50th Anniversary of Ripley's Believe it or Not!

Celebrating Our 75th

A little bit of our story before we blow out the candles

Seventy-five years sure is a long time to be at something. Since our incorporation in 1945, we've been hard at work turning a little-known outpost of the Great Smokies into America's preeminent mountain home. We didn't do it on purpose—at least not at first. Initially, our growth was a matter of survival. It was only over many years and challenges that tested our mettle that we became the place everybody knows about, even if they've never been.

Since 1945, millions of people and multiple generations of families have made the drive up the Great Smoky Mountains Parkway and into the heart of Gatlinburg. Over seven and a half decades, our restaurants have served untold numbers of feel-good meals, from pancakes to ham hocks to Tennessee barbecue. Our hotels, motels, lodges and cabins have played host to reunions, honeymoons, first dates, girls' getaways and boys' trips. Our attractions continue to delight and surprise all ages, races, colors and creeds.

This guide won't just tell you what to do, see, and eat—it'll tell you why, exactly, you should do these things, and why they matter. It'll tell you about who built this place up and nurtured it over time and across generations.

This guide is a celebration of our way of life, and an homage to the dreamers and tall tale tellers who made this tiny town into something big from scratch. While the look of the place has changed quite a bit over the years, the most important bits—our heritage, the resourcefulness of our forefathers and foremothers, our love for the land—have been preserved and handed down through time. And now they're here for you to love and cherish and enjoy, just as much as we do.

So take a few minutes to get to know us a little better. Pull up your favorite rocking chair and find yourself something sweet to drink while we tell you the story of Gatlinburg over the last few decades.

And if you feel so inclined, come see us soon and help us celebrate 75 years of America's Mountain Home, Gatlinburg.

A Once-Abandoned Mill Comes Roaring Back to Life

If the Roaring Fork Motor Nature Trail is your escape route from the hustle of city life, arriving at Ely's Mill means you have officially left modern Gatlinburg behind.

The 94-year-old property sits on 25 acres of pristine, natural landscape alongside Roaring Fork Creek. It is a journey back in time to when people coexisted with the mountains and lived off the land. It is a piece of mountain history. But the Ely's Mill experience is not a contrived one. In fact, what you find there today is much like you would experience during the mill's heyday.

In the early 1920s, Andrew Jefferson Ely, a successful lawyer and businessman, understood that as progress and modernization moved people forward, they would increasingly long for a return to nature, an escape from city life. He built Ely's Mill in 1925 as that refuge, employing nearly half the county at one time or another to help construct it. The mill itself would be used for furniture-making and grain milling, and feature a showroom where talented local craftsmen could display their wares.

The mill thrived as a mountain escape until Ely's passing in 1967, when it fell into disrepair. His granddaughter, Ruth Wellborn, spent her childhood visiting the mill and was determined to keep her grandfather's vision alive. After graduating from college, she moved to the property and began to refurbish it, piece by piece. When she reopened it, she sold antiques, which were popular at the time, before shifting to local crafts. As a result of her work, Ely's Mill is once again a rare historic find tucked into these great Smoky Mountains.

HERITAGE

The items sold at Ely's Mill are a celebration of our local culture. Whenever possible, Ruth sells crafts and items made within 100 miles of Gatlinburg, from brooms and baskets to honey and soap. Ruth herself weaves and spins, and is proud to buy items from many of the same families who sold her grandfather their wares in the 1930s.

And while Ruth sees Ely's Mill's history as a living one, she embraces evolution and responsible expansion so that others can enjoy this journey back in time. Guests can now rent one of two cabins at Ely's Mill, or even book the property for a wedding or photo shoot.

"I want to preserve a piece of old Gatlinburg and keep it as little and old-timey as I can," she says. "It provides a habitat for creatures, and a habitat for us."

In return, Ruth hopes that visitors find the escape to Ely's Mill as fulfilling as she does.

"When I see people who say, 'this place has changed me,' that's the best. That's what keeps me in."

