RUGGED BEAUTY

MYSTERY & MAJESTY

Join excursions to uncover the 6,000 years of history recorded in this region's stony landscape, where untold generations have labored to mine copper amidst towering white pines. Explore life deep underground as a miner, walk through the mansion of a former copper baron, or hike along the rocky shores of Lake Superior through preserved forests. The land and the people here are deeply intertwined—both are beautiful and rugged.

The Keweenaw Peninsula lies in the heart of Lake Superior, dotted with small towns settled during the area's copper boom spanning the 1800s and 1900s; many of which are located along the Keweenaw's 125 miles of shoreline. It beckons to all who seek the persistent mysteries of human endeavor, the soft sound of waterfalls, and the warm local culture that flourishes in cooler climates.

WILD & FREE

Our region is home to hundreds of miles of gentle trails, countless beaches, and thousands of acres of pristine wilderness. While many visitors enjoy exploring the Keweenaw's backcountry, the area's collection of national, state, and local parks offer access to an abundant collection of natural and historical attractions all within an hour (or less) of the pier!

The Keweenaw National Historical Park plays a central role in museum preservation; along with a collection of 20+ heritage sites that allow visitors to explore the region's history and the mining industry's impact on society. Popular experiences include tours of the Quincy Mine and Delaware Mine, the A.E. Seaman Mineral Museum, the Calumet Theatre, and various lighthouse tours.

DAVE LORENZ
VICE PRESIDENT, TRAVEL MICHIGAN

Visiting the Upper Peninsula was a long-held dream come true. The experience exceeded all my expectations. Houghton served as a picturesque gateway to the U.P. The beauty of Lake Superior took my breath away with both natural splendor and deep-rooted history!

The historical architecture, the museums detailing the copper boom, and the friendly locals sharing anecdotes made me feel like I was not just a tourist, but part of a living, breathing narrative.

In Houghton, I found a piece of Michigan that was both new to me and felt like home. It's a rich experience any passenger would find rewarding.
