VISITGATLINBURG

"Gatlinburg is the perfect mountain getaway! It's perfect for all types of trips whether you want to go on a romantic getaway, a friend trip, or for family fun. Gatlinburg has so much to offer from its fun attractions, unique shops, and delicious food. Plus, it's right next door to Great Smoky Mountain National Park so you're close to beautiful nature. I especially loved visiting the Village and Anakeesta as those places look straight out of a storybook."

—Annie Jiang, @goanniewhere

A person is seen from the side, wearing dark pants and brown hiking boots, standing on a large, mossy rock. They are looking out over a dense, green forest. The scene is filled with various types of trees and undergrowth, creating a vibrant, natural setting. The lighting is soft, suggesting a misty or overcast day.

Shaconage (Sha-kon-ah-hey). It's Cherokee for "place of blue smoke," or as you're more likely to know it, the Smoky Mountains. Fitting? Yes. Literal? Well, not entirely. The distinctive haze that earned our range of peaks its name isn't actually smoke at all—it's fog. Made up of vapor molecules released from the plant life lining the landscape, the mist reflects the light from the sky to create a mystical, blue-tinted veil. It's just one of many unique qualities that has given Great Smoky Mountains National Park an allure that's hard to resist. So hard, in fact, it's become the most visited national park in the United States. And with a single venture inside, it's easy to see why.

Sprawling over 500,000 acres, the Park is home to plunging waterfalls, breathtaking vistas, century-old architecture and diverse wildlife, including over 1,500 black bears (flip the page for more on them)! Over 800 miles of trails put the best sights and sounds this stretch of backcountry has to offer right at your fingertips. Plus, with scenic drives along Newfound Gap Road up to Clingmans Dome around to Greenbrier and more, it is possible to cover even more ground by car.

We could ramble on about what lies inside the Park's perimeter for an eternity. Scientists are even still discovering new plant and animal species that dwell there! But there are some things, like the natural beauty and memories yet to be discovered within, that we simply can't put into words. You'll just have to come experience the magic for yourself.

NATIONAL PARK

BEAR SAFETY

Any visit to Great Smoky Mountains National Park is special, but spotting a black bear is the cherry on top. Black bears inhabit all elevations of the park and are typically most active during the early morning and late evening hours in spring and summer. And while we hope you're fortunate enough to observe one, it's crucial—for your safety and the bears'—to remember the following tips from BearWise.org.

OFTEN SEEN Black bears are common here, often seen within urban areas.

UNPREDICTABLE While seldom aggressive, black bears are powerful, unpredictable wild animals.

KEEP YOUR DISTANCE Never feed or approach bears. Enjoy them from a safe distance (50 yards or 10 car lengths).

STAY TOGETHER Groups should stay together, especially children.

STASH & LATCH Put all trash and food scraps in bear-resistant containers. Be sure to close and latch tightly.

LOCK UP Completely close and LOCK all doors and windows of vehicles and buildings. (Yes, bears can open them.) If you must store food in vehicles, keep it out of sight.

ALWAYS LEASH Keep dogs leashed at all times. Don't let your dog harass a bear. If you see a bear, move away quickly to minimize barking and avoid a confrontation.

To familiarize yourself with the species' behaviors, learn tips for encounters, get educated on the proper way to use bear spray and more, visit BearWise.org. The program helps us all live responsibly with black bears and preserve them as a cherished part of our community.

FUN FACT

Black bears are extremely good climbers and can scale a 100-foot tree in as little as 30 seconds!

Planning on parking in Great Smoky Mountains National Park for more than 15 minutes? You'll need a tag for that! If you're just passing through, keep on truckin'.

Parking tags have been set at three affordable rates and can be purchased in various places in and around the park. All tag revenue is used to improve the visitor experience, meaning your stop will contribute to sustainable, year-round maintenance of the park's trails, roads, historic structures and facilities as well as protect its natural resources.

PRO TIP

To keep any national park visit safe and enjoyable for you, your pet and other visitors, remember BARK!

Pets in the Park

You can bring your pooch along for your adventure inside Great Smoky Mountains National Park, so long as you follow a few guidelines. Dogs are allowed in campgrounds, picnic areas and along roads if they're leashed at all times and the leash is not more than 6 feet long. Pets are only permitted on two walking trails — Gatlinburg Trail and Oconaluftee River Trail.

- Bag your pet's waste
- Always leash your pet
- Respect wildlife
- Know where you can go

LEAVE NO TRACE

Preserving the beauty of the Smokies is something we can—and should—all take part in. By abiding by the following set of outdoor ethics, you can help sustain this national treasure for folks to enjoy today, tomorrow and well into the future.

