Frederick.

TASTE WEIRD BEER AT FLYING DOG BREWERY

With 20 varieties on tap, you are bound to find something unusual at Flying Dog Brewery's state-of-the-art brewing facility. Special batch and limited-release beers that include some unexpected ingredients, like sunflowers or salt and pepper, are often only available here.

CENTURIES of HISTORY

SINCE ITS FOUNDING IN 1748,
and the founding of the City of Frederick just three years earlier, Frederick County has played a role in every chapter of the American story. Picturesque historic buildings, one-of-a-kind museums, and engaging walking tours throughout Frederick County bring centuries of history to life.

SPIRITUAL JOURNEYS

Our rich religious heritage is evident at Emmitsburg's National Shrine of St. Elizabeth Ann Seton, which tells the story of the first American-born saint. 2020 is the Year of the Woman, and there is no better time to reflect on this important historical figure. Nearby, at Mount St. Mary's University, is the National Shrine Grotto of Lourdes, which features one of the oldest American replicas of France's Lourdes Shrine.

HISTORIC FRAMEWORK

Eighteenth-century structures dot the county, like the Schifferstadt Architectural Museum in Frederick, which is a fine example of an early German colonial home. The Catoctin Furnace, in the nearby town of Thurmont, is a 1770s industrial site at Cunningham Falls State Park. The iron furnace, and the adjacent company village, have played important roles in the nation's history.

TRANSPORTATION HERITAGE

Frederick County stands at the crossroads of two National Scenic Byways. The Historic National Road, "The Road That Built The Nation," crosses the county from east to west. The Journey Through Hallowed Ground travels along U.S. 15 from north to south.

Brunswick
Heritage
(Railroad)
Museum

Early transportation advances are evident throughout Frederick County. The nation's earliest railroad, the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, and the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal first converge and compete for passage westward through the mountains. Brunswick's Heritage (Railroad) Museum tells the story of both modes of transport and how they alternately shaped the town. Today, hikers and cyclists travel the towpath and cross the aqueducts in the C&O Canal National Historical Park. You can even stay the night in a rustic canal lockkeeper's house.

National Museum of Civil War
Medicine

BETWEEN NORTH & SOUTH

At the heart of America's Civil War, Frederick County's location between the Potomac River and the Mason-Dixon Line meant it was alternately occupied by troops from both sides and the site of important battles.

Confederate General Robert E. Lee's first invasion of the "North" in September 1862 led to the battles of South Mountain and Antietam. At South Mountain State Battlefield, learn how Lee held back Union General. George McClellan's army and regrouped his own forces at nearby Sharpsburg, where the Battle of Antietam was fought three days later.

Civil War Trail markers tell how in June 1863, the Union Army of the Potomac strategized here in the days before the nearby Battle of Gettysburg.

THE "BATTLE THAT SAVED WASHINGTON"

At Monocacy National Battlefield, find out about the July 1864 "Battle That Saved Washington," part of the final Confederate effort to move the war north.

Although Union General Lew Wallace's 5,800 Union soldiers were defeated by General Jubal Early's 18,000 troops, the encounter afforded enough time to militarily reinforce the nation's capital.

ONE VAST HOSPITAL

Immediately following the nearby battles, Frederick was transformed into "one vast hospital", with churches and large buildings used as makeshift infirmaries, where thousands of soldiers were treated. The story of the city's compassion and great medical progress is depicted at the National Museum of Civil War Medicine in Downtown Frederick.

BRUNSWICK

Right on the C&O Canal Towpath along the Potomac River lies Brunswick. This city with the charm of a small town is your starting point for a day spent on the move, whether on a bicycle, kayak, yoga mat, or foot.

Gear up before you hit the river or trail at our knowledgeable specialty sports & apparel shop, then refresh yourself afterwards with a latte in a pre-WWI church or a beer in a re-purposed, mid-century fire station. History buffs & train lovers will appreciate the 1,700-square-foot HO scale model railroad depicting the B&O from Brunswick to D.C., found, along with tableaux of turn-of-the-century railroad town life, at the Brunswick Heritage Museum.

THURMONT

Over 100,000 visitors flock here every October for Colorfest, a festival celebrating fall in the Catocin Mountains with over 750 vendors with crafts, art, and food that is throughout the town. The surrounding countryside offers a backdrop to explore twenty-five miles of hiking trails at Catocin Mountain Park, or take in the sites at the state's highest cascading waterfall and lake at Cunningham Falls State Park.

Down on Main Street take a nostalgic stroll and hop on the Thurmont Trolley Trail and take a nice relaxing walk and travel the path where the trolley used to provide transportation to residents. After all the exploring, indulge in a home-style dinner at one of the many locally owned restaurants. Bridge hunting? You will find three Historic Covered Bridges here. Enjoy local agriculture by visiting one of the 4 wineries and 3 orchards!
