Plains Indian tribes, most predominantly Arapaho and Cheyenne Tribes, often traveled and hunted together in the central Great Plains. The Fort Laramie Treaty of 1868 left the Northern Arapaho without a land base, and by 1878, they were placed with the Eastern Shoshone on the Wind River Reservation.

Union Pacific Railroad track construction crews connected Laramie to the east coast on May 4, 1868. Passengers began arriving the same day and a regular train schedule was established less than a week later. The railroad brought in civilization, inspiring residents and newcomers to build a town out of the "hell-on-wheels" style tent city.

Fort Sanders, originally named Fort John Buford, was a frontier military post built on July 19th, 1866. It was later renamed in honor of Civil War General William P. Sanders. Erected to protect Overland Trail travelers and Union Pacific Railway workers from hostile Indian attacks, the remnants of the old fort can still be seen south of Laramie on Highway 287.

The Overland Trail (also known as the Overland Stage Line or the Cherokee Trail) was a stagecoach and wagon trail in the American West during the 19th century. While portions of the route had been used by explorers and trappers since the 1820s, the Overland Trail was most heavily used in the 1860s as an alternative route to the Oregon, California, and Mormon trails through central Wyoming.

Six Laramie women served as the first female jurors in the world - 1870

Housing more than 1,000 outlaws including the notorious Butch Cassidy, the Wyoming Territorial Prison served as a federal and state prison until 1903. The University of Wyoming used the prison grounds for the College of Agriculture for over 60 years following. The historic site was fully restored and opened to the public in 1992 as one of Albany County’s iconic historic museums.

In 1870, Edward Ivinson bought a city block for the spot of his future home. By 1892, this $40,000 mansion was complete with central heating, electric lights and running water. Quite the marvel of Laramie. Ivinson and his family made their fortune in Laramie and, all the while, gave millions back to Albany County and the city. The mansion is now home to the Laramie Plains Museum and can be toured.
Como Bluff, a famous geologic formation today, contained fossil remains from the Late Jurassic of the Mesozoic Era. Fossils from this area were collected on this ridge from as early as 1877 to as late as 1970, and the bluff is considered to be a major site for the early discovery of dinosaur remains. The University of Wyoming Geology Museum houses a large collection of Wyoming fossils.

Bill Nye (Edgar Wilson Nye) was the founder and editor of the Laramie Boomerang. He named the newspaper for his mule because of what he described as the “eccentricity of his orbit.” Nye’s son Frank said, something about the word “boomerang” piqued Nye’s imagination. “His mule, his mine, his newspaper, his (first) book (Bill Nye and Boomerang), all bore the trademark.”

The University of Wyoming was established as a land grant university in 1886, when Wyoming was still a territory. The new campus was located on 10 acres of land that had served as Laramie’s City Park, deeded to the town by the Union Pacific Railroad. The University’s first building, now called Old Main, was erected in the center of the former park. There were five faculty members and 42 students.

The Old Lincoln Highway (Hwy. 30), the first transcontinental highway across the US, began in 1912. It was completed in 1913 and later used as a footprint for Interstate 80. Today, much of its route in the Laramie Valley remains virtually unchanged and the Abraham Lincoln Memorial Monument (sculpted in 1959) stands at its highest point just east of Laramie.

The Snowy Range Scenic Byway was originally a wagon road built in the 1870s and in the 1920s was widened and smoothed using horse-drawn equipment. The road was paved in the 1930s and designated as the nation’s second Scenic Byway in 1988. After six years of working on the road, it was completed and became known as the “Great Skyroad.”

As word spread around the world about the invention of the “horseless carriage”, Laramie’s own inventor, Elmer Lovejoy, set out to build his own. On May 7th, 1898, Wyoming’s first gasoline powered automobile was built. Lovejoy went on to invent other modern devices such as an automatic garage door, the steering knuckle (still used today), and more. Lovejoy’s Garage is located in Downtown Laramie.

For many in the LGBTQ+ community, Laramie holds a different meaning. It is “The Laramie Project,” a place where the hate of two men shook the nation in 1998 with the murder of Matthew Shepard outside Laramie city limits. Mourners can visit the “Hidden Figures of Social Justice” murals as well as the University of Wyoming’s memorial bench dedicated to Matthew outside the Arts & Sciences building.
Activities Around Albany County

ALBANY, WYOMING
Nestled into a canyon at the base of the Snowy Range, this quaint resort town attracts thousands of visitors each year. Travelers can find rest, relaxation, and local lore at the Albany Lodge. Located a few miles from Rob Roy Reservoir, Albany and the small community of Keystone are a gateway point for anyone fishing, boating, ATVing, or snowmobiling through the Medicine Bow National Forest.

BUFORD, WYOMING
Buford is located along Interstate 80 between Cheyenne and Laramie and adjacent the eastern portion of the Medicine Bow National Forest. Originally located along the railroad lines on the approach to Sherman Hill Summit and now the Ames Monument, the area is now a ghost town after its lone resident for nearly two decades left the area in 2012.

CENTENNIAL, WYOMING
Located on the eastern gateway of the Snowy Range Scenic Byway (Hwy. 130) today, discovery of gold was what first lured miners, prospectors, and merchants to Centennial to seek their fortune. Historic mines still dot the Snowy Range, though gold never panned out. Butted up to the Medicine Bow National Forest, the area provided wood for the railroad ties connecting the Union Pacific and Central Pacific lines.

ROCK RIVER, WYOMING
Another town born from the ashes of "Hell on Wheels", Rock River was founded after the Union Pacific Railroad moved the railroad line west of the Rock Creek Station in 1898. Located 40 miles northwest of Laramie, about 250 people call the agricultural hamlet home. Explore Rock River's late 19th and early 20th century architecture in a friendly small-town atmosphere hard to come by in today’s fast-paced world.

TIE SIDING, WYOMING
Tie Siding is located in the southern part of Albany County, south of Laramie. Like many towns in the area, Tie Siding was connected to the booming railroad industry in the 1860s. History has it that Edward Ivinson originally stopped here before deciding to continue on to Laramie, going on to build the historic Ivinson Mansion now known as the Laramie Plains Museum today. It’s safe to say that Albany County would have been vastly different if he had settled in Tie Siding instead.
Did You Know?

• Laramie is the fourth largest city in Wyoming.

• Albany County was named after Albany, New York, the hometown of a member of the legislature of the Dakota Territory who named the county.

• Albany County's population is approximately 36,000, with 33,000 of that population living in Laramie.

• Laramie gets an average of 65 inches of snowfall each year with 300+ inches on the surrounding mountains.

• Albany County is home to the second largest wind eroded deflation basin in the world, the Big Hollow.

• Average wind speed in the county is 22 mph.

WOODS LANDING-JELM, WYOMING

Set alongside the soothing waters of the Big Laramie River, Woods Landing-Jelm offers a rustic peek at small-town life in Wyoming. A 25-mile drive southwest of Laramie (Hwy. 230), this mountain village is a chance to step back in time and enjoy old-fashioned hospitality and family values while enjoying the spectacular scenery. The Woods Landing Dance Hall was placed on the National Register of Historic Places on December 13, 1985. Beneath the oak inset patterned floor are 24 boxcar springs that give the floor bounce and flexibility for dancers. Now a resort, the dance hall offers a full service restaurant, general store, cabin rentals, and more.

The WIRO (Wyoming Infrared Observatory), an astronomical observatory owned and operated by the University of Wyoming, resides on top of Jelm Mountain. Although the observatory is usually only available for student teaching and professional research, the university hosts a free-day once a year in October. Contact the Physics Department at physics@uwyo.edu.

WYCOLO, WYOMING

Located at nearly 9,000 feet, the community of WyColo and WyColo Lodge are located in the southern part of Albany County and close to the state line shared with Colorado. This area is situated in the heart of the Medicine Bow National Forest, making it a great place for those looking for all kinds of recreation opportunities in any direction.

HISTORICAL MARKERS

Other points of interest in the area include the Overland Trail markers on Highways 230 and 130 and Old Fort Sanders, located south of Laramie on Highway 287, now home to the Cavalryman Steakhouse. The Overland Trail and Stagecoach Line was an alternate wagon route off the famous Oregon Trail. Passengers crossed this area as they headed westward to California, Oregon, and Utah in the late 1800’s. Fort Sanders was originally intended to protect travelers on the Overland Trail from hostile native tribes.

History & The West
Native Americans, fur trappers, frontier forts, the Union Pacific Railroad, and famous outlaws are just some aspects of Laramie’s rich western heritage — a heritage Hollywood was keen to build upon. Western movies and TV shows peaked in the 1950s and 1960s. From TV shows such as “Lawman” (1958-62) starring John Russell, “Laramie” (1959-63) starring John Smith and Robert Fuller to films like “The Man from Laramie” (1955) starring James Stewart, “Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid” (1969) starring Paul Newman and Robert Redford, Albany County has fascinated writers and directors alike. But America’s infatuation with Wyoming’s wide-open spaces and roughneck culture didn’t disappear after westerns fell from the limelight. “Hell on Wheels” (2011) starring Anson Mount focused heavily on the area and dedicated an entire episode to Laramie. While Laramie secured several A-list titles, the area was used in a slew of “B” movies as well. With a western on every major network and hundreds of popular western books, Laramie’s abundant history has inspired storytellers for more than a century.