- ➡ Plan ahead and prepare for extreme weather, hazards and emergencies.
- ➡ Travel, camp and hike on durable surfaces and those that show obvious signs of use.
- ➡ Dispose of waste properly. This includes packing out all trash, leftover food and litter.
- ➡ Leave what you find. Observe and snap photos but don't take anything with you.
- ➡ Minimize campfire impact by using a stove and building fires in existing pits.
- ➡ Respect wildlife. Do not follow, approach or feed animals and keep pets leashed.
- ➡ Be considerate of other visitors. Yield to others on trails and be respectful of noise levels.

Everyone loves a water feature, so we feel pretty blessed that the park is chock-full of them. Just minutes outside Gatlinburg, Grotto Falls is a great place to start your Tour de Falls off strong. Take the easygoing Trillium Gap Trail past serene, old-growth forests and if you happen to be here in May, a dazzling display of wildflowers before reaching the only water fall in the Smokies that you can stand behind.

For a more moderate trek, try the five-mile round trip to Abrams Falls. Surrounded by towering pine and oak trees you'll follow a path along the Cades Cove valley floor to a small but mighty waterfall that's one of the most popular destinations in the Smokies. The currents here are extremely dangerous though, so take heed and take pictures but, whatever you do, don't take a dip!

As the Park's tallest waterfall accessible by trail, Ramsey Cascades is a fitting grand finale. The four-mile hike to the waterfall gains over 2,000 feet in elevation and can take anywhere between five to seven hours to complete. Many find the effort to be well worth it though, especially once the spectacle of gushing water dropping 100 feet is within sight.

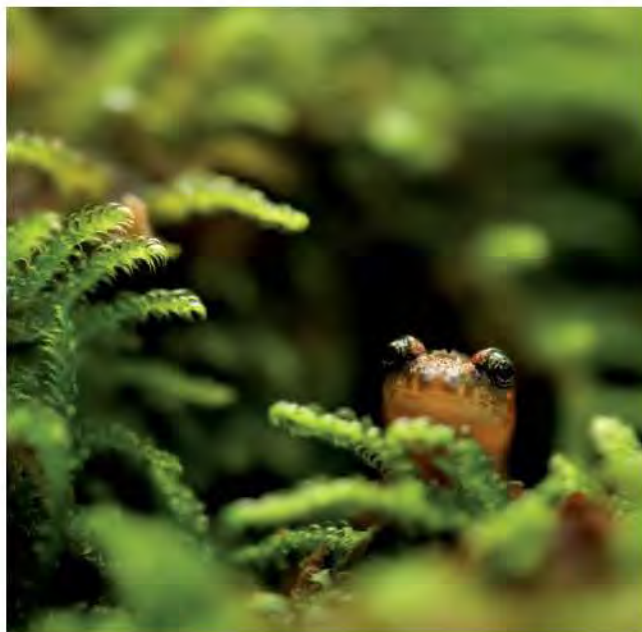

WATERFALLS

WILDLIFE

So, you've heard we have black bears. But do you know how many other interesting species call Great Smoky Mountains National park home? Over 65 types of mammals, 200 kinds of birds, 67 native fish, and 80 reptile and amphibian species are protected within the park. From stoic elk and graceful deer to sly foxes and slippery salamanders, the wildlife sightings here run aplenty. Be sure to keep your eyes peeled and your camera at the ready!

PARKING & TRANSPORTATION

In addition to several public parking lots, the downtown area is home to two parking garages with hundreds of spaces available for just $10 a day. One garage is located at Ripley's Aquarium of the Smokies and the other, McMahan Parkway Garage, is located at Traffic Light #3. There are also a multitude of private parking areas downtown. A full list and map of these options can be found on our website at Gatlinburg.com/parking.

Alternatively, you can stow your wheels in one of the Park and Ride Lots located just outside the main strip. These lots give you access to the Gatlinburg Trolley System for a quick, novel mode of transportation into town. It's free to park and to ride, plus you can use the Trolley Locator on the Gatlinburg App to conveniently track its progress.

PRO TIP

Check the number of spots available in the public parking garages in real-time online before heading out!

ELEVATED EXPERIENCES

Elevated Experiences Await

Mountain living can be rough and rugged, so knowing where to enjoy the finer things in Gatlinburg is key. From pristine accommodations and exclusive events to superb dining and therapeutic spa packages, everything you need to make a trip to the Smokies feel like a five-star getaway is right here.

