Juanita Bay Park Habitat Map

Juanita Bay Park is a 110-acre urban wildlife habitat area where nearly 200 species of birds, several small mammals, reptiles and amphibians make their permanent home or temporary resting point during migration. The diversity of the wildlife depends on the diverse vegetation found in the area.

The Juanita Bay Wetland contains six major plant communities.

A WET MEADOW

The wet meadow occurs in a wide band along the southern part of the wetland. It is bordered rather sharply by the sloping upland pasture to the south and by the shallow marsh to the north. Vegetation of the wet meadow is a very uniform pattern dominated by the perennial herb Creeping Buttercup.

The wet meadow phases through rushes and sedges to the marsh. The shallow marsh is dominated by Cattail, often forming a pure stand, and Interspersed in areas with Rushes, Reed Canary Grass. Willow and Yellow Iris.

C OPEN WATER

The open water community consists of White Pond Lily with submerged Water Milfoil and floating Duckweed.

SHRUB WETLAND

The shrub wetland occurs north and south of the wooded wetland and along a broken strip of higher ground between the marsh and open water. The shrub wetland exhibits a mosaic pattern of vegetation with various species of Willow dominating the greatest area.

E WOODED WETLAND

The wooded wetland contains the greatest number of plant species. Red Alder is the dominant tree species and Black Cottonwood is subdominant. Lady Fern, European Bittersweet and Salmonberry are prevalent in the thick understory. Groundcovers include Moss and numerous herbaceous plants.

INTERMITTENT MARSH

The intermittent marsh adjacent to the beaver pond is occupied by several species forming monocultural stands. European Bittersweet occurs along Forbes Creek. Reed Canary Grass is thick around the pond and clumps of Rushes occur along the

The Eastside Park Rangers are now affiliated with the Eastside Audubon Society.

For further information about the Eastside Park Ranger Volunteer Program or the Eastside Audubon Society, please call 425-576-8805. Interpretative tours are conducted by the Volunteer Rangers on the first Sunday of every month at 1:00 pm. Pre-arranged tours for community schools and special interest groups can be scheduled by calling 425-576-8805. Juanita Bay Bird Walks, sponsored by the Eastside Audubon Society and led by Mary Frances Mathis, are conducted on the third Tuesday of every month. April through September, walks begin at 8:00 am; October through March, start time is 9:00 am. During visits to the park should you observe any unusual or interesting sightings of birds or other wildlife, please report your sightings to Juanita@eastsideaudubon.org.

For further information regarding Juanita Bay Park, please visit the City of Kirkland website at www.ci.kirkland.wa.us.

The wildlife species list was updated by the Eastside Audubon Society on February 1, 2011.