Come experience Laramie’s interactive historical adventure tour, The Legends of Laramie.

We encourage you to explore Laramie’s downtown area, listed on the National Register of Historic Places. Enjoy the shops, restaurants, and historic remnants of this former hell-on-wheels town. Learn about the places where Laramie’s first citizens lived, worked, and made their mark on this historic town. If you’re lucky enough to be close by when a train comes into town today, close your eyes for a minute when you hear its whistle and imagine you have just arrived in the “Gem City of the Plains” more than 150 Years ago.

1. Laramie TV Show
   - 800 S. 3rd St.
   Laramie was an American Western television series that aired on NBC from 1959-63. A Revue Studios production, the program originally starred John Smith as Slim Sherman; Robert Fuller as Jess Harper; Hoagy Carmichael as Jonesy; and Robert L. Crawford, Jr. as Andy Sherman. Actress Spring Byington was later added to the cast.

2. Railroad Romance
   - 718 S. 1st St.
   The love story of General Jack Casement and his wife Francis. While tracks were laid coast to coast, a love story flourished across the miles. General Casement and his wife Francis, corresponded for 4 years as he oversaw the Union Pacific’s construction.

3. 2nd Street Brothels
   - 111 E. Ivinson Ave.
   Gentleman get in line and hear from Laramie’s ladies of the night. In the late 1800s, the saloons, dance halls and alleys of Laramie were packed with a cast of colorful women who entertained men for a living. Meet 5 of these women and hear about their lives.

4. Bucket of Blood Saloon
   - 213 E. Ivinson Ave.
   When Lawlessness was the only law in town. 150 years ago, justice in Laramie was served up by 3 violent lawmen: Asa Moyer, Con Waggoner and “Big” Steve Long. Ruling the town with an iron fist, “justice” often got bloody.

5. St. Matthew’s Cathedral
   - 325 E. Ivinson Ave.
   Before 1896, Laramie was in need of reform as it had 23 saloons, and not one church. Constructed from local limestone, St. Matthew’s Cathedral was built to tame the unruly masses. And today, it sits as the highest Cathedral in the nation at 7,276 feet above sea level.

6. Wyoming Women
   - 317 S. 2nd St.
   In 1869, the Wyoming territorial legislature became the first government to grant women the right to vote. Hear the notable firsts that set Wyoming apart in the suffrageette movement.

7. Bill Nye Humorist
   - 320 E. Grand Ave.
   Meet Laramie’s postmaster, Justice of the Peace and founder of the Boomerang newspaper.

8. The Original Courthouse
   - 525 E. Grand Ave.
   In the 1870s, the town of Laramie boasted more lawlessness than law. The existing Courthouse was constructed in 1933, after the original was demolished. Pan the 1872 Courthouse as it once stood.

9. Ivinson Mansion
   - 658 E. Ivinson Ave.
   The Crown Jewel of Laramie. In 1870, Edward Ivinson bought this city block for the spot of his future home. By 1892, this $40,000 mansion was complete with central heating, electric lights and running water. Quite the marvel of Laramie.

10. Wyoming Territorial Prison
    - 975 Snowy Range Rd.
    Originally built in 1872, the Prison ran on the Auburn Prison System. This required silence at all times, black and white striped uniforms and numbers replaced names for some of the most infamous criminals.

11. Jacques La Ramée
    - 535 W. Garfield St.
    Almost 200 years ago, a respected trapper disappeared without a trace. His mysterious disappearance has generated a dozen theories, but no answers. Decide what is fact, and what is folklore.

12. Overland Trail
    - 3100 Snowy Range Rd.
    The Overland Trail and Stagecoach Line was an alternate wagon route off the famous Oregon Trail. Pioneers crossed this area as they headed westward in the late 1800s.

13. Fires & Fighters
    - 2368 W. Jefferson St.
    After the Railroad Fires of 1871 and the Territorial Prison fire of 1872, the fire department was organized in 1875. Travel back to when fire trucks were powered by steam. Fires, destruction, and bravery — meet firefighters of Laramie’s Fire Department.

14. Rodeo’s Roots
    - 2934 S. 3rd St.
    Modern-day rodeo has its roots on the plains. These traditions live on today during the Laramie Jubilee Days Rodeo each July. While modern racing lives on in Laramie, see some of the Wild West’s bravest ropers, riders, and racers from days gone by in our tour video.

15. War Memorial Stadium
    - 222 N. 22nd St.
    The current stadium, War Memorial, was built in 1960 and replaced Corbett Field. Commonly referred to as “The War,” it is at the highest elevation of any NCAA Division 1 football stadium.

16. The Ames Monument
    - 209 Monument Rd.
    The Ames Monument stands before you today. But the town of Sherman, once a bustling stop along the railroad, is only a memory. Hear about the settlement before it vanished.

OVERNIGHT AT SUGARLOAF CAMPGROUND
To get a jump start on our weekend in the Snowies, we packed everything on Thursday night so that by the time Friday arrived, we were ready to roll out of town immediately after work. A stop at the Laramie Farmers Market, held Fridays from July to September, was a no-brainer for us.

EVENING TROUT FISHING AT LEWIS AND LIBBY LAKES
After arriving at Sugarloaf, we set up the tent, assembled our fly rods, and eagerly set off to Lewis and Libby Lakes, conveniently located just a short walk from our site. As the sun set above Medicine Bow Peak, we fished for cutthroat and brook trout, reflected on the busy week, and felt gratitude for the place we live.

HIKE MEDICINE BOW PEAK
On Saturday we woke with a purpose: to climb the highest point in southern Wyoming, otherwise known as Medicine Bow Peak. The peak looms just above 12,000 feet and gifts those who reach its top with stunning, unobstructed views of the entire range and surrounding valleys.

RENT UTVS FROM ALBANY LODGE
We packed up camp and headed down the mountain to the small town of Albany, home to Albany Lodge. To get there, pass through Centennial and turn south onto Highway 11. Albany Lodge is tucked into a canyon at the base of the Snowy Range and rents UTVs, kayaks, and snowmobiles, and also offers guided tours of the area. You can rent UTVs (also known as side-by-sides) by half or full days. We opted for a half-day, and from our UTVs, we saw parts of the Snowy Range that we have never seen before, faster than we had ever seen before.
Traveling across Wyoming on I-80, you will find some unique roadside curiosities and attractions. Make sure you stop to explore these gems of Wyoming history.

TREE IN THE ROCK
On Interstate 80 at Exit 333, this small tree has fascinated travelers since the first train rolled past on the Union Pacific Railroad. It is said that the builders of the original railroad diverted the tracks slightly to pass by the tree as they laid rails across the Sherman Mountains in 1867-69. The train used to stop here while the locomotive firemen “gave the tree a drink” from their water buckets.

AMES MONUMENT
On Interstate 80 at Vedauwoo (Exit 329), turn south and take a short drive to the Ames Monument. An unusual 60-foot pyramid-shaped monument, this haunting granite mass stands alone on the prairie and towers over the remains of the one-time railroad ghost town of Sherman. This monument was built in 1881 to honor the Ames brothers, Oliver and Oakes, who were influential leaders in the construction of the transcontinental railroad.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN MEMORIAL MONUMENT
The imposing Abraham Lincoln Memorial Monument (Exit 323) was sculpted by University of Wyoming art professor Robert Russin in 1959 to commemorate the highest point on the Lincoln Highway. Also look for the Henry Joy monument surrounded by a fence with four Lincoln Highway concrete markers. There are several displays inside the Summit Information Center and great views outside.

Did You Know?
- The Ames Monument marked the highest point on the U.P. Railroad at 8,247 ft (2,514 m).
- Vedauwoo (pronounced VEE-da-voo) is derived from the Arapaho word "bito'o'wu" meaning "earth-born".
- The Gangplank, a geological feature, provided an easy crossing for the U.P. Railroad. It is only visable from above.
- At its peak, Sherman, Wyoming had several hundred residents. Now it is a ghost town.
- The Old Lincoln Highway was the first trans-continental highway across the United States.
KNOW BEFORE YOU GO
When exploring the mountains and wilderness areas, it’s imperative to have a plan before you go in case a trailhead is full or a fire ban is in place. Stay updated and educated on the areas you are planning to visit.

PRACTICE LEAVE NO TRACE
Keep Wyoming’s beautiful places beautiful. In order for others to enjoy the same stunning rivers, forests, and mountains, please leave the area better than you found it. Pack out what you packed in.

RESPECT THE LOCAL COMMUNITIES
Albany County is excited to welcome you with its western hospitality, and folks ask that while you are visiting the Laramie area, you treat it as you would ask others to treat the community where you live.

