

November is Food Systems Month

This month, we're studying food systems and the complex web of activities involving the production, processing, transport and consumption of the foods we eat and beverages we drink every day.