

Jobina Fortson Bio

Jobina Fortson is an Emmy award-winning journalist and currently serves as the Breaking News and Traffic Anchor for ABC7 News in San Francisco, CA. Jobina is passionate about storytelling and highlighting the needs of marginalized communities.

Prior to her west coast move, Jobina was a multimedia journalist and anchor for WAVE 3 News, the NBC affiliate in Louisville, KY. Jobina began her career as a reporter, fill-in anchor, and fill-in producer at WMDT, the ABC affiliate in Salisbury, MD. She joined the news team in July of 2014, after spending four years in Washington, D.C. as a student at Howard University. Jobina is a Bison for life! While at HU, Jobina interned with several major news networks. One of the biggest highlights of Jobina's college career, was becoming a White House Correspondent's Scholarship recipient. She got to attend the star-studded dinner and meet former President Barack Obama and First Lady Michelle Obama. One of Jobina's favorite moments from the night was talking to the First Lady about her new bangs!

Jobina loves travel, architecture, and design, boating and enjoying international foods.