WATCH FOR WILDLIFE
Southeastern Wyoming provides incredible wildlife viewing opportunities in every direction. Many who visit Wyoming are new to seeing wildlife, and it can be exciting when you see your first bear or moose. They share their outdoor spaces with tourists, and it’s important to know how to view them safely while respecting their space so that they stay wild and free.

COWBOY CHARACTER CHALLENGE
Discover why all trails lead to Laramie while learning more about the Cowboy Character ethics of responsible recreation with our new Cowboy Character Challenge. As people increasingly seek solitude in Wyoming’s wild, wonderful, and beautiful wide-open spaces, we encourage you to seek out new places to escape the crowds.

To help get you started, we’ve created the Cowboy Character Challenge as a way to help you discover new places and to help provide you with alternative plans when the parking lot or campground you chose might already be full. When you download the challenge and participate in each activity, you’ll be entered to win a number of prizes. You can enter to win when you check in at different campsites, hike or bike trails less traveled, take only pictures, and leave areas better than you found them, and more.

Complete the steps listed online and you’ll get one free Visit Laramie-Range Leather hat and be entered to win our end-of-season prize package including free rentals from Albany Lodge, gear from Laramie’s Basecamp and Atmosphere Mountainworks, a YETI cooler from Ace Hardware, and more.

PARTICIPATE IN THE COWBOY CHARACTER CHALLENGE
1. LIVE EACH DAY WITH COURAGE
Have the courage and integrity to recreate responsibly all the time, not just when someone is watching.

2. ALWAYS FINISH WHAT YOU START
Never leave a campfire unattended and always extinguish it completely. Fires should be cold to the touch. Always use established fire rings and check ahead with the local forest service office for restrictions.

In 2020, the Mullen Fire burned through 176,000 acres of the Medicine Bow National Forest affecting the native wildlife and several communities. Please follow any restrictions when you visit.

3. TAKE PRIDE IN YOUR WORK
Take pride in leaving the area better than you found it. Pick up after yourself or others, stay on the trails, obey all posted signs, and park in designated areas only. Plan ahead with a backup plan in case your preferred trailhead parking is full. When camping, it’s important to know where you can camp, plan ahead if reservations are required, and leave campsites better than you found them.

4. DO WHAT HAS TO BE DONE
Pay the day use fees, as they fund toilet facilities. Using provided facilities and cleaning up after pets protects water sources from contamination. When facilities are not available, plan to pack out waste, or dig a 6-8” deep cathole at least 200 feet away from water.

5. BE TOUGH, BUT FAIR
Downhill users yield to uphill users, always. Yield to others on all multi-use trails. Mountain bikers yield to hikers, hikers and mountain bikers yield to equestrians. Always leash pets in crowded areas and near wildlife.

6. RIDE FOR THE BRAND
When riding, always stay on designated trails and roads to protect vegetation. Treat the land with respect by seeking dry areas, as riding through mud and water damages trails and streams.

Conversely, if trails are unavoidably wet, do not create new trails and stick with the mud.

7. TALK LESS & SAY MORE
Respectfully engage with others when there is conflict. Have the courage to speak up and educate others on responsible recreation.

8. REMEMBER THAT SOME THINGS AREN’T FOR SALE (OR TO PET)
Take only pictures, keep only memories, and give someone else the joy of discovery by leaving nature as it is found. Keep animals wild by giving them plenty of space, and never feed a wild animal.

9. KNOW WHERE TO DRAW THE LINE
Preserve search and rescue resources by knowing your limits, equipment, and the area, and being wise about how you engage in your activity.

10. WHEN YOU MAKE A PROMISE, KEEP IT
Pledge to take care of Albany County’s public lands when recreating. A Cowboy always keeps their word.
Spring into Adventure
Southeastern Wyoming provides incredible nature viewing opportunities in every direction. The diverse terrain harbors moose, elk, whitetail deer, bears, beavers, and wolverines, while the sky is filled with the trilling melodies of songbirds and raucous cries of geese. The Deerwood Wild Horse EcoSanctuary to the west offers viewing opportunities for wild horses, and the Hutton Lake National Wildlife Refuge to the southwest offers more opportunities to view rare migrating birds. And while the opportunities for viewing may be plentiful, please be respectful and follow the area’s recreate responsibly rules (pg. 12) to help keep wildlife wild and allow others to enjoy the natural scenery.

WILDLIFE WATCHING

While out for a hike remember you are only visiting, as many critters call the national forest and the Laramie valley home. If you walk quietly and observe your surroundings carefully, you may spot a red fox stalking its next meal or a cottontail bounding through the brush. Chipmunks, badgers, coyotes, and snowshoe hares are all common here, and elusive wolverines have even been spotted.

For a glimpse of the sublime, a visitor to the Laramie area need only look up. The coniferous forests of Curt Gowdy State Park host nutcrackers, nuthatches, and chickadees, while reservoirs attract a spring migration of waterfowl. Community gardens at Green Hill Cemetery bring sparrows and warblers on their fall migration, and Jelm Mountain has a summer population of hummingbirds, sapsuckers, and magpies. The sweet song of Wyoming’s state bird, the Meadowlark, rings out on calm days and a patient visitor may even spot a Golden Eagle perched atop a tree or fenceline.

When driving around Laramie, keep an eye out for pronghorn, also called antelope by local residents because of their similar appearance. The fastest land mammal in the Western Hemisphere, pronghorn are able to reach speeds of up to 55 miles per hour (88.5 kph) over short distances and can even outrun a cheetah over long distances. True antelopes never inhabited North America, but 14 species of pronghorn once roamed the vast high plains of the American West. Only the modern pronghorn remains.

PRIME WILDFLOWER OPPORTUNITIES

Spring and early summer months are ideal for catching the wild flowers in bloom and watching the wildlife awaken from the long winter. In late spring, life along the Snowy Range Scenic Byway awakens. The Scenic Byway over the Snowy Range Mountains is one of the shortest of Wyoming’s scenic byways, both in length and in the number of months it can be driven. The Byway is the second highest mountain pass in Wyoming at just under 11,000 feet above sea level. Snow usually closes the highest section of the road about early to mid-November and snowplows traditionally open the road in May right around Memorial Day weekend. Locals ceremoniously make a trip over the byway and back every spring in celebration of winter’s end.

If you plan your visit anytime throughout the year, keep in mind that animals can be spotted most often at dawn or dusk, when waking up or before hunkering down for the night. Also, be sure to check ahead for any road closurers or advisories before traveling any back roads. For updated road information, check with the Wyoming Department of Transportation at wyoroad.info.

Did You Know?

- The Indian Paintbrush is Wyoming’s state flower.
- Wyoming’s state Dinosaur is the Triceratops.
- Black Bear, not Grizzly Bear, are common in the Medicine Bow National Forest.
- Black-Footed Ferrets, currently on the endangered species list, were reintroduced to Albany County in the 1990s.
- The Moose found in Wyoming are a subspecies called Shiras Moose.
Summertime Dreaming
MEDICINE BOW PEAK
Topping out at 12,014 feet, Medicine Bow Peak is the highest point in southern Wyoming. The most common hiking route starts from Lewis Lake, with a steep trek up 1,200 feet in elevation over only 1.6 miles to the boulder-strewn summit. This climb offers world-class views of the Laramie Plains and the glacial lakes below. Before heading out on a hike, be sure to read up on how to handle altitude.

The Medicine Bow National Forest provides year-round recreation opportunities. The months of July and August bring a gorgeous array of wildflowers, and wildlife sightings are not uncommon and may include critters such as pica, marmots, foxes, moose, and, less frequently but still prevalent, black bears, mountain lions, and wolverines.

VEDAUWOO
Vedauwoo Recreation Area is considered a rock climbing mecca. Here you will find some of the best climbing in the state, ranging from 5.0 to 5.14 difficulty with many places to practice crack climbing. Rock climbing at Vedauwoo can take on many forms: climbing, belaying, or repelling. Vedauwoo is derived from the Arapaho word “bitō’o’wu” meaning “earth-born.” The characteristic Sherman Granite hoodoos and outcrops of this region are over 1.4 billion years old, some of the oldest rock in Wyoming. The fabulous formations are due to an uplift of the Laramie Mountains that began about 70 million years ago, along with the erosion of younger layers of rock and sediment, which continues to this day.

Bike or hike the easy 3.2-mile loop that circles Turtle Rock in the Medicine Bow National Forest. From the gravel parking strip just above the main trailhead area, walk downhill to the paved area at the base of the weathered formation. Head northwest on the easy trail as it winds beneath aspen and squeezes between Turtle Rock’s boulder-strewn base and a marshy wetland to the south. This first section of trail affords close-up views of the piled, cracked rock and climbers making their way up the face, before gaining some distance from the formation as it turns east. Scattered fir and pine trees line the trail as it rolls over several small hills past the rock’s sloped backside.

