CITY OF GREENSBURG

EMPLOYEE SPOTLIGHT

Chad Jones

FIREFIGHTER / EMT
FIRE DEPARTMENT

Chad Jones has served the City of Greensburg as a Firefighter/EMT for six and a half years, bringing a strong commitment to protecting and serving the community he and his family call home. Originally from Oldenburg, Indiana, he graduated from Batesville High School and began his firefighting journey as a volunteer at age 18 before becoming a full-time firefighter. He moved to Greensburg in 2019 and has called the community home ever since. Before joining the fire service full-time, he worked in construction and continues to do construction work on his days off.

One of the things Chad enjoys most about his job is serving the community where his family lives. Working in Greensburg allows his family to visit him at the station during evenings and weekends, even while he works 24-hour shifts. He also enjoys participating in Fire Prevention Week, when firefighters visit local schools, give students tours of the fire trucks and teach them about fire safety. One of his favorite parts of the week is getting to see his own children at their schools.

Something people may not realize about being a firefighter is the time spent away from family while working 24-hour shifts every third day. This schedule can mean missing birthdays, holidays and other important family events. Despite these challenges, Chad values the opportunity to serve his community and make a difference in the lives of local residents.

Outside of work, family is a major part of Chad's life. He and his wife, Farren Jones, have six children—five boys and a youngest daughter—and are raising their family to be followers of Christ. Weekends often include attending baseball games, camping or going to four-wheeler races. The family also looks forward to their annual vacation to Florida, a tradition they have continued since getting married.

One of the things Chad loves most about Greensburg is its small-town feel, combined with the convenience of local stores, restaurants and parks where he and his family can spend time together.

We are grateful for his dedication to serving the City of Greensburg and for the sacrifices he and his family make in support of our community. We are proud to recognize him as part of our Greensburg Fire Department team!