For lavish lodging, look no further than Treehouse Grove. Designed by “Treehouse Master” Pete Nelson, this wooded oasis has a range of amenities, including the ever-important flush, making it an escape the whole family can truly get behind. For an even more rustic vibe, consider getting your glamp on at Camp LeConte. Who else can say they’ve stayed in a luxury tree house, European safari tent or a 1960s retro camper at the gateway to Great Smoky Mountains National Park? Not many. But if you decide to forego the bougie abode and sleep beneath the stars instead, St. Somewhere Spa at the Margaritaville Resort will be able to work its magic the next morning.

After you get settled, you might be in the mood for a memorable meal and, we’ll be the first to brag, Gatlinburg’s dining scene doesn’t disappoint. Explore the chef-driven menu at The Greenbrier or tantalize your taste buds with a steak and seafood feast at Crystelle Creek. But be sure to leave room on your proverbial plate—the mesmerizing Astra Lumina experience at Anakeesta is the perfect after-dinner activity. There’s nothing like it anywhere else in the country, and it will quite simply whisk you out of this world.

"I grew up at the foothills of the Smokies. When people visit, we want them to feel like they were part of the Smokies, because we know that the national park is the most beautiful, and the most popular in the United States. So I've always been really proud of the fact that I was born and raised up here. When we do anything at Dollywood, I always try to keep things close to 'home,' things that are part of my childhood, part of my life." – Dolly Parton

*"Welcome to Gatlinburg!
My very favorite place in the Smokies! I love this town! Have a great time at Ole Red and don't do anything I wouldn't do because what's the fun in that?"
– Blake Shelton*

OVERHEARD 'ROUND THE MOUNTAIN

"C'mon down to the Smokies, we have something for everyone! The mountains, the entertainment, and of course, some great frickin' chicken at Chicken Guy!" – Guy Fieri

"I brought my children to the Smokies when they were young, and now I bring their children, too! Come make memories with your family and pick up a souvenir at Paula Deen Retail while you're at it." – Paula Deen

GATLINBURG AFTER DARK

There's something special to be said about Gatlinburg at nighttime. While the magnificent mountain views may have faded to a star-studded canvas up above, the excitement down below is far from dying out. There are plenty of late-night watering holes, but one we've welcomed with open arms just this year is Jason Aldean's Kitchen + Rooftop Bar. Stop in for some of the artist's downhome favorites and live musical performances daily. Then there's Blake Shelton's Ole Red, which dishes up its own fair share of eatertainment with local and national musicians treating visitors to a meal that will have them singing for more.

Not all the nighttime fun is to be had at the bar or on the dance floor, however. Anakeesta offers one of the only immersive, outdoor experiences of its kind in the US. Astra Lumina, described as an enchanted night walk, takes visitors on a celestial voyage complete with cosmic projections and astral song. It's an otherworldly excursion that will leave the entire family in a daze of wonderment. You won't want to skip it!

CITY PARKS

Get Out There (but Not Too Far)

Getting a taste of the Great Outdoors isn't hard to do when you're smack dab in the middle of a beautiful mountain range—but our city parks make it even simpler. Though none is as abundant as its nationally-recognized neighbor (and understandably so), each park has ample space to spread out for a picnic, pavilions available to rent and recreational activities for a full day of family fun. Test out the pickleball courts at Mynatt or give your pup some playtime in The Dog Park at Mills. There's even a trout-rearing facility at Herbert Holt Park where you can see how we're maintaining Gatlinburg's rainbow trout population to stock city streams year-round. With both general and children's streams, fishermen and women of all ages can cast a line—but be sure you have the appropriate permit before baiting up!

FREE THINGS TO DO

FUN, WILD AND FREE

There's plenty to take in around Gatlinburg without taking out your wallet. In fact, one of our favorite activities is simply strolling the Parkway. With more than 200 shops to peruse, taffy-pulling demonstrations to watch and unique attractions to experience, there's no shortage of no-cost excitement.

If you need an affordable "away from it all" moment, opt for a quiet walk along Little Pigeon River or a scenic drive to Roaring Fork Motor Nature Trail. Both provide picturesque views and plenty of fresh air. Or, if you're hoping for a more active outdoor excursion, check out Greenbrier. This hidden jewel is located just a few miles outside of Gatlinburg and offers a plethora of fun daytime activities from tubing and swimming to hiking and mountain biking—all free of charge, of course!

DISTILLERIES & WINERIES

This Calls for a Toast

Our glasses stay raised. (The altitude helps.)

Gatlinburg's plethora of breweries, wineries, cideries and more make quenching your thirst a simple task—but that wasn't always the case. Just like everywhere else in America, Prohibition swept our region in the early 20th century, making alcohol illegal and, for some, all the more enticing. The Smokies quickly became a hotbed for speakeasies as "moonshiners" made and distributed black-market beverages, quite literally, beneath the light of the moon. Fast forward a hundred or so years, we're no longer bootlegging but still very much in the (now legal) moonshine business with four distilleries around town that offer tours the whole family can enjoy and tastings for those 21+.