PILOT HILL & THE SCHOOLYARD TRAILS
The Pilot Hill Project was a land swap completed in 2020 to connect the City of Laramie’s foothills directly to the 65,000 acres of national forest to the east. This connection covering nine square miles makes it possible to reach Pole Mountain and Happy Jack Recreation Area without use of the interstate, making it an ideal cycling, hiking, and equestrian public access route to the forest. It also protects open space, wildlife habitat, and Laramie’s aquifer recharge zone, providing the city with pristine drinking water.

The Schoolyard Trails can be accessed at several points near the edge of Laramie’s city limits. The trails here are established, well marked, and the gradual incline provides a fantastic view of the city and the Laramie Valley below.

As the Pilot Hill project has just launched, trail creation, signage, and amenities will be an ongoing undertaking over the next several years. A limited opening will allow new routes to be unveiled as they are created. See pilothill.org for volunteer opportunities, yearly events, and trail maps.

DISPERSED CAMPING INFORMATION
Have you planned a weekend camping, but there were no vacancies at the campground? Would you rather camp further away from other groups and families? Try your hand at dispersed camping to really experience camping in the national forest. Setting up your own campsite away from developed fee sites, also known as dispersed camping, is allowed throughout most of the national forest. Not every national forest has the same rules for dispersed camping so be sure to check regulations in advance.

Dispersed campsites aren’t necessarily harder to get to, opportunities range from sites miles into wilderness or right off a forest service road. For this form of camping you must bring everything with you as water, restrooms, and fire rings may not be available nearby. This also means that you have to pack out what you pack in and Leave No Trace.
Fall into Paradise

NORDIC SKIING & SNOWSHOEING
One of the best ways to enjoy the solitude of a wild Wyoming winter is stepping into a pair of cross-country skis or snowshoes. With miles of groomed trails and scenic rolling terrain, the Laramie area is home to boundless winter adventures.

FAT TIRE BIKING
Fat tire bike popularity is booming, and around Laramie you will find many scenic trails. Miles of groomed single track trails and forest service roads provide ample opportunity for exploration and entertainment. Laramie’s cycle shops are home to a growing community of bike enthusiasts and can provide information, rentals, and advice on where and how to best enjoy your ride.

SNOWMOBILING IN THE SNOWY RANGE
The Snowy Range earns its namesake with some of the most consistent and fluffy powder in the American West. Explore Albany County’s winter trails and play areas via motorized sled for the snowmobiling experience of a lifetime.

The Snowies boast over 200 miles of groomed trails and 120 miles of marked ungroomed trails, with 300+ inches of snow per year.

DOWNHILL SKIING
Thirty-five miles west of Laramie, the Snowy Range Ski and Recreation Area provides world-class skiing in the stunning alpine splendor of the Medicine Bow National Forest. Boasting 245 inches of snow each year, the 250-acre ski area includes two terrain parks and over two dozen trails catering to beginners and experts alike. As the resorts become crowded to the south of the Wyoming border, in the Snowy Range you’ll find yourself spending more time on the slopes and less time waiting in line for the next run.

For more information about the Snowy Range Ski and Recreation Area, call (307) 745-5750.

MAPS & PERMITS
Wyoming law requires every resident and non-resident to have a snowmobile permit. Decals, which accompany each permit, must be displayed on the snowmobile and are available at local snowmobile clubs.

Maps for all winter activities in Albany County are available at the Laramie Area Visitor Center and the local forest service office, the Laramie Ranger District. You can call or request information online. Scan the code below to view a list of all winter activity options for your trip to the Laramie area.

DEERWOOD RANCH WILD HORSE ECOSANCTUARY
The Deerwood Ranch is approximately 4,700 acres of Wyoming beauty. Three hundred fifty wild Wyoming mustangs call Deerwood home, not to mention the native deer, elk, coyote, and all manner of wildlife. With the Middle Fork of the Little Laramie River running through the property, there is year-round access to open running water. Abundant trees and willows provide refuge and great protection from the realities of Wyoming weather. The ranch is conveniently located approximately 35 miles west of Laramie and south of Centennial.

Though the ranch does not offer horseback riding, guided tours of the ranch are available. Call 48 hours in advance to schedule an appointment, (307) 399-9956.

Did You Know?
- The first dude ranch was founded in Wyoming, near Sheridan.
- When riding on trails, bicyclists yield to hikers and horses, hikers yield to horses, and those traveling downhill yield to uphill travelers.
- Cowboy traditions can be traced back as far as medieval Spain.
- Another name for a Cowboy is a Cow Poke.
COLD WATER TROPHIES
Worm, lure, or fly — Albany County’s rivers, lakes, and ponds are brimming with excitement for anglers of all abilities. Trout are a local favorite, and the Big and Little Laramie Rivers are abundant with Cutthroat, Rainbow, Brown, and Brook Trout. From guided float trips down the North Platte River, to trophy lunkers in the Laramie Plains Lakes, the Laramie area provides abundant premier fishing destinations.

THE BIG LARAMIE RIVER
The Big Laramie parallels Highway 230 from the Colorado border into Laramie and continues north of town. There are several public access points that are marked along the its route, including: Monolith Ranch Access, Pioneer Canal Access, and two scenic Jelm Accesses that wind through a canyon. Some of the best fishing in the area is even a short walk from downtown Laramie. Anglers report catching wild brown trout up to 20 inches long along the Laramie River Greenbelt in the heart of the city.

MEDICINE BOW NATIONAL FOREST
With two portions of the national forest on either side of the Laramie Valley, you can bet that there are hidden fishing holes waiting to be discovered. West of Laramie, the Snowy Range Scenic Byway (Hwy. 130) travels through the Medicine Bow National Forest for 30 miles, leading you to over 100 alpine lakes and remote babbling streams as it crosses the 10,847-foot Snowy Range Pass. Twin Lakes, North and South Gap, Bear Lake, the Shelf Lakes, Libby Lake, and Lewis Lake are all popular destinations for the serious angler.

LARAMIE PLAINS LAKES
The alkaline Laramie Plains Lakes are known for abundant fish food and abundant wind. These fertile waters support scud, caddis, damselflies, dragonflies, callibaetis, and chironomids, which in turn support enormous healthy trout. Fish are most abundant from early spring, right after ice-out, through mid-summer, and again in the fall.

COUNTY RESERVOIRS
Four reservoirs round out Laramie’s fishing options. Part of Curt Gowdy State Park to the east, North Crow Reservoir is a scenic fishery surrounded by Sherman Granite and beautiful wildlife. In northern Albany County’s Laramie Range, Wheatland Reservoir #3 aka “Wheatland 3” offers some warm water fishing, with walleye and tiger trout stocked for bonus species. Rob Roy Reservoir offers trout fishing by motor boat as well as camping in fantastic forested terrain. The arms of this lake make you feel like you have the space all to yourself, surrounded by fantastic ATV trails. Rounding out the county’s reservoirs is Lake Owen, a remote and prized fishery that may become your next secret spot.
Summer in Albany County means crystal-clear blue skies, gorgeous sunshine, and amazing summer water activities for the whole family. There are plenty of great ways to beat the heat and have fun in the Laramie area.

LARAMIE CITY RECREATION
What says summer more than a dip in a nice cool pool or waterslide? The Laramie Parks and Recreation Department maintains three terrific places to splash, swim, and cool off. The Laramie Recreation Center, the Washington Park Wading Pool, and the Undine Park Splash Pad. For details about each facility as well as hours of operation and closures please visit the Laramie Parks and Recreation website.

PADDLING
Paddle sports in Laramie are a fan favorite, with over 100 natural alpine lakes in the Snowy Range, miles of rushing water on the Big Laramie River, and scenic reservoirs including Curt Gowdy State Park.

Hiking into a remote lake with a kayak or paddleboard is its own magical experience. Envision yourself paddling in solitude beneath Medicine Bow Peak, fishing by canoe, or dipping your toes in crystal clear alpine waters.

The Big Laramie River runs highest in May and spring for a rush of adrenaline, but offers a leisurely paddle the rest of the season.

Laramie’s Basecamp and The Paddle House offer raft, paddleboard, and kayak rentals along with safety equipment, paddles, pumps, and everything you’ll need for a day on the water.

Laramie’s Basecamp
• 1404 Skyline Rd. - (307) 703-0172

The Paddle House
• 222 S. 2nd St. - (307) 460-3836

BOATING
There is nothing quite like zipping over the waves in a motorboat. Rob Roy Reservoir, Lake Owen, and Lake Hattie Reservoir have cement boat ramps and allow boats with combustion motors. Pay attention for restriction signage wherever you are trying to drop in.

SAFETY
Always wear your personal flotation device and watch the forecast for surprise changes in the weather. Share your plan and location with others before you go. Luckily storms in Wyoming pass quickly in summer, and you can get back out on the water in no time.

