Legislative Advocacy

Government affairs and effective legislative advocacy are key benefits to members. Laws and regulations affect you and your business every day so it is critically important that you have someone representing your interests to state officials in Augusta. That is why MTA has a committed public policy, advocacy and communications program.

Examples of the work done in this area include:

Promoting fair and stable business, labor and tax policies; and fighting against burdensome regulations and tax increases

Protecting the state's tourism budget

Providing strategic public relations and communications to raise the profile of the tourism industry with the media, government officials, communities and the public through news articles, press releases, events and other communications

Analyzing over 2000 bills per session to track and monitor those that would impact our members and our industry

Participating in legislative hearings to influence outcomes and shape public policy

Maintaining relationships with legislators and other government officials and effectively communicating the goals and strategies set forth by the association

Connecting members with their legislators

Participating in coalitions to further the public policy goals of MTA Issuing action alerts for members on critical issues which provide time-sensitive information and stimulating grassroots activities

Emailing a weekly public affairs update in MTA's newsletter, The Insider Maintaining a listing of bills pertinent to the tourism industry on website, including summaries and outcomes

The staff at MTA has over 50 years combined tourism experience and a Director of Government Affairs with 20 years of legislative and advocacy experience. They work with MTA board members, including a public affairs advisory group, to determine our positions on issues and the most constructive actions to effect successful outcomes.

Maine Tourism Staffing Solutions (MTSS)

You have trusted the Maine Tourism Association to bring visitors to our state for the last 100 years. Now we are expanding our membership benefits to bring you employees, too. 66% of our members we surveyed had at least 1 position go unfilled in 2018-19 due to worker shortages, low unemployment rates, and recent changes to worker visa programs. We aim to change that.

Maine Tourism Staffing Solutions (MTSS) is the first and only non-profit staffing agency in Maine dedicated to direct hire placements at Maine's hotels, restaurants, and other tourism-related businesses.

We specialize in summer seasonal placements by forging partnerships with winter destinations. We also help tourism-related businesses recruit the year-round staff they need, whether they are accountants, IT people, administrative staff, and more.

MTSS will recruit and place workers at Maine businesses using resources from the MTA and proven recruiting techniques from for-profit staffing agencies. As a membership-based non-profit agency, MTSS will do so at a cost far reduced from traditional staffing prices.

I Am Maine Tourism Campaign

In 2017 The Maine Tourism Association launched a new campaign highlighting Maine's largest industry and the positive impact a strong tourism economy has on all sectors of Maine's economy. The campaign, I Am Maine Tourism, features seven video spots with individuals from seven diverse backgrounds telling in their own words how tourism plays an important role in their profession and business.

The videos feature a marine retailer, a superintendent of schools, a real estate agent, a car salesperson, a farmer, a hardware store owner, and a landscaper – all professions not normally associated with tourism but that all benefit from revenue generated from the tourism industry.

According to 2017 statistics from the Maine Office of Tourism, tourism supports nearly 107,000 jobs in Maine, roughly 16 percent of employment in the state and greater than the populations of Portland and Augusta combined. Household income generated through jobs supported by tourism was more than $2.5 billion.

The Maine Tourism Association has launched the second generation of the "I Am Maine Tourism" campaign highlighting Maine's largest industry and the positive impact a strong tourism economy has on all sectors of Maine's economy. In this new series there are six 30-second spots each highlighting a different type of tourism job, from hotel management, to chef, to guide services, to education, plus a three-minute compilation video.

According to a U.S. Travel Association report, nearly 40 percent of workers whose first job was in the travel industry reached an annual career salary of more than $100,000 and one-third of Americans who started in travel achieved a bachelor's degree. Tourism supports nearly 107,000 jobs in Maine. Household income generated through jobs supported by tourism was over $2.5 billion. Total taxes generated from tourism was nearly $600 million. PROJECT: TIME OFF

Nearly 40% of Mainers leave paid vacation time on the table and miss out on precious time with family.

Project: Time Off (P:TO) is an initiative created by the U.S. Travel Association to win back America's unused vacation days. Since the mid 1970's, Americans are taking on average about one week less vacation per year, and the trend continues to decline. Vacation usage remained constant from 1976 to 2000, on average taking a little over 20 days. In the last 15 years, the average has decreased to around 17 days.

Last year over 705 million vacation days went unused in America, resulting in $255 billion in lost spending, 1.9 million jobs lost, and $70 billion in potential income. Of the 705 million vacation days, 212 million are forfeited forever costing workers $66 billion in lost benefits.

As a proud coalition partner of P:TO and the U.S. Travel Association, Maine Tourism Association's (MTA) goal is to take a proactive approach to reverse this trend and create a positive vacation environment within Maine businesses, boosting Maine's economy. MTA and P:TO will help create awareness of the benefits of taking vacation days. As the largest tourism organization in Maine, MTA has an obligation to make the tourism industry in Maine sustainable, and it begins with people taking time off from work.
