WELCOME TO PRINCE GEORGE'S COUNTY, MARYLAND!

I am so excited to introduce you to my beautiful hometown and the many delightful aspects that make our neighborhoods and communities stand apart.

As a lifelong Prince Georgian, I often beam with pride and marvel at the ways in which we have created a signature destination for all from around the world to enjoy.

As one of the largest counties in the state, our melting pot of cultures can be seen anywhere from the diverse range of restaurant dishes, to the materials and products adorning the shelves in our signature boutiques.

Our great outdoors is a network of spacious parks and waterways that include fun trails to walk or take in the scenery.

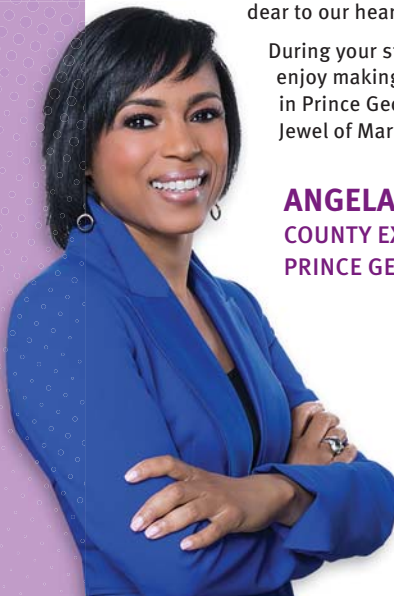

Geographically, we're ideally located in the heart of the National Capital region and home to notable historical sites and museums, lush rural landscapes and cosmopolitan retreats.

Our National Harbor is a vibrant waterfront district filled with a state-of-the-art casino, shops, activities, and some of the best views along the East Coast.

Over the years, it has been a privilege for us to welcome visitors from near and far to experience, explore and enjoy the county that we hold so dear to our hearts.

During your stay, we hope that you enjoy making new memories with us in Prince George's County, the Crown Jewel of Maryland!

Whether it's your first time visiting, or you come frequently, we have just what you're seeking to freeze-frame the most rewarding moments and memories.

FASCINATING FACT

Prince George's County was named for Prince George of Denmark. He was the husband of Queen Anne of England (1702-1714). Now that's love.

NORTHERN COUNTY

Are you ready to soar? If so, head to College Park Aviation Museum: a 27,000-square-foot, state-of-the-art facility located on the grounds of the world's oldest continuously operating airport in College Park, Maryland. Learn through self-guided tours and interactive displays. Prince George's County is also home to one of the Big Ten: University of Maryland College Park, renowned for its athletics, academia and The Clarice Smith Performing Arts Center, where you can attend a theatrical production, live music, a choral showcase or live dance.

HIDDEN GEM: Greenbelt is one of only three towns nationwide that were planned and constructed by the federal government as part of the New Deal in the 1930s. The city's commercial center typifies the Art Deco style popular at the time.

URBAN-SUBURBAN

Experience a blend of arts and culture in the Gateway Arts District amidst an eclectic area that is fun to discover and not to be missed. Try mouthwatering dishes from sought-after restaurants and cafés that attract book lovers, social buffs, and those who love nostalgia. The community is pedestrian-friendly and has become an urban seat for creatives, self-proclaimed foodies and independent spirits. While walking along Hyattsville's main thoroughfare, you're sure to find something that catches your eye and captures your interest. Hop in the car or catch a rideshare for a short detour into Riverdale Park and make your way into one of the county's vibrant craft breweries.

HIDDEN GEM: Riversdale House Museum is a national historic landmark and the former manor house of a slave plantation on a property that was once more than 700 acres.

UPPER COUNTY

Prince George's is one of a few select American counties to feature a Six Flags America theme park and its exciting waterpark. Thrill seekers clamor to get a seat on some of the scariest, most intense rides on the East Coast. We're talking skyscraper, superhero heights with nail-biting, hairpin twists and turns. Seven world-class rollercoasters, children's favorite character rides, games, shows, and the Hurricane Harbor waterpark makes everyone feel like a kid again. The Belair Mansion is beloved by those seeking a glimpse of the past to see how residents lived between 1747-1950.

HIDDEN GEM: National Capital Radio and Television Museum is a time capsule into the history of broadcast media and memorabilia.

WATERFRONT DISTRICT

The buzz around the Capital region can be heard "across the pond" and it's all about the food, fun, fashions and finds at National Harbor! Whether you're on this side of the Potomac or hundreds of miles away, Marylanders, locals and visitors from near and far flock to this lively promenade for mouthwatering cuisine, unique boutiques, watersport activities and family-friendly attractions. Each season is sensational, from the outdoor summer concert series and movie nights, to the sparkle of autumn's holiday festivities. During winter, magnificent ice sculptures create a cool wonderland before spring gives way to a harmony of pink cherry blossoms and blush-hued sunsets. Nightlife is kept alive year round inside the MGM Casino, a favorite for those seeking to test their game skills. It's been ranked as one of the top casinos on the East Coast. The pulse of the days and evenings continues at the refined Gaylord National Resort & Convention Center for an upscale treat.