INSPECTIONS & LICENSES
Boats must be inspected at the state line due to invasive mussels. Be sure to wash your waders and equipment if you are coming from out-of-state, as well. Always remember to snag your fishing license at any of Laramie’s sporting goods stores, and plan to pay for parking areas and campsites in the national forest or state parks.

UNIVERSITY OF WYOMING
The heart and pride of Laramie is the University of Wyoming. Whether you are here as a prospective student, a proud alumnus, a Wyoming sports fan, or just a casual visitor, we hope you take a little time to tour the beautiful University campus during your visit.

The University of Wyoming was founded in 1886, and is Wyoming’s only four-year institution of higher education. Each year it welcomes over 14,000 students from all 50 states and 90 countries, making Laramie the melting pot of culture and bustling activity we love.

Affectionately called "UW" (You-Dubb), the University boasts over 80 undergraduate programs, small student-to-faculty ratios, and is one of the most affordable education experiences in the nation. Add to that the plethora of outdoor recreation here in Laramie, and you have a recipe for an unforgettable college experience.

Each weekend during the school year, Laramie is bustling with fans who come from far-flung communities statewide to watch Division I sports here on campus as part of the Mountain West Conference.

With the vibrant student population, you can be sure to find something entertaining on campus any day. Check the events calendar during your visit for symphony performances, live concerts, modern dance recitals, art exhibitions, and more.

Whether or not you catch an event, touring campus is a must for any visit. Spend a little time lounging in Simpson plaza, catch a bite to eat in the Wyoming Union, and spend a little time exploring one of the University’s seven museums to dive into Wyoming history, art, education, and more.

UNIVERSITY OF WYOMING
SPORTS & ATHLETICS
The electricity in the air at a University of Wyoming sporting event is an experience all its own. As the singular four-year institution of higher education in the state, the University of Wyoming is college athletics for the state of Wyoming. That means that when you watch sports in Laramie, the fans are not just Cowboys and Cowgirls fans — they are Wyoming fans. They wear the Steamboat logo with the pride of the entire state, from the Tetons to the Big Horns to Devils Tower. The spirit of Wyoming pride is unlike anywhere else. Our fans live and breathe Wyoming.

The University is home to 17 Division I NCAA sports teams, including football, basketball, soccer, wrestling, volleyball, swimming, diving, tennis, track, cross country, and golf. Tickets may be purchased at gowyo.com/tickets, or at the Athletics Ticket Office by calling (307) 766-7220.

If you are attending classes at UW and want to stay involved in friendly competitions, check out the campus recreation options available to students online. From club to intramural sports to the outdoor program, UW provides a wide variety of sports activities for all incoming students.
WYOTECH
As the educational hub of Wyoming, Laramie has paths for all types of students. If your future is in a mechanical vocation, look no further than the world-class automotive programs available at WyoTech.

With 9-month degree programs giving students hands-on immersive learning experiences, WyoTech is a fantastic choice for a technician career right out of the starting gate. During this time at WyoTech, students spend 60% of their time in the shop, gaining experience and knowledge in automotive repairs and maintenance. They are also trained in engine repair and management, drivability, drivetrain systems, chassis, and a specialty program of their choosing. The mechanic program also offers seven industry certifications to advance your knowledge and career as an automotive service technician.

Formerly known as Wyoming Technical Institute, WyoTech was founded in Laramie in 1966 and has provided automotive repair programs ever since, as well as a corp of passionate community volunteers. The first class in Laramie had 22 students housed in a 9,000 square foot building.

If you are interested in the automotive, collision, and diesel technology programs at WyoTech, visit their application at wyotech.edu.

ALBANY COUNTY CAMPUS OF LARAMIE COUNTY COMMUNITY COLLEGE
Established in 1968, Laramie County Community College is a full-service, comprehensive community college with a main campus in Cheyenne and a satellite campus in Laramie. LCCC - Albany County Campus offers the vibrant college town experience of Laramie as students complete one of many available associate degree programs.

University of Wyoming students benefit from the nearby community college as well, with a lower price tag and flexible online courses offered. Most courses transfer between the two schools' programs, so general education courses will transfer to the University of Wyoming as students finish their community college accreditation.

LCCC's Albany County Campus is located just across the road from the Laramie High School, making it a perfect way for high school students to get ahead with concurrent college coursework and take advantage of the state-of-the-art facilities. The hub in Laramie is a fully outfitted campus, including advising, counseling, financial aid, tutoring, clubs, and more.

To find out more about the Albany County Campus visit lccc.wy.edu.

Did You Know?

• The University of Wyoming is Wyoming's only four-year university.
• The Wyoming logo is named Steamboat, after a real bucking bronco born in 1896 near Chugwater, Wyoming. UW adopted the symbol in the early 1900s. The state adopted it in the 1930s.
• WyoTech once had seven sites. Now, Laramie is home to the only operating campus.
• The UW Student Union once contained a full-sized bowling alley.
• Quarterback for the Buffalo Bills, Josh Allen, got his big break as a UW Cowboy.
• Students who successfully land a pinecone in the T-Rex statue's mouth on the UW campus will ace their finals.
LARAMIE JUBILEE DAYS
Laramie Jubilee Days started in 1940 as a celebration surrounding Wyoming’s Statehood Day. Known as Wyoming’s Hometown Celebration, it has been a yearly event around July 10th ever since. Starting with a Kid’s Horse Show and ending with PRCA Rodeo, Laramie Jubilee Days is now a week-long celebration with a variety of events almost daily. After catching a rodeo, head downtown for street dances, live performances, and a carnival for the young at heart.

Check the schedule for updates at laramiejubileedays.org.

DOWNTOWN FARMERS’ MARKET
The farmers’ market breathes new life into the Historic Railroad Depot Park every Friday afternoon from July through September. Live music, fresh food, and cold drinks provide a friendly atmosphere as you shop local produce and crafts. Vendors sell a variety of locally-grown fruits and vegetables, fresh-baked pastries, handmade jewelry, artisanal cheeses as well as a variety of local arts and crafts.

For more information visit laramiemainstreet.org/farmersmarket.

THURSDAY LOCAL MARKET
The Thursday Local Market at Undine Park happens on cool grass under the shade of park cottonwoods. Visit this market weekly through the summer for a unique low-key shopping experience. Many of the same vendors from the Friday market are present, with some bonus gems and smaller vendors as well.

For more information visit thursdaylocalmarket.com.

LARAMIE BREWFEST
Enjoy the summer season in Laramie by relaxing in the heart of downtown while tasting and discovering the area’s craft brews. For the past 15 years, Downtown Laramie’s Brewfest has been an annual summertime event that has hosted over 2,000 participants sampling beers, listening to live music, and connecting with local vendors. Join the Laramie community in celebrating the awards and accomplishments of the seven local brewing companies southeastern Wyoming and northern Colorado have come to cherish.

Learn more about the festival at laramiemainstreet.org/brewfest.

FREEDOM HAS A BIRTHDAY
For decades, Freedom Has A Birthday has been Laramie’s premier 4th of July celebration. Festivities include plenty of free entertainment including music, giant slides, inflatables, ice cream giveaways, a pie eating contest, and so many more they can’t even be listed. Over 13,000 people attend this annual celebration that is sure to make lasting memories for every member of your family.

WYOTECH CAR SHOW
For over 20 years, WyoTech has hosted their annual summer car show on campus. With multiple categories to enter, students and car enthusiasts alike gather for a day filled with classic cars, hot rods, food trucks, and great company. Don’t forget to vote for your favorite entry.

Check the visitlaramie.org calendar of events for this event.

SHOP SMALL WEEK
Every year, starting on Shop Small Saturday after Thanksgiving, Laramie’s local businesses offer deep discounts, giveaways, extended hours, and fun activities for enthusiastic holiday shoppers. Historic downtown Laramie is full of one-of-a-kind gifts, handmade treasures, and plenty of western flair. Support the local community with a shopping experience found nowhere else.

Learn more at shopsmalllaramie.com.

LARAMIE POP-UP ART WALK
Join in the fun as downtown Laramie transforms into a dynamic gallery filled with live music and local art from emerging to seasoned artists.

The Art Walk usually takes place in September and is open to artists and performers of all levels and mediums. Support your friends, neighbors, or complete strangers during this week-long event.

Find the map and more information online at laramiemainstreet.org/popup.

HIGHER GROUND FAIR
The Higher Ground Fair came to life to promote the values of sustainable Rocky Mountain rural living. Events include speakers, live music, dances, wellness classes, and local vendors. Educational gardening, composting, recycling, farming, and ranching workshops draw from age-old traditions and modern innovations for rural sustainable living.

Learn more about this year's fair at highergroundfair.org.

FISHING DERBIES
Laramie is home to two long-standing fishing derbies. In the warm July heat, the Huck Finn Fishing Derby brings families to LaPrele Park to try their luck catching trout in the youth stock pond. Kids age 13 and under fish in 4 different age groups, with prizes for first fish, smallest fish, largest, and first to reach their limit. This long-standing Laramie tradition has been going on every summer for over 50 years.