As you travel through Gatlinburg, be sure to take a detour back in time to celebrate our town's roots and the craftsmanship, legacy and grit that thrive in these mountains.

Panoramic Pleasures

A Breathtaking Look Over the Mountains and Through the Woods

Millions of visitors make their way to Gatlinburg every year, as much for the many attractions as the beautiful scenery and the welcoming people. But Gatlinburg also boasts one feature that combines it all—SkyLift Park.

Hop on one of the iconic yellow chairs and you are transported up 500 feet to the top of Crockett Mountain and away from the bustle of the main > strip. And when you reach the top, you absolutely must turn around for a view that will leave you breathless. Hopefully, Marcus Watson will be there to watch > > you do it.

ATTRACTIONS

PG. 28

"We just love that reaction when someone sees the beauty of the Smokies for the first time from this vantage point," he explains. "Taking in that full panoramic view—it's the full Gatlinburg experience."

Watson has seen quite a few of those reactions over the years as a Gatlinburg native who has worked for the park on and off for ten years. He currently serves as the marketing coordinator for the attraction, which is as connected to his family as any heirloom.

Watson's grandfather was general manager of SkyLift Park for 27 years, and his father, the current general manager, has worked there for 42 years. His cousin is currently the operations manager.

As Watson likes to say, "It's corporately owned but family operated."

With such deep family roots, the Watsons have seen the evolution of the park and have a profound appreciation for those who have worked to make it what it is today. It was first built in 1954 as a single chairlift and evolved into a three-seat chairlift in 2017. In 2019, SkyLift Park became home to North America's longest pedestrian suspension bridge, SkyBridge, a can't-miss attraction for any Gatlinburg visitor.

SkyBridge is 680 feet long and 150 feet off the ground at its highest point, where visitors can peer down through glass panels to the valley below. The thrilling experience and astounding views draw people from all over the world, many of whom will come back year after year. Watson and his team love hearing about the family traditions forged around SkyLift and now SkyBridge, and often see families posing for photos that have been taken for generations. But it doesn't surprise him. He has been sharing his mountain home with visitors his entire life.

"Being around the beautiful Smoky Mountains has always been the highlight of my life and one of the reasons I continue to live here. I truly believe that when you come visit here, the guests also have a sense of feeling at home. The people, the beauty it's all so welcoming," Watson says.

During your visit, why not start your own tradition and take a ride up on the SkyLift? Marcus will meet you at the top and show you a view you never expected and an experience you will never forget.

Pancakes With a Side of Gatlinburg Heritage

Starting the day off with fried cinnamon rolls, sky-high pancakes or a three-egg scramble is hard to beat, but somehow enjoying those dishes in a place steeped in history and authenticity is even more satisfying. Such is breakfast at Crockett's Breakfast Camp, a place with a rich backstory and the descendants around to tell it.

Crockett's is named for David Crockett Maples, a frontiersman, honored soldier and family man. After serving in the Union Army, he and his wife operated a supply store at the foot of Mount LeConte that was well-known for its breakfasts. As a skilled mountain man, Maples often served as a guide for people traveling through the Smokies. On one occasion, Maples got stuck in a blizzard and suffered severe frostbite. Both of his feet had to be amputated, but he soldiered on, crafting his own wooden feet and remaining a skilled outdoorsman until his death in 1928 at age 88.

Maples' legacy lives on in Gatlinburg, not just through reputation, but from his actual descendants. David Ogle, a founder of Crockett's Breakfast Camp, is one of them. Ogle is named after Maples and is an eighth generation Tennessean. As a native son and a great-great-grandson of Maples, Ogle possesses that same pioneering spirit. Born nearby in Sevierville, he settled in Gatlinburg after college and has been involved in the development of the area ever since. You'll find the Ogle name on cabins, creeks, roads and place names, and David has continued the Ogle legacy with hotels, restaurants and real estate. Through his involvement in the area, he has worked to ensure that, while the region evolves, it never loses sight of the past.