HIDDEN GEM: Dress to impress after shopping at some of the most popular brands and sought-after labels at Tanger Outlets. Eighty-five stores provide endless ways to flatter your look.

SOUTHERN COUNTY

Take a drive along the roads less traveled and head to the beautiful area of Brandywine. This bucolic corridor is a dreamy portal into scenic wine country, where four family-owned vineyards meet hearty farmlands, and equine adventures blend with agritourism to offer an idyllic place to roam. The county's heartland is also a hub for history lovers, with landmarks that include the Surratt House Museum — home of a family that became entangled in John Wilkes Booth's assassination of President Abraham Lincoln — and the National Colonial Farm, a living history museum in Accokeek.

HIDDEN GEM: Every now and again — if you're lucky — you'll stumble upon a treasure like Brandywine Carriage Tours. Sit back, relax and enjoy this charming ride of leisure steered by two majestic horses with pit stops along the Legacy Wine Trail. Peek at the llamas and alpacas at the Villa de Alpacas Farm nearby, with a wide selection of one-of-a-kind, hand-dyed blankets and items to keep you cozy.

Your Gateway TO ARTS AND CULTURE

One of our biggest cultural gems is the Gateway Arts & Entertainment District where more than 500 artists live, work and regularly exhibit. The district spans four communities in central Prince George's: Hyattsville, North Brentwood, Brentwood and Mount Rainier. There's always something new to see in the district, but here are some stops you shouldn't miss:

THE PRINCE GEORGE'S AFRICAN AMERICAN MUSEUM & CULTURAL CENTER (pgaamcc.org)

The collections at this community museum aim to raise awareness of the cultural and historical significance of African Americans in Prince George's County through the cultivation, preservation and presentation of their cultural and artistic contributions.

GATEWAY ARTS CENTER/BRENTWOOD ARTS EXCHANGE (pgparks.com/1782/Brentwood-Arts-Exchange)

The Gateway Arts Center houses 12 artists studios as well as the Brentwood Arts Exchange, which presents contemporary art exhibitions, films, concerts, a craft retail store, and classes for all ages.

JOE'S MOVEMENT EMPORIUM (joesmovement.org)

Joe's is renowned for hosting concerts and performances by diverse artists on its stage, and for offering arts education and job training to the community.

THE ARTS

Just north of the Gateway district is the University of Maryland flagship campus in College Park. Its best-known venue is The Clarice Smith Performing Arts Center (theclarice.umd.edu), which hosts orchestral, dance, literary and theater productions all year. Other highlights at UMD include the David C. Driskell Center (driskellcenter.umd.edu), which is dedicated to African American visual art and culture; the Herman Maril Gallery (art.umd.edu/galleries/herman-maril-gallery), an exhibition space that showcases student artwork; and the University of Maryland Art Gallery (artgallery.umd.edu), whose permanent collection includes nearly 3,000 prints, drawings, paintings, sculptures and photographs.

Dive Into THE PAST

Prince George's County has a long and rich history. The area was originally inhabited by the Piscataway Indian Nation, three branches of which still exist today. (If you're interested in the lives and livelihood of the Native Americans of Prince George's County, we recommend a visit to the American Indian Village at Patuxent River Park in Upper Marlboro!)

The first colonists arrived in the 1600s, and the county was founded in 1696. To this day, many historic and heritage sites provide a window into the ensuing 325 years of history. A great place to begin your exploration is the Anacostia Trails Heritage Area (anacostiatrials.org). It encompasses approximately 100 square miles in northern Prince George's County.

For guidance and background, make sure you stop at the Maryland Milestones Heritage Center (anacostiatrials.org/heritage-center) in Hyattsville, where exhibit spaces tell the story of the communities within the heritage area. The Anacostia Trails Heritage Area nonprofit has compiled a large number of themed driving and walking tours such as "Aviation Milestones," "Prince George's County in the Civil War," and "Trail Blazing Stories of African-American History." Find a full list and download tour maps at anacostiatrials.org/heritage-routes.

Here are other notable sites:

HISTORICAL PARKS

The National Colonial Farm (nps.gov/pisc/planyourvisit/ncf.htm) in Accokeek is a living museum that depicts a middle-class family farm on the eve of the American Revolution. The beautiful grounds surrounding the farm adjoin the Potomac River, and offer stunning views of George Washington's Mount Vernon residence across the water.

One of the most significant historical sites in Prince George's is Mount Calvert Historical & Archaeological Park (pgparks.com/3007/Mount-Calvert-Historical-and-Archaeologi) in Upper Marlboro, which illuminates more than 8,000 years of human culture, ranging from the original Piscataway inhabitants to a tobacco plantation from the 1800s. Want to go further back in history? Try the Dinosaur Park (pgparks.com/3259/Dinosaur-Park) in Laurel, where fossils from the Cretaceous period are still being discovered today.

Fort Washington Park (nps.gov/fowa/index.htm) is home to the remnants of Fort Foote, which was built to defend the river approach to Washington, DC in the War of 1812.