For the hardy fisherman, the Laramie Plains Lions Club Lake Hattie Ice Fishing Derby is the event of the winter season. It usually takes place the first weekend of January, with a small registration fee. Awards are given for the top 5 largest fish as well as the winning smallest fish, with trophies and cash prizes.

Check the calendar of events at visitlaramie.org.

ELEVATION CELEBRATION
Going into its eighth year, Elevation Celebration is an all day live country music festival with food trucks, vendors, and great company. In previous years, this event was held in various locations around Albany County. Keep an eye out on the visitlaramie.org events calendar for the next epic venue.

BIKING & RUNNING EVENTS
One of the most well known races in the area is the Laramie Range Epic. The race, originally called the Laramie Range Enduro, started in 1998 with the course starting in downtown Laramie and ending 1,300 feet higher in elevation in the Medicine Bow National Forest. Over 20 years later, this race has transformed to maintain a traditional approach to a cross country mountain bike race, while adapting with the evolution of cross country culture.

Laramie and Albany County is full of biking and running enthusiasts. Be sure to check with the High Plains Harriers, the largest running club in southeastern Wyoming, as they have several races planned every year.
Experience the diverse music scene in Wyoming’s spirited college town. As the cultural capital of the state, Laramie has everything from intimate music venues for up-and-coming artists of any genre, to the big names that know Laramie is the place to be for large concert venues. No matter your taste, hitting the live music scene in Laramie is a must.

UNIVERSITY OF WYOMING
Thanks to the buzzing University, the production season is always packed in Laramie. Experience the finest in music with the University of Wyoming Symphony Orchestra, catch a theatre production, opera, or a modern jazz dance recital. Visit our events webpage as you plan your upcoming trip to see which events match up with your arrival dates.

The UW Symphony Orchestra tours throughout the Rocky Mountain region as well as hosting performances right here in Laramie. Concerts may feature collaborations with world-class soloists and University students along with a few community members. Under the direction of Dr. Michael Griffith since 1989, the symphony draws large crowds for regular concerts for each season.

The University’s music program is expansive, including jazz ensembles, a wind symphony, chamber orchestra, percussion ensemble and pan band, and three choir ensembles. The Balinese gamelan band is a special treat, as well as the well-known Western Thunder Marching Band. The Department of Theatre & Dance stages a wide range of performances, conferences, and events featuring students’ performing artistry. Recent renovations in the Buchanan Center for the Performing Arts have brought updates to the dance studios and theatres. We highly recommend catching an event at the Buchanan Center during your time in Laramie. Performances happen regularly, so be sure to check the box office for tickets.

For more information, visit uwyo.edu/finearts.

COMMUNITY PRODUCTIONS
Locals also enjoy producing their own creative shows throughout the year. During the summer months, catch the Laramie Municipal Band performing at the Washington Park Bandshell or the Laramie Dance & Arts Center students participating in the Laramie Jubilee Days events. You can’t miss a night at the Gryphon Theatre in the historic Laramie Plains Civic Center either. The 850-capacity venue hosts numerous events, ranging from local community productions to unmatched national and international touring productions and concerts.

Laramie might even surprise you with entertainment as you shop downtown. Live music and street dances are common during the summer and fall in the historic district where the downtown streets are closed off to daily traffic. While enjoying the weekly farmers’ markets, you can expect musicians or an improv troupe to make an appearance, too.

Several fantastic venues in the county offer outdoor live music through the summer. The Alibi Pizzaria in Laramie and Bear Bottom Bar & Grill in Centennial both have fantastic outdoor music stages with performances every weekend through the summer. For country music enthusiasts, The Cowboy Saloon & Dance Hall is a must-visit and hosts big names year-round.

Be sure to check online for other community events like bingo night at Bond’s Brewing Company or group square dancing with the Quadra Dangle Square Dance Club. Laramie has a wide variety of activities to choose from.

Check visitlaramie.org/events for upcoming shows and venues.
When you imagine Wyoming culture, do you picture Laramie? Those who call this region home consider Laramie to be Wyoming’s cultural capital. Many creatives call Albany County home and Laramie uniquely shows off its local artists. Take the Downtown Mural Walking Tour (pg. 32) after checking out the many fantastic galleries around town.

Laramie has seven galleries which showcase Wyoming culture. Be sure to check online for weekly hours and exhibitions that each gallery may have planned.

Did You Know?
- Southeastern Wyoming is home to several famous authors, including C.J. Box and Lee Child.
- The Laramie Mural Project has grown to include over 20 murals scattered across the city.
- Albany County has over 40 sites that are listed on the National Register of Historic Places that are consistently subjects for creative Wyoming-ites.
WYOMING TERRITORIAL PRISON STATE HISTORIC SITE
In 1872, the Wyoming Territorial Prison housed more than 1,000 “evil doers of all classes and kinds,” including the notorious Butch Cassidy. In 1903, after the completion of a new prison in Rawlins, the University of Wyoming incorporated the buildings and grounds into the College of Agriculture. Now a museum, visitors can walk into the strap iron cells where convicts were locked up, worked, and lived. The iconic site offers restored historic buildings, museum exhibits, nature trail, special events, and gift shop.

LARAMIE PLAINS MUSEUM
The Laramie Plains Museum, housed in the historic Ivinson property, is a distinctive look back at Laramie’s unique history. Rescued from a decade of decay and near demolition by the early 1970s, the 1892 mansion of early Laramie pioneers Edward and Jane Ivinson is the perfect showcase for guided tours of Laramie area history. For information on the museum’s seasonal tour hours and special events, call ahead.

LARAMIE HISTORIC RAILROAD DEPOT
The Depot is the only remaining building left from the once large Union Pacific presence in Laramie and was added to the National Register of Historic Places in 1988. The railroad is the reason for the city’s original existence, making the Depot an important part of Laramie’s historic legacy.

UW GEOLOGICAL MUSEUM
The University of Wyoming Geological Museum displays one of only five full Apatosaurus fossils in the world, along with “Big Al,” the most complete Allosaurus fossil ever unearthed. The museum boasts several interactive exhibits for adults and children alike. Admission is free, making for an enjoyable and educational experience without worrying about your pocketbook. Located on the UW campus next to an enormous Tyrannosaurus Rex statue, this treasure trove is open every day except Sunday and holidays.

UW ART MUSEUM
On the northern edge of campus, the University of Wyoming Art Museum and American Heritage Center rises like a steel mountain from the surrounding plains. In addition to housing one of the state’s finest art collections, the building also serves as a repository for manuscripts, rare books, and official archives including works from the comic book legend, Stan Lee. Admission is free.

UW PLANETARIUM
Also called the Harry C. Vaughan Planetarium, the UW Planetarium first opened in 1969 and has served the community for many years with shows for the public, for K-12 students, and for college astronomy teaching. Tickets for shows can be found on the UW Department of Physics and Astronomy’s website.

WYOMING WOMEN’S HISTORY HOUSE
Located in downtown Laramie, the Wyoming Women’s History House celebrates the achievements of 13 famous Wyoming women. Learn about Wyoming’s changemakers, the first woman to vote, Louisa Swain, and why Wyoming is called the Equality State. Call ahead to ensure there is a tour available during your trip, (307) 760-7771.

NICI SELF MUSEUM
Located in Centennial, Wyoming and partially housed in a 1907 Hahn’s Peak and Pacific Railroad depot, the Nici Self Museum exhibits depict the general history of the Centennial Valley. The museum is open Memorial Day through Labor Day and admission is free.

WILLIAMS CONSERVATORY
Located in the Aven Nelson building at the University of Wyoming, the greenhouse is home to over 600 tropical, neotropical, temperate, and arid species from around the world. Conservatory facilities are used by researchers, educators, students in both K-12 and post-secondary levels, artists, horticulture enthusiasts, and the general public. Admission is free.

The Laramie Mural Project

Founded in 2011, the Laramie Mural Project was a collaboration between the University of Wyoming Art Museum, local Laramie artists, and the Laramie Main Street Alliance. Since its founding, murals continue to pop-up around town. The tour below contains only the walkable, downtown murals.

Self-Guided Tours
The city of Laramie was founded in 1868 as a major stop on the Union Pacific Railroad (U.P.) — a place where steam engines were fueled, repaired, and made ready to haul passengers and freight. Early arrivals on the first trains included a volatile mixture of respectable, hard-working citizens from the East and a mixed bag of thugs who rode the rails while trying to stay one step ahead of the law. Within a few months, some of the West’s most notorious criminals threatened the town’s very existence, their rowdy and often murderous behavior driving away law-abiding people. Out of desperation, a citizens’ vigilante committee was formed to take control, capturing and hanging some of the worst offenders and causing others to flee to the next end-of-the-tracks town. With law and order established, good people like businessman and philanthropist Edward Ivinson and trailblazing Louisa Swain — the first woman in history to cast a vote in a general election — began to build a prosperous community destined to grow into a progressive university town with a stable economic base.

