

Born in Jackson Hole, Zachariah's early experiences cultivated an intrinsic appreciation for travel and diverse environments. His upbringing spanned several of North America's notable destinations, from Santa Barbara and Telluride to Vancouver and Naples. He returned to Jackson Hole in 2010 with his wife, Shari. Together they now cherish their roles as parents to a spirited 4 year old son, Silas.

Professionally rooted in the jewelry industry, Zachariah carries forward a second-generation legacy. His global pursuits are motivated by an unwavering commitment to source quality gems for his clients. As the founder of Jackson Hole Jewelry Co, Zachariah prioritizes crafting pieces that resonate with both visitors and the local community. Beyond his design work, he maintains a strong community presence, actively participating in philanthropic partnerships and initiatives.