For a look at the lives of the enslaved residents of Prince George's County, pay a visit to Northampton Slave Quarters and Archaeological Park (mncppc.org/3009/Northampton-Plantation-Slave-Quarters), where archaeologists have mapped the lives of both enslaved and free African Americans from the 1790s to the 1940s.

HOMES AND ESTATES

Perhaps the most notorious house in Prince George's County is the Surratt House Museum (surrattmuseum.org) located in Clinton, home to a family that was connected with John Wilkes Booth's successful plot to assassinate President Lincoln. During the Civil War, it was a safe house for Confederate sympathizers.

Darnall's Chance House Museum (pgparks.com/3055/Darnalls-Chance-House-Museum) in Upper Marlboro dates to the mid-1700s and was home to Scottish immigrant James Wardrop, who became a successful merchant.

The Belair Mansion (cityofbowie.org/288/Belair-Mansion) in Bowie, listed on the National Register of Historic Places, was built around 1745 for Provincial Governor Samuel Ogle. While you're there, stop by the Belair Stable Museum (cityofbowie.org/289/Belair-Stable-Museum), which highlights the accomplishments of a thoroughbred horse stable founded by William Woodward, one of Belair Mansion's most famous residents.

A fine example of Georgian architecture is the Montpelier Mansion (pgparks.com/3044/Montpelier-House-Museum) in Laurel, which was built in the 1780s as a plantation for agriculture and iron production.

MUSEUMS

Prince George's County has a deep history of innovation in aviation and spaceflight, and our museums reflect those discoveries.

Aspiring astronauts, or anyone fascinated with space exploration, will love the NASA Goddard Space Flight Center (nasa.gov/goddard) in Greenbelt, with its interactive exhibits and scientific artifacts.

The world's oldest continuously operating airport is in College Park, and the College Park Aviation Museum (collegeparkaviationmuseum.com) illuminates its history with displays of original and reproduction aircraft.

Meanwhile, the Columbia Air Center Outdoor Exhibit Area (pgparks.com/3053/Columbia-Air-Center) in Upper Marlboro preserves the history of the first African American-owned and operated airfield in the state of Maryland.

FASCINATING FACT

Prince George's County was officially founded on April 23, 1696. Good thing we don't show our age!

Strap on your hiking boots, hop on your bike, or rent a kayak to explore the beautiful parks and refuges of Prince George's County. Take a guided tour, attend a seasonal education program, or simply set out on your own — we promise you'll return refreshed!

CHESAPEAKE BAY CRITICAL AREA TOUR
(pgparks.com/3179/Chesapeake-Bay-Critical-Area-Tour)

This four-mile route in Upper Marlboro is open daily for hiking and bicycling, and on Sundays from 10:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. for cars. It connects the Jug Bay Natural Area with Merkle Wildlife Sanctuary, and you can see educational displays and observation towers all along the route. A 1,000-foot-long wooden bridge leads you across a marsh. For a brochure, stop by the Patuxent River Park Visitors Center at Jug Bay before setting off.

If you'd rather stay at Jug Bay, there's plenty to do there as well. You'll find 14 miles of woodland trails for hikers, bikers and horseback riders, as well as two fishing areas and several designated zones for waterfowl hunting. You can also explore Jug Bay via canoe or kayak along the Patuxent Water Trail. Jug Bay's nature exploration area includes a space-themed entrance, a canoe sandbox, and a wooden tree house.

For hikers who want to keep going, explore the four trails at Merkle Wildlife Sanctuary. Merkle is a well-regarded spot for both fishing and birding, and serves as the wintering ground for the largest concentration of Canada geese on the Chesapeake Bay's western shore.

PATUXENT RESEARCH REFUGE (fws.gov/refuge/Patuxent)

This wildlife refuge in Upper Marlboro was founded in 1936

by Franklin D. Roosevelt, and it's the only National Wildlife Refuge established to support wildlife research. Researchers still work there today, but visitors can take advantage of several dedicated areas for hiking, fishing and wildlife observation. The National Wildlife Visitor Center features interactive exhibits about global environmental issues, bird migration, endangered species, creature life cycles and more.

WATKINS REGIONAL PARK (mncppc.org/3297/Watkins-Nature-Center)

A wonderful stop with kids is Watkins Nature Center in Kettering, whose live animal displays include insects, amphibians, reptiles and birds of prey. There's also a songbird feeding area, a butterfly and hummingbird garden, as well as indoor and outdoor ponds. Be sure to visit the Wizard of Oz-themed playground before you leave the park!

OXON HILL FARM AT OXON COVE PARK (nps.gov/oxhi/index.htm)

Visitors to Oxon Hill Farm are invited on a journey to experience how farm life has changed over time. You can choose to take a self-guided tour as you get to know the animals in the farmyard, study antique farm equipment, or explore historic structures. You can even sign up for one of the farm's interactive programs, which offer opportunities to milk cows, feed chickens, take a wagon ride, or participate in a storytime event.

TEE TIME!

Prince George's is a great place to practice your swing! Henson Creek Golf Course (pgparks.com/4560/Henson-Creek-Golf-Course) in Fort Washington and Lake Presidential Golf Club (lakepresidentialgolf.com) in Upper Marlboro are local favorites.