Learn about the places where Laramie’s first citizens lived, worked, and made their mark on this historic town.

Frequently been used for military drills.

1. Prexy’s Pasture
   The name supposedly refers to a hard-to-find university regulation that, along with a salary, the university president, or “prexy,” be given exclusive use of the pasture to tether his horse.

2. Ross Hall
   Constructed in 1959 and opened as a women’s dormitory in 1960, Ross Hall since 1976 has housed academic offices for a number of departments. The building is named for the nation’s first woman governor, Nellie Tayloe Ross, elected governor of Wyoming in 1924.

3. Knight Hall
   Officially named for Emma Howell Knight, who served as Dean of Women from 1911-1921. The structure served as a dormitory until 1971 and was converted into offices in 1972. When excavation began for the building, five bodies were unearthed, several with evidence of bullet wounds. Another body was found in 2004.

4. Hoyt Hall
   Hoyt Hall was named for the university’s first president, John Hoyt, who had also served as a Wyoming territorial governor. The structure now houses academic offices.

5. Cheney International Center & Student Health
   This building housed the School of Nursing until 2005 when that program moved to the Health Sciences Building. Previously, the location had been used for military drills.

6. Merica Hall
   The first dormitory building for women constructed on campus, Merica Hall was completed in 1908. It is named after Charles Merica, UW president from 1908-1912. Originally, this building was built of red brick, but it “stuck out like a sore thumb” amidst all the other sandstone buildings. So someone decided to paint the brick pink to blend in and it has remained that way ever since.

7. State Park
   When campus officials considered building the future Ross Hall, nearby residents were concerned that the area represented one of the last open spaces on campus. Consequently, the Wyoming Legislature passed a bill that set the land aside permanently as a Wyoming State Park. (Prexy’s Pasture was set aside also in the 1960s.)

8. Old Main
   This building comprised the University of Wyoming when it opened in 1887 — even before its construction was completed. As early as 1881, Gov. John Hoyt had requested that the State Legislature accept 65 sections of federal lands to establish a university. Action was not taken until 1885, however.

9. Aven Nelson Building
   Built in 1924 to house the University Library, the building itself is named for one of the original five faculty at UW, a man who had been quarried.

10. Arts & Sciences Building
    Originally known as the Liberal Arts Building, the contract for its construction was let in January-February 1935. At the time, about 28 percent of the stone for the structure already had been quarried.

11. Geology Building
    The original part was built in 1902 as “Science Hall.” The rest was added in 1954 when the cornerstone was laid, including the distinctive Geology Museum, free and open to the public, containing Wyoming geological exhibits.

12. Engineering Building
    The original portion of the building was constructed in 1927. In the early years of UW, engineering and agriculture were combined in one college. The Petroleum Aeronautics wing was added to the west in 1959. An even larger addition to the east and north was built in 1993.

13. Agriculture Building
    Completed in 1949, the structure received a huge addition to the rear in 1981. Immediately behind the new addition was the annex housing the sales room for the College of Agriculture where one could purchase cheese, ice cream, and other products produced by the UW dairy farm. The sales room closed in the 1970s and was demolished in 2013.

14. Education Building & McWhinnie
    Constructed in 1950, the building contains murals by well-known muralist Edward Grigware. At one time, it was possible for a student to start out in preschool, go through high school, then graduate with a bachelor’s degree in education—all in this building. To the east of the Education Building is McWhinnie Hall, built in 1928. Campus planners joke that the architect, W.A. Hitchcock, must have been paid by the number of steps he put into the building.

15. Half Acre Gym
    Built in 1925 with funds from oil royalties earned on university-owned land, the gym replaced the “Little Gym” that was located behind Old Main.

16. Student Union Building
    The structure was authorized by the legislature in 1937 and built in 1939. Additions in 1979 and 2002 completely changed the internal layout of the building.

Parking can be found on the streets surrounding campus. This walking tour is about one mile long.

Self-Guided Tours
When the Lincoln Highway, the first transcontinental highway across the US, opened in 1913, no structured highway maintenance system existed. Motorists were mostly on their own to find their way along a route that could quickly vanish under heavy snow, thick mud, or spring floods. There was no Wyoming Highway Patrol, no speed limit, and not even a requirement for drivers to be licensed (circa. 1947). In spite of these challenges – or maybe because of them – the romance of the historic Lincoln Highway lives on.

This tour starts and ends in Laramie and will take roughly 3 hours (165 mi.) to complete.

Head east on I-80, towards Cheyenne. You will pass through Telephone Canyon, through which the LH passed starting in 1919.

1. Summit Rest Area - I-80 Exit 323
The imposing Abraham Lincoln Memorial Monument as well as a few other historic markers sit on top of the Summit. Look for the Henry Joy monument surrounded by four Lincoln Highway concrete markers.

As you leave the rest area, cross the bridge over I-80 and continue straight up the hill onto old US 30.

2. Original Summit - Old US 30
The “Lincoln Head” Lincoln Monument was originally here (8,835 ft. elevation) on US 30, but was moved in 1968 when I-80 was built.

Continue on old US 30 to the I-80 Exit 329.

3. Tree in the Rock - I-80 Exit 333
This natural landmark is between the Interstate's east-west lanes. There is a pull-out where you can safely park, read interpretive signs, and reverse directions to return to Exit 329.

The next ten miles are on gravel roads not suitable for some vehicles. Take Monument Rd. south to its intersection with Hermosa Rd.

Ames Monument stands alone, overlooking the surrounding prairie.

Years ago there was a station, roundhouse, and turntable, around which grew the town of Sherman. When the tracks were relocated around 1901, the little town dried up. The cemetery can still be seen.

Returning to Hermosa Rd. Most of the route to Tie Siding is on top of the original Lincoln Highway of 1913.

5. Tie Siding - Hermosa Rd. & US Hwy. 287
Tie Siding, originally just east of the railroad tracks, was established in 1874 and became a railroad loading point. It had about 60 residents in 1901.

Two prehistoric buffalo kill sites have been found to the west, along with some of the oldest evidence of human occupation in the Laramie Basin (the Folsom Culture - 12,500 years old).

Head north on US 287 to return to Laramie. Turn left onto Howe Rd. which quickly turns north and becomes Ft. Sanders Rd.

6. Old Guardhouse - Ft. Sanders Rd.
Historic Ft. Sanders (active 1866-1892) was established along this road. Now, the remnants of a guardhouse, here and at the Cavalryman Steakhouse (US 287), are the only components that remain.

Continue north on Ft. Sanders Rd. You'll be diverted back to US 287/3rd St., head north. (the original highway connected to 2nd St.) Head north on 3rd St. for 20 mi. to Bosler.

7. Bosler - US Hwy. 30/287
You are now in Bosler, platted in 1909. Until 1919, the town was on the west side of the railroad tracks. The original highway crossed the tracks at this point and remained west of the tracks for the next nine or ten miles to the north; in 1924 it was relocated east of the tracks.

Bosler was a promoter’s dream, with irrigation ditches planned and “fine cabbage farming” recommended. Unfortunately, the dream never materialized.

Head north on US 287 to Rock River.

8. Rock River - US Hwys. 30/287
Rock River has preserved the remains of the Lincoln Highway well over the years. Off to the right when you enter town, look for the Hostler’s General Store where there is a Lincoln Highway gas pump. A block north is a road marker.

Head north on US 287 to the Fossil Cabin turn off on the right-hand side of the road.

Constructed of masonry and dinosaur bones, the Fossil Cabin is touted as “the world’s oldest building.” Fossils representing many species of dinosaurs were found in 1877 at Como Bluff, the nearby ridge running east-west behind the cabin.

The fossil cabin is set to move to the museum in Medicine Bow and where more Lincoln Highway memorabilia is housed.

To end the tour, return back to Laramie. If you wish to continue on the Lincoln Highway, US 30/287 continues west to Rawlins.
1. Laramie Depot & Railyard
- 600 S. 1st St.
The depot was built in 1924 to replace a former station and hotel, which burned in 1917. It has been fully restored and serves as a museum and community events center. It is listed on the National Register of Historic Places as part of historic downtown Laramie.

Walk south of the depot to see the historic “snow train”, steam engine, bunk car, and caboose. The wedge plow kept the tracks cleared during fierce winters.

Walk north to the footbridge. This bridge, built in 1929, provides an unparalleled vantage point for watching trains as they pass through Laramie. The original 1868 mainline is the seventh track from the east end of the bridge.

Below the footbridge, you can see the U.P. yard tracks and rail welding plant are still intact. Now, rarely used, this was once a far different place when the mighty steam engines of days gone by roared in and out of Laramie.

To view the Laramie, Hahns Peak, & Pacific (LHP&P) railway trestle bridge, take a slight detour and walk west to Optimist Park (2 blocks) where the Greenbelt walking path starts. The trestle is a part of the path, north of the park.

