Introduction to Travel Trade

ABOUT TRAVEL TRADE

Destination Queenstown (DQ) and Lake Wānaka Tourism (LWT) are the Regional Tourism Organisations (RTOs) responsible for both destination marketing and destination management in the Queenstown Lakes District.

Our role is to market the district in both international and domestic markets and to work collaboratively with partners to deliver the region's destination management plan, focusing on regenerative tourism by 2030 and attracting 'high contributing' visitors.

The travel trade team engages with inbound tour operators, wholesalers, retail travel networks, airlines, OTAs (Online Travel Agents), and Tourism New Zealand (TNZ) to share the latest on Queenstown and Wānaka products, experiences, and tourism offerings.

We connect with these partners through offshore events with TNZ, sales calls, RTO-led market activity, and domestic industry events such as TRENZ and TECNZ. The team also delivers a regular program of trade-focused communications.

OBJECTIVES

- Enhance the international profile of Queenstown and Wānaka as premier visitor destinations, aligned with the Destination Management Plan and guided by regional values and long-term vision.
- Highlight the region's broad range of tourism experiences through global travel trade networks to drive awareness and increase product representation.
- Refine and elevate how Queenstown and Lake Wānaka are presented to trade partners, focusing on high-contributing visitors who stay longer, travel deeper, and positively contribute to the local economy and community.
- Develop tailored market strategies based on key insights and trends to ensure relevance and alignment with our Market Insight Guides.
- Educate and support trade partners with compelling destination content, storytelling assets, and product knowledge to help them effectively sell the region to their clients.
- Build and maintain strong relationships with trade partners through consistent engagement, joint initiatives, and in-market support to ensure sustainable, long-term results.

THE 101 ON TRAVEL TRADE

WHAT IS 'TRAVEL TRADE'?

The Travel Trade refers to a network of intermediaries—such as inbound tour operators, wholesalers, travel agents, consortia, OTAs, and airlines—who promote and sell destinations like Queenstown and New Zealand to travellers.

DQ and LWT's trade marketing team connects these partners with local tourism businesses (accommodation, activities, transport, etc.), helping them package and sell experiences to their clients.

In essence, the Travel Trade buys local tourism products and sells them on—either directly to travellers or through other agents.

For international visitors, the Travel Trade is a key influence in trip planning and destination choice, offering trusted advice, booking support, and curated travel packages.

DISTRIBUTION CHANNELS

Distribution is how you reach your customers or how they can find you. Travel Trade marketing operates in the indirect channels.

DIRECT

You connect with customers yourself—via your website, social media, online advertising, customer referrals, or word of mouth.

INDIRECT

Indirect channels (Travel Trade): Third parties promote and sell your product, including Inbound Operators, wholesalers, OTAs (e.g. Expedia), retail travel agents, consortia, and visitor information centres.

TRADE DISTRIBUTION PARTNERS

Retail Travel Agents

Retail agents deal directly with customers in their home country, often from a physical shopfront. They offer face-to-face service and help travellers book flights, accommodation, tours, and other travel arrangements.

Wholesalers

Wholesalers act as a bridge between NZ-based ITOs and retail agents. They purchase ready-made programs created by ITOs or design their own packages and itineraries tailored for travel agents and their customers. These packages include tours, accommodation, and attractions, making it easier for agents to sell a complete experience.

Inbound Operators

Also known as ITOs, a ground operator or destination management company (DMC), they are typically businesses based in New Zealand, that create itineraries and coordinate the reservation, confirmation and payment of travel arrangements on behalf of their overseas wholesale clients.

Online Travel Agents

Like retail travel agents, but operating exclusively online, OTAs are web-based platforms where customers can research and book travel services themselves — flights, tours, accommodation and activities. Examples include Expedia, Get Your Guide, and Webjet.

PREPARE YOUR BUSINESS

BEFORE ENGAGING WITH TRAVEL TRADE, THOROUGH RESEARCH AND PLANNING ARE ESSENTIAL.

Understand Trade Pricing & Commissions

- Set pricing that works for your business, factoring in commission levels typically ranging from 10–30%.
- Commission is only paid after a sale is made.
- Know the difference between gross and net rates and ensure you're offering the correct rates to each part of the distribution system.
- Visit the Tourism Export Council of NZ (TECNZ) for detailed pricing guidelines and examples.