Ogle and his cousin came up with the concept of Crockett's Breakfast Camp to provide visitors with an enjoyable breakfast experience while giving them a true taste of Gatlinburg's roots. What better way to do that than by paying tribute to their noted ancestor?

"People are interested in the history of the place. We want to tap into that," he explains. "We're very proud of our heritage here. It's a long history and an interesting one."

While Ogle is a successful businessman, for him, Crockett's is not just about commerce; it's about his family, who they are and where they came from. He strives to highlight that history and give guests an authentic experience. He has found that by sharing his history, visitors have a deeper appreciation for their time in Gatlinburg and feel more connected to the

If you're looking for a meal that will feed your stomach and your soul, venture over to Crockett's Breakfast Camp and enjoy a true taste of that pioneering Gatlinburg spirit.

Whittle While You Work

Carving a Place in Gatlinburg History

After 50 years of carving, sanding, and finishing, it wouldn't be unreasonable to think that wood might have lost its luster for Chris Compton. But it's far from the truth.

Compton is the owner of The Wood Whittlers, home of handcrafted wooden masterpieces and holder of Gatlinburg's oldest business license. The shop was founded by Compton's father in 1944 and opened in its current location in 1968. And despite all that history, Compton continues to be fascinated by his primary material.

Compton is a Gatlinburg native and his Smoky Mountain heritage goes back many generations. It's important to know that about Chris to truly understand the roots of his craft and his passion for it. Being from these parts instills some special qualities in our locals. There's the independent spirit and the entrepreneurial attitude; the devotion to our mountain legacy and determined grit. But above all, there is a trait of artistry and creativity that thrives in so many of our residents. We are home to the Great Smoky Arts & Crafts Community, the largest independent gathering of artisans in the United States. These artisans carry on the tradition of making crafts born of necessity, perfected over time and passed down through generations, just like the Comptons.

Chris's father discovered his talent early in life. During a childhood illness, he made doll furniture with a pocketknife to pass the time. When he was able to walk again, he sat on the side of the road and sold the furniture to passerby. In the 1930s, he worked for other craftsmen making furniture before enlisting in the military. When he returned home, he put his talent on display by opening The Wood Whittlers, crafting handmade, one-of-a-kind pieces.

Chris joined his dad in the family business after graduating from high school, and 50 years in, he's still passionate about his craft. Each piece, whether it's a $20 vase or a $6,000 table, gets considerable care and attention. He uses lacquer finish on all sides of every piece, "because both sides are beautiful," and puts on at least 20 coats to retain the wood's true clarity for years.

Compton takes his family legacy seriously. He's very picky in selecting artists whose work he will showcase and doesn't use any computerized equipment. He's proud to say that his methods are the same as his father's in the 1940s. By honoring that craftsmanship, Compton has earned a reputation for being the go-to for all wood crafts. When people find interesting pieces of wood, he is the first person they contact. And when visitors want to bring something home from Gatlinburg that was made here and can only be found here, The Wood Whittlers is where they go.

Chris owes the longevity of the family business to the many customers who continue to visit him every year. Thanks to them, he gets to continue pursuing his passion. And while he loves seeing familiar faces, he'd love to share his shop's impressive work with some new ones. Come explore the unparalleled talent of our artisan community and take home a piece of Gatlinburg from the Comptons' impressive shop.

Boom Town

What a difference a few years make

Like all great places, our story starts long before an official founding. For us, what began with one man's vision for a new home has blossomed into a mountain paradise that welcomes nearly 12 million guests annually. The Gatlinburg of yesteryear may not look anything like the Gatlinburg of today in sheer scope, but in spirit and attitude, it remains as unchanged and as true to its heritage as ever.

1802

South Carolinian
William Ogle fells a few trees to mark the spot of his future family home. William dies shortly thereafter of malaria, but his wife,
Martha Jane Huskey
Ogle, takes up the cause and relocates the Ogle clan from South Carolina to what is now recognized as White Oak Flats.

