

VISIT OAKLAND FEATURES OLD OAKLAND FOR OCTOBER OAKLAND SPOTLIGHT PROGRAM

Oakland, CA (October 4, 2017) —Visit Oakland, the city's official destination marketing organization, encourages visitors to explore Old Oakland during the month of October. Old Oakland is filled with great shopping, restaurants, bars and nightlife. This is also a very historic neighborhood in Oakland, featuring ornate Victorian architecture.

"Old Oakland is a wonderful neighborhood to visit, and explore the historical beginnings of the city. Oakland Spotlight is a great starting point for visitors looking to explore one of our community's many exciting neighborhoods, as well as for residents who just want a little spark in picking out something new to do tonight or next weekend – like Old Oakland," says Councilmember Abel Guillen.

"Old Oakland is the best of two worlds, connected with the past and the present in ways that exemplify what is great about the City. Located adjacent to integral parts of contemporary business, cultural and political icons, it is also an urban oasis rooted in times gone by as reflected by the small town look and feel of the restaurants and shops that populate this community. We love old Oakland and all the patrons that support us!," says Desco Executive Chef and Proprietor Donato Scotti.

OLD OAKLAND

Old Oakland was the central depot for the first Transcontinental railway linking California to the eastern states in the late 1860s. This area was where visitors stayed when they traveled on the railroad, and it offered hotels, restaurants, barber shops, drug stores and other services for travelers.

Old Oakland is now a great neighborhood to explore its many boutiques and shops, diverse restaurants, and bustling nightlife and bar scene, while taking in the beautifully preserved Victorian architecture.
