

Morgan Albertson Jaouen, Jackson Hole Historical Society and Museum

Morgan Jaouen is the Executive Director of the Jackson Hole Historical Society and Museum. She was that kid who begged her parents to take her to museums and historical reenactments whenever possible. Turning that childhood passion into a career, Morgan has degrees in archaeology and historic preservation and has been working in the cultural resource management field for the last 10 years, including with Grand Teton National Park and the Alliance for Historic Wyoming before landing at the JHSM. Committed to the history and community of Jackson Hole, Morgan oversees the JHSM's programming, strategic planning, financial management, special events, and fundraising. Morgan also serves on the JH Public Art Task Force and is an advisor for the Teton County Historic Preservation Board. When not at the Museum, Morgan can be found out on the mountain bike trails, ski slopes, or investigating historic cabins.