2. Sherman Hill & The Gangplank
- I-80 Exits 345-329
Drive 35 miles east of Laramie, take Exit 345. At this stop sits a sign depicting The Gangplank formation, a bridge between the Great Plains and the Rocky Mountains which allowed the U.P. to continue building the railway west. If it had not been discovered, Wyoming’s history and geography would have been drastically altered and Cheyenne, Wyoming’s capital, might not have existed at all.

Take the frontage road (Old US 30) west, notice the embankments of the original U.P. grade along the route until you return to I-80. Continue west and take Exit 335 to the town of Buford. Buford once had a population of 2,000 people. Looking south here, this vista was once a working quarry, providing "Sherman Granite" for much of the U.P.

Continuing west on I-80, stop at Exit 333 to view the Tree in the Rock and Exit 329 to view Ames Monument and the old town of Sherman.

3. Route to Perkins
- Monument Rd. & Pumpkin Vine Rd.
The next 28 miles are on gravel roads not suitable for some vehicles. If you are short on time, take Hermosa Rd. (#222) 10 miles to Tie Siding.

Before the U.P. was re-routed over Sherman Hill (1901), the original railway closely followed Hermosa Rd. to Tie Siding. The new line saved 234 feet in elevation, but was not any shorter. The new alignment was costly and involved the construction of a huge fill plus an 1,800 foot tunnel.

Following the current railline, you will cross over tracks once on Monument Rd. (#234) and once on Pumpkin Vine Rd. (#241). Perkins sat at the Pumpkin Vine crossing.

The famous Dale Creek gorge is nearby, but please do not trespass as it is on private land. Take Pumpkin Vine Rd. west until you reach US 287. Head north back to Laramie.

4. U.P. North
- US Hwy. 30/287
The current railline parallels US 30/287 north through the small towns of Bosler and Rock River. The original line made a small detour before Bosler to the old site of "Wyoming, Wyoming".

Turn onto Howell Rd. (#51) at MM 321 on US 30/287. Where the Little Laramie and Big Laramie rivers join is where Wyoming Station was. Follow Howell Rd. into Bosler. Continue north on the highway.

The original line never passed through Rock River, but rather northeast of the town. Medicine Bow, on the other hand, has always been situated on a railline.

In Medicine Bow, the Virginian Hotel and the railroad station, now a museum, were built in 1912 and 1913, respectively. Medicine Bow was home to Owen Wister’s novel, “The Virginian,” which is often considered the world’s first western novel.

Return to Laramie.

5. Other Railroads
- Albany County
Other rail lines around Albany County weren’t as long-lived as the U.P., but were just as important for the local economy. The roadbeds are still visible, but they are primarily on private land.
- Laramie North Park & Pacific (LN&P) - 1901-1951
- Laramie Valley Railroad (LVRR) - 1927-1980s
- Denver Laramie & Northwestern (DL&NW) - 1906-1917
- Laramie Hahns Peak & Pacific (LHP&P) - 1901-1914

The LHP&P between Albany and the Colorado border, was converted to the Medicine Bow Rail Trail in 2007. A popular trail for hikers and bikers.
If you’re expecting country music and cowboy boots, that’s what you’ll get in Laramie, but you’ll also get beloved cafes, more eclectic bistros than you have ever imagined, craft beer, craft cheese, craft ice cream, and craft chocolate. Unexpected? That’s Laramie, Wyoming. The Historic Downtown district is located next to an active railyard and periodically Laramie’s old buildings rumble as a train goes by. A large foot and bicycle bridge join the east and west sections of the town making it easy for you to explore all Laramie has to offer.

LOCAL FAVORITES
Laramie, Wyoming is known for many things. Chief among them are great outdoor recreation opportunities, rich history, and high-quality education. While it may not be the first thing that comes to mind, Laramie also stands out for its delicious dining options. Offering everything from a mouth-watering steak at the Cavalryman, to raw fish at Mizu Sushi, to Wyoming’s only fully vegetarian restaurant at Sweet Melissa Café, Laramie is a unique destination for those seeking a great local meal.

If you are looking for hearty American dishes characteristic of a quiet western town, you will find those here, too. But also be sure to check out dozens of diverse restaurant offerings, including Thai, Japanese, Mexican, Italian, Indian, and more. After your meal, enjoy a pint of frothy locally-brewed beer from Coal Creek TAP or answer your morning cravings at Turtle Rock Coffee & Cafe or a quaint hometown diner like Prairie Rose Cafe.

SWEET TREATS
Searching for something to satisfy your sweet tooth? From locally-owned diamonds in the rough to familiar chains, there are delights for every palate. Laramie offers a variety of choices from a downtown chocolatier, The Chocolate Cellar, to off-the-beaten path bakeries to homemade ice cream parlors. Grab a sweet treat at Sugar Mouse Cupcake House while shopping downtown or a few pastries from Alibi Wood Fire Pizzaria & Bakery for a picnic out around the county.

WORTH THE DRIVE
When you find yourself exploring outside of Laramie, the smaller cities and communities around Albany County are also available to offer you outstanding service. Catch a live show in Centennial during the warmer months at the Bear Bottom Bar & Grill and grab a juicy, Wyoming-raised steak across the road at the Trading Post. Or warm up from a cold winter trek in the mountains with a burger from the Albany Lodge or the Woods Landing Resort. It’s safe to say you’ll discover the perfect meal when you least expect it.

Only able to make a quick stop along the interstate? Discover authentic Indian cuisine from the new Buffalo Indian Restaurant at its convenient interstate location.

FOOD TRUCKS
Enjoy Laramie’s finest at these traveling food trucks! Yes, you heard that right. Experience what Wyoming locals get to savor by catching the trucks around town, at Laramie’s summer farmers’ markets, or in other cities across the state. Quite a few of Laramie’s food trucks have caught the nation’s attention including Weitzels Wings AKA Double Dubs and On the Hook Fish & Chips. Check each vendor’s website or social media for their updated schedules and locations so you too can enjoy some of Laramie’s favorite eats.
Sometimes, the best way to enjoy your trip is to simply relax and have a beer. Slow down. Watch the world go by. This makes Laramie a splendid location for a brewery tour.

When it comes to small, local breweries housing some of the finest ales in the Mountain West, look no further than Laramie. The historic downtown is full of delicious craft beer and fine dining in Laramie, with an atmosphere that is at once elegant and casual. Altitude won two gold medals in recent years at one of the world’s most prestigious beer competitions—the World Beer Cup—for its Altitude Altbier (2014 and 2018). If that doesn’t impress you enough, Altitude also brought home more medals than any other brewery in the United States at the 2017 American Beer Awards, and over the years, they have received over 25 awards at regional brew fests.

ACCOMPlice Beer Company
- 301 Grand Ave. - (307) 460-3130
Accomplice Brewery has been a favorite of Cheyenne beer enthusiasts since 2016, and opened up a location in Laramie in January 2020 right at the corner of 3rd Street and Grand Avenue. Accomplice offers pub-style food alongside its microbrews, including a wide array of snacks, salads, artisan pizzas, “san-which’s”, and delicious desserts.

Altitude Chophouse & Brewery
- 320 S. 2nd St. - (307) 721-4031
Altitude Chophouse & Brewery has long been the cornerstone of great craft beer and fine dining in Laramie, with an atmosphere that is at once elegant and casual. Altitude won two gold medals in recent years at one of the world’s most prestigious beer competitions—the World Beer Cup—for its Altitude Altbier (2014 and 2018). If that doesn’t impress you enough, Altitude also brought home more medals than any other brewery in the United States at the 2017 American Beer Awards, and over the years, they have received over 25 awards at regional brew fests.

Bond’s Brewing Company
- 411 S. 2nd St. - (307) 460-3385
Downtown Laramie is dotted with beautiful murals; Bond’s brings one of them inside. A spectacular mural of a mountain range, created by local artist Dan Toro, looms over the industrial brewing equipment and contributes to a lovely atmosphere. The brewery also features a gas log fireplace that is oh-so-welcome on a cold day, and for warmer days, its garage-style doors open up to let in an abundance of fresh air and sunshine. Bond’s currently has a diverse list of beers, from the deeply flavourful stout to the frankly-named, easy-drinking “Beer.” Bond’s is family-friendly and has several board games on hand.

Coal Creek Tap
- 108 Grand Ave. - (307) 460-9556
Coal Creek Tap, Laramie’s only “nano-brewery,” opened its doors in March of 2014, right as the coffee house turned 21 (naturally). Known for their flavorful and high ABV beers, Coal Creek offers its brews in 5 oz, 10 oz, and 16 oz pours so that you can try what you want without fear of falling off your stool.

Library Sports Grille & Brewery
- 201 E. Custer St. - (307) 742-0500
“Don’t lie to your mom, tell her you’re at the Library.” This has long been the alibi for the sports-loving crowd that frequents this Laramie brewery. The Library boasts a deep menu of staple and seasonal beers and a pub-style menu. Televisions are plentiful and make every seat in the house a “good seat” for watching your favorite sports team.
