

Alex Lemieux, The Wort Hotel

Alex first visited Jackson Hole during the summer of 2002. From the first glimpse of the Tetons, she knew that she would be back. Seven years after her first visit, Alex took a risk and moved from the East Coast to Jackson without a job or place to live. Prior to moving to Jackson, she graduated with a bachelor's degree in Sociology from Colby College in Waterville, Maine. Following her passion for travel and hospitality, in 2010 she took a position at the Painted Buffalo Inn as the Sales and Marketing Director, which eventually led to her current role as the Director of Sales & Revenue for the historic Wort Hotel. In 2018 Alex helped launch the Chamber's Young Professionals of the Tetons organization, of which she currently serves as the co-chair. Alex is actively involved in a number of the community's organizations, including Womomentum, Leadership Jackson Hole (as an alumna) and of course, the Chamber. In her free time Alex enjoys skiing, hiking, biking and mountaineering with her husband, Jared, her daughter Cora and their dog, Summit.
