

Connect in Every Season

Spring brings renewed energy to Lincoln. As gardens bloom and patios reopen, conference attendees can enjoy comfortable weather perfect for outdoor networking and exploration. The city feels fresh and active, with walkable districts, scenic parks and seasonal events creating an inviting backdrop for group experiences.

Ideal group activities

- Patio fellowship and group dinners in the Haymarket
- Garden strolls at Sunken Gardens
- Outdoor team-building activities and guided city tours
- Walking meetings or wellness breaks along Lincoln's trail system

Summer is Lincoln at its liveliest. Longer days, warm evenings and a packed events calendar make it an ideal season for extending conference programming into memorable after-hours experiences. Outdoor music, festivals and rooftop gatherings create natural opportunities for networking and connection.

Ideal group activities

- Group outings to local favorites, entertainment venues or sports events
- Live music experiences like Jazz in June
- Group outings to local breweries, entertainment venues or sports events
- Evening dinners and private events in outdoor venues
- A round of golf at one of Lincoln's premier public courses

Fall delivers classic Nebraska charm. Crisp temperatures, colorful landscapes and the excitement of Husker sports season energize the city. For conference groups, it's a favorite season for cozy networking events, local experiences and memorable team outings.

Ideal group activities

- Tailgate-inspired receptions and sports-themed gatherings
- Group dinners in historic venues and downtown restaurants
- Seasonal festivals, pumpkin patches and fall-themed outings
- Walking tours through Lincoln's historic districts

Winter transforms Lincoln into a welcoming, cozy destination with festive lights and warm indoor experiences. It's an excellent season for conferences focused on connection, with opportunities for intimate networking, unique indoor entertainment and holiday-inspired events.
