COMMUNITY DIRECTORY

Welcome

While away the hours watching the ships go by, take a leisurely ride on the Algiers/Canal Street Ferry, ride a bike or take a walk atop the paved levee path, see art, find a perfect gift, enjoy a yoga class, sip a libation or grab a bite to eat for breakfast, lunch or dinner during a day in Old Algiers. There is a little bit of everything -- from a cup of coffee to a new hairstyle – and much more that is not even visible as you walk or ride through the historic area. And though it may seem remote -- you must cross the river to get to it -- Old Algiers is only five minutes from the Central Business District and French Quarter via ferry or a 15-minute ride via the Crescent City Connection Bridge.

Founded in 1719, Old Algiers is the second oldest settled area in Nouvelle Orleans. Generally referred to as the King's Plantation (named for Louis XIV of France who granted the land to the founder, Jean Pierre Sieur de Bienville), the land was responsible for growing crops and livestock and for storing goods, including ammunition for the French colony that is today's French Quarter. It is also the site where many of the ships carrying enslaved Africans landed, and today a marker enshrines that little-recognized fact in front of the historic Algiers Courthouse, designated during 2019 as a UNESCO Site of Memory.

Old Algiers doesn't even resemble its original state, as over the years – particularly after the 1803 Louisiana Purchase – parcels of land were subdivided and sold as smaller plantations. Later, the plantations were further subdivided and sold off as lots, and by the mid-to-late 1800s, much of property was owned by industry or individual landowners. Annexed to the City of New Orleans in 1850, it has kept its small-town feel with rows of Craftsmen-style bungalows, Creole cottages, single- and double-occupancy shotguns and some grander Victorian homes lining the streets. Groceries, pharmacies, bars and bakeries stood on many a corner property, providing essential goods and services to the community. Since 1975, much of the area has been listed on the National Register of Historic Places in 1975.

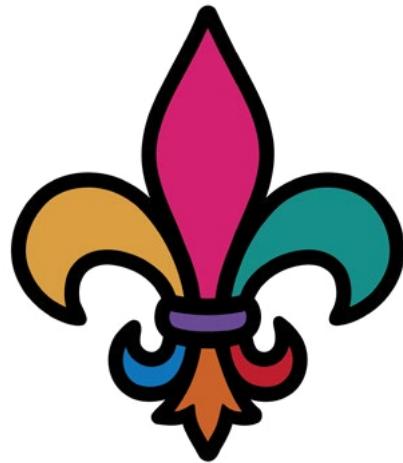

Today, we honor our history and celebrate our culture, but we are working toward a more equitable and vibrant future for the Old Algiers community. Our efforts include preserving our physical environment while supporting small business development and creating opportunities for residents to develop skills, find employment and own homes in this unique area.

This directory is an opportunity to share our assets with the rest of the City of the New Orleans and with those outside the city.

Explore the history, experience the culture and create a future here – in Old Algiers.

Algiers/Canal Street Ferry: Algiers has been served by ferry service since 1827. Today, the Regional Transit Authority operates ferry, bus and streetcar service in New Orleans. For those on the East Bank, the easiest way to get to Old Algiers is via the ferry, which runs every 30 minutes. The fare is $2 each way, with children under two-years of age free.

Plume Algiers

After traveling through India in 2017 and serving pop-up Indian meals in various bars and restaurants in New Orleans, Tyler Stuart and Merritt Coscia opened their restaurant, Plume Algiers, at 1113 Teche Street in mid-2020.

The restaurant serves cuisine from many regions of India, including tandoori goat and lamb entrees, as well as vegetarian options. The couple hopes to inspire others to open restaurants in the area to enhance dining experiences in Old Algiers.

After purchasing and renovating the property that once housed Club 27, they say many neighbors have told them about the good times they had in the old dance club.

JUGS/NOMTOC Parade

The idea for Jugs Social Club, a Mardi Gras organization for African Americans in Algiers, was born as a group of friends were returning home on the ferry after attending the Young Men Illinois Mardi Gras ball in 1951. It started with several local families joining to create social and entertainment options that did not exist before, but today is a membership organization with a private board of directors.

Since the club's inception, Jugs members have participated in voter education and registration drives, built Mardi Gras floats for All Saints Catholic School and McDonogh 32 School, provided annual scholarships for high school seniors, sponsored toy drives and supported numerous civic activities. In 1970, Jugs sponsored and presented its inaugural Krewe of NOMTOC (New Orleans' Most Talked of Club) Parade, which has grown from six floats and 200 riders to 29 floats and more than 600 riders. It is the only Mardi Gras Parade that remains in Algiers today and is a huge draw on the Saturday before Mardi Gras.

Doorman Designs

Alex Geriner began making furniture out of necessity. With a limited post-graduate budget for furnishing his 1880s apartment, he decided to create his own. The first piece was an antique headboard, crafted from a five-panel door (hence Doorman) salvaged from a home flooded by the levee failures after Hurricane Katrina. The old growth cypress panels were inlaid with ornate, 19th-century tin. Word spread, and Geriner began building and selling more beds, slowly growing his operation and expanding offerings to include a wide range of hand-crafted products, including lighting, tables, chairs and more.

Realizing his unique position to offer quality, stylish pieces that embodied the charm and grit of the Crescent City, Gernier launched Doorman Designs in 2013. The business uses New Orleans colors, architecture and lifestyle as inspiration for designs that are sold online to customers across the country.

Murray Henderson Funeral Home

Dating back to 1909, the Murray Henderson Funeral Home was one of the first African American-owned funeral homes in New Orleans, when Henderson was 27 years-old. The original location was at 324 Diana Street, but it is now located at 1209 Teche Street.

Upon Henderson's death in 1930, one of his three daughters, Erma Henderson Gibbs, took over operations. She was the first African American female in New Orleans to pass the State Board examination for funeral home directors. She continued as director at Murray Henderson until her death at the age of 103, when her sister Lillian Henderson Dunn became president of the company.

Murray Henderson Funeral Home continues to serve the community with "a complete dignified service at a price one can afford."

All Saints Catholic Church

Celebrating its 100th Anniversary in 2019, All Saints Catholic Church was founded by the Rev. James Albert of the Society of St. Joseph of the Sacred Heart (Josephites). The actual edifice of the church was dedicated and consecrated in the summer of 1920.

A spiritual home to a faith filled community of people from diverse backgrounds committed to bringing Jesus Christ to others through the sacraments, the teachings of the Roman Catholic Church, and other forms of prayer and worship, the church was initially devoted to evangelization in the African American community on the Westbank of New Orleans. Through the years, All Saints Church has remained committed to the sanctification of its people through worship, religious instruction and participation in the sacramental life of the Church. Countless baptisms, first communions, confirmations, weddings, anointings, and funerals have been and continue to be celebrated in this sacred edifice.

Led by current Pastor Rev. Peter Weiss, the church has remained firmly committed to social justice and racial harmony. Mass schedule: Saturday Vigil 5:00 pm; Sunday 8:00 am & 10:00 am; Tuesday-Friday 6:30 am. Office hours: Weekdays, 9:00am - 5:00 pm.