Build Industry Knowledge & Connections

- Join key tourism organisations: TECNZ, Tourism Industry Aotearoa (TIA), NZ Māori Tourism, Tourism New Zealand, and Qualmark.
- Stay informed by subscribing to industry news and insights: e.g. Tourism Ticker, Inside Tourism, Tourism Business Magazine, and annual tourism sector reports.

Research and Align with Your Ideal Market

- Explore international visitor research and domestic trends to identify markets that best align with your product.
- Understand the travel styles, expectations, and cultural preferences of different inbound markets.
- Use resources provided by Tourism New Zealand, Qualmark, and industry associations for up-to-date insights.

PREPARE YOUR BUSINESS

BEFORE WORKING WITH TRAVEL TRADE, THOROUGH RESEARCH AND PLANNING ARE ESSENTIAL.

Know the Travel Trade Structure

- Learn how the travel distribution system works, including:
- Inbound Tour Operators (ITOs)
- Wholesalers
- Retail agents
- Online Travel Agents (OTAs)
- Understand how commissions, booking timelines, and product contracting typically operate.

Get Trade-Ready

- Develop a trade marketing plan and set a budget to target international visitors through events, digital platforms, and trade networks.
- Prepare high-quality promotional materials, including brochures, rate sheets, and images — in English and relevant translated versions based on your markets.
- Package your product with complementary operators or experiences in Queenstown and Wānaka to create more compelling offerings.
- Consider refining your product to better meet the expectations of international travellers (e.g., language support, cultural considerations, flexible booking terms).

Train Your Team for Trade and Cultural Readiness

- Ensure your team understands the travel trade process, including handling trade bookings, commission payments, and working with international partners.
- Provide cultural awareness training relevant to your target markets — such as language basics, etiquette, dietary needs, and service expectations.
- Encourage team participation in industry workshops to build knowledge and relationships.

WORKING WITH TRADE

BENEFITS

Expanded Reach

Working with travel trade extends your sales and marketing reach, connecting you with global customers through distribution channels. Trade partners extend your sales reach by earning commission on net or discounted rates — often with no upfront cost to you.

Market Expertise & Efficiency

Trade partners often have deep knowledge of key international markets and consumer behaviour. They bring repeat business, share valuable insights, and make regular sales visits, saving you time and resources on market development.

Longer Lead Times

Travel trade bookings typically happen well in advance, offering greater predictability and stability in your forward bookings — supporting better business planning and cash flow.

Enhanced Customer Experience

Trade partners handle bookings, payments, and pre-arrival comms, acting as a bridge between you and travellers. They can sell add-ons (e.g. transport, activities), reducing your admin and boosting guest experience.

THINGS TO CONSIDER

Commission Reduces Margins

Offering commission means you'll earn slightly less per booking. Ensure your pricing structure accommodates this while remaining sustainable for your business.

Less Direct Customer Contact

Trade bookings can limit your direct engagement with customers, making it harder to build loyalty, gather feedback, or personalise service before arrival.

Diversify Your Sales Channels

Avoid over-reliance on any one channel. Aim for a balanced mix of direct, trade, domestic, and international business in your strategy to reduce risk and improve resilience.

WORKING WITH THE TRAVEL TRADE TEAM

Familiarisation (famil) trips

Famils are a valuable way for trade partners to experience your product firsthand. They may be organised through DQ/LWT, TNZ, Inbound Operators, Airlines, or others. To make the most impact, warmly welcome participants, share key information, and always follow up post their visit with you.

Content and assets

Providing the travel trade team with high quality imagery of your product or offering is important to ensure appropriate representation of your business within our activity. Ensure your assets have permission for DQ/LWT and third-party use, allowing us to use this in our activity and across all channels.

Attend trade shows

TNZ coordinate international roadshows and events, many of which provide partner opportunities. The trade team also leads off-shore activity. When these opportunities arise, they are shared in the Fortnightly Remarks newsletter. Be sure you read and keep an eye out.

Member Capability

We are always available for the opportunity to meet and connect, share insights and support where we can.