Though our past is rich with the clear whiskey-making craft, we've begun new traditions since then, too. Take the Gatlinburg Wine Trail for instance. The trail is dotted with local vineyards offering plenty of southern sweet and Tennessee-made varietals to taste, toast and take back home. There's even a Wine Trail Passport to make your vino voyage official!

Tennessee Homemade Wines

Mark and Digger at Sugarlands Distilling Company

But that's not all—we've been dabbling in brewing beers and ciders in more recent years as well. See where we're making them on page 49 or just ask a Gatlinburg native. We'd be more than happy to point you in the right direction or, if you're up for it, join you for a pint.

DINING

Don't Be Bashful

Second helpings are always in store.

Nobody asked for nine different pancake houses, but everyone's sure glad we have them. While Gatlinburg is known for its syrupy stacks, and even has a full week dedicated to them every year, there are plenty of other dishes we do well. For starters, if it's home cooking you're looking for, our options run the gamut. From meat-and-threes and fried chicken to fresh-off-the-grill barbecue, there's an abundance of comfort food in these parts. Craving something a bit more elevated? We have our fair share of steakhouses and fine dining, too.

That's the thing about this town—we do variety well. From intimate cocktail bars along the river to lively eateries the kids will love. Specially curated small plates to corn dogs bigger than you've ever seen before. There are new foods to try, tried-and-true classics to savor and dining atmospheres to match the vibe of any group.

ONLY IN GATLINBURG

Home-Brewed Bevs

From hoppy ales to homemade ciders, Gatlinburg is home to some of the finest breweries in the Smokies. If you're feeling parched after a day exploring the Parkway or the national park, we're partial to a few of our favorites.

PINTS & PIZZA

It's a dynamic duo that Gatlinburg Brewing Company happens to specialize in. What started as a pipe dream for GBC Founder and Gatlinburg native Steve Wilson has become one of our city's most beloved breweries. With a wide variety of beers, guest brews and cocktails on tap, there's a little something for everyone to drink like a local.

HARD NOT TO LOVE

If you thought beer was the extent of our brews, think again! Tennessee Cider Company is the first cidery to grace Gatlinburg with a wide assortment of craft hard ciders, meads, slushies and dessert wines. You can try any three ciders on tap for free or splurge on a $5 VIP tasting to sample all on-tap ciders, plus several of their other offerings.

JUICE WORTH THE SQUEEZE

Cider turned out to be such a hit that Tennessee Stud Cider set up shop along the Parkway, too. This spot was born of the team behind Yee-Haw Brewing—so if you're a fan of their beer, their ciders might be right up your alley. They put the same passion into their new product, transforming apple juice into a delightfully balanced alcoholic beverage that keeps us all coming back.

ARTS & CRAFTS

Artists Abound

The mountains are our muse.

With unlimited inspiration from the breathtaking landscape, it should come as no surprise that Gatlinburg has become a hub for artists of all kinds. In fact, the Gatlinburg Arts and Crafts Community is the largest independent organization of artisans in the country and has been around since the 1930s when a group of craftspeople banded together to stake their claim on the area.

The Community now consists of an eight-mile loop of shops, studios and galleries that countless experts in ceramics, doll-making, jewelry, painting, woven goods and more call home. Many of them come from a long line of creators who have made it their life's work to master their craft before passing it onto the next generation—a fact that gives visitors an exclusive look at age-old techniques that have stood the test of time.

Beginning in early May, this annual event offers abundant opportunity to participate in artistry steeped in Smoky Mountain tradition. With over 25 select classes, including basket weaving, stained glass creation, watercolors, flint knapping and more, you can try your hand at as many trades as you can fit in the course of the immersive, three-day experience. WEDDING SERVICES

Love Is in the Mountain Air

Plan the perfect getaway for you and your plus-one.

If there's one thing we don't lack, it's dreamy views. And while we would never bully you into popping the big question, we have to admit that they make quite the perfect backdrop to do so. Many would agree—just ask the countless happy couples who have already gotten engaged in Gatlinburg. Others have even jumped straight to the altar. Because with chapels, venues, photographers and florists galore, everything you need to begin forever is conveniently just around the corner.

There's also plenty of romance to uncover for those who aren't ready for the leap or have taken it ages ago. Intimate spots to grab a cocktail or a dessert-for-two line the riverwalk, while unique experiences, like white water rafting, woodworking classes or moonshine tastings for two, are bound to bring you closer than ever. No matter where you look—and you don't have to look hard—there's a whole lot of love to be found in these hills.