The Pi Beta Phi Fraternity of Women found the Settlement School (later to become Arrowmont School of Arts and Crafts) just outside of the future Great Smoky Mountains National Park.

1920s

The logging industry takes off. In 1924, the Smoky Mountain Hiking Club explores the Smokies.

1940s

President Franklin Delano Roosevelt dedicates the Great Smoky Mountains National Park on September 2, 1940. Gatlinburg welcomes its one millionth visitor six years later.

1930s

A trio of new lodging options, catered to adventure-seeking travelers, open this decade including The Greystone Hotel, The Riverside Hotel, and The Gatlinburg Inn.

1950s

Attractions-growth is on the rise—in some case, quite literally. In 1954, the Gatlinburg Sky Lift opens and the following year, the Hunter Hills Theater entertains its first crowd.

2000s

With an eye toward preserving the past and building toward the future, the new millennium ushers in Ripley's Aquarium in 2001, Rocky Top Sports World in 2014, the Anakeesta Outdoor Attraction in 2017, and just last year, the Gatlinburg Sky Bridge opened as the longest pedestrian bridge in North America.

1960s

The Gatlinburg Ski Resort, initially founded as a private club in 1962, soon becomes available to the public, offering two ski runs, a lift, an ice rink, and a lodge. It's still Tennessee's only ski resort.

1990s

The Smoky Mountain Winterfest kicks off the decade, and Hollywood Star Cars is established in 1996.

From the launch of the Space Needle at the start of the decade, to the founding of the Sweet Fanny Adams Theater toward the end, the 70s were a busy time for Gatlinburg. The decade claims the arrival of Hillbilly Golf, Ripley's Believe It or Not, The Village Shops, Ober Gatlinburg Aerial Tram, and the first ever July 4th Midnight Parade and Fantasy of Lights Christmas Parade.

1980s

A quaint little place called Dollywood opens, and the Gatlinburg Convention Center opens for business.

Wander far enough into the park, and you'll spot the infamous Rainbow Falls that gets its name from a localized mist that produces rainbows any time there's a sunny afternoon. Hike high enough and you'll discover fields fit for a sit-"The old frontier, that put the down dinner for a hundred on Andrew's Bald.

While ancient, the Smokies have only been a designated national park for 80 years. It was only through the collaborative efforts of farmers, businessmen, civic leaders, volunteers, and even early automobile clubs like the AAA (the proposed Great Smoky National Park would be appointment driving unlike any other in our nation's developing highway system) that the park came to be.

hewed their homes." Since being dedicated "for the happiness of the -Franklin D. Roosevelt American people" in 1940 by President Franklin Roosevelt, the Smokies have been visited more than any other national park in the nation. While much of the Park's popularity is owing to the majesty of the mountains themselves, of course, it's also one of the few free parks in our nation's national park system (you can thank the history of the formation of the Newfound Gap Road, otherwise known as US 441, for that).

When you visit the Park, you're not just visiting an icon, or one of the most breathtaking natural beauties in North America—you're visiting a part of our heritage, too. Just a few miles in, you'll find Trentham Cemetery, where generations of mountain natives are buried. Southwest of there, you'll see the Gregg-Cable House, still standing right where it did when it was built in 1879. And see that field full of mountain laurel? That's where the children of Noah Ogle—descendants of Gatlinburg's first family—once played.

The City of Gatlinburg took yet another next step in its pursuit as a Green City by installing 26 solar-powered, animal-proof, trash compacting waste receptacles along the Parkway.

Gatlinburg businesses are committed to sustainability. Ripley's Aquarium of the Smokies is the first business in Gatlinburg to install solar panels to compliment their array of energy efficient practices. Hilton Garden Inn Gatlinburg and Nantahala Outdoor Center are both Leed Certified Silver.

It takes a lot of work to keep Gatlinburg looking pretty

From breathtaking landscapes and mountain views to rivers and waterfalls, the environment and diversity of wildlife are a foundational part of the visitor experience in the Smokies. As stewards of the majestic Great Smoky Mountains National Park, residents and businesses of Gatlinburg are committed to preserving the natural beauty and wildlife for future generations to enjoy.

Visitors often ask why there are no recycling bins in Sevier County. Sevier Solid Waste Inc. has created a world class recycling and composting facility that renders recycling bins obsolete. The plant successfully handles garbage generated by millions of visitors each year by separating organic waste from recyclable materials. Food, paper and cardboard are placed in aerobic digesters and eventually become compost. Non-organic materials, like metals and plastics, are separated, cleaned and prepared for recycling. For more information on the green innovations in Gatlinburg, visit Gatlinburg.com/green.

Bear Aware

Black bears have been roaming the Smokies longer than we've been perfecting moonshine—so we've grown accustomed to learning their ways and making nice. If you happen to see one during your stay, here's how you can keep your cool and live to tell the tale.

IF YOU SEE A BEAR

- Back away from it in slow, steady steps
- Bring children and pets indoors

IF THE BEAR DOESN'T SEE YOU

- Make the bear aware of your presence by yelling and making noises to intimidate it—this will encourage it to leave
- Then, follow the steps above

GENERAL BLACK BEAR TIPS

- Never approach bears, no matter how cuddly they look
- Don't place food outside in an attempt to attract them
- In-use grills and picnic areas should be attended at all times
- Deposit trash in one of the many animal-resistant cans or dumpsters all over Gatlinburg and Great Smoky Mountains National Park
- Don't leave food in your car or in coolers outside the cabin

WINTER

Take advantage of our vibrant holiday events like the Festival of Trees, the world-famous Fantasy of Lights Christmas Parade and winter sports.

Escape to paradise and see why Margaritaville Resort is rated Gatlinburg's #1 hotel on TripAdvisor and recognized by USA TODAY as the country's Best New Hotel! The Resort is fittingly located on its own river island at the heart of downtown beside Ripley's Aquarium and Ole Red's. Beautiful and spacious guestrooms feature balconies, fireplaces, wet bars, and oversized bathrooms with rain showers. Dine over the river at the Landshark Bar & Grill or by the pool while your family plays on the double-loop slide or splash pad, rejuvenate at the full-service St. Somewhere Spa, or just relax in the extra-large hot tub, by the fire pit, or in a hammock along the river. Banquet space and full catering services are available.

Creature Comforts

Some mountain towns are all mountain and no town (but not us)

We've had 75 years to get good at welcoming people to the Smokies, but over double that as a community. That's given us a bit of an unfair advantage when it comes to building infrastructure 1,289 feet above sea level. These next few pages will tell you everything you need to know about who to turn to when it comes time to build your dream mountain home, where to buy extra fixins when there's an unexpected guest at the campfire, or even where to land your private plane.

Celebrating 50 Years in Gatlinburg

On May 30, 1970 Ripley's Believe It or Not! opened its doors in downtown Gatlinburg. The Odditorium was an instant sensation and continues its prominence today, as thousands come to see its weird and wonderful curiosities. Through the years, the museum has had several new looks, but none as stunning as the striking facade in the latest renovation completed in 2019.

What began with founder Robert Ripley's global trek across 200 countries seeking the world's strangest oddities has transformed into a legacy of entertaining people with the truly fascinating. In Gatlinburg, Ripley's Believe It or Not! has been bringing that tradition to our visitors for 50 years, showcasing hundreds of strange and remarkable oddities that go beyond just pure spectacle to challenge reality itself.

"Robert Ripley's catch phrase "Believe It or Not!" has been a household expression for 100 years," says Ryan DeSear, Regional Manager, Ripley Entertainment. "Here at Ripley's Believe It or Not! we are proud of our legacy of bringing top notch family entertainment to our visitors for the last 50 years in Gatlinburg and are looking forward to sharing Robert Ripley's passion for other cultures and civilizations for another half century."

So be sure to swing by and have your mind-blown by the best in family entertainment. You won't believe it till you do.
