

The Randolph County Quilt Trail showcases the heritage of farm families in rural Randolph County. Several of the barns on the trail are over one hundred years old. Each quilt square is different, and many have a special meaning, representing family history or tradition. Visitors are encouraged to stop and take photographs from the roadside. Several farms may also offer seasonal produce or other goods for sale. While touring the Quilt Trail, please be considerate of private property.

The Randolph County Quilt Trail guide and other information can be found online at: www.co.randolph.nc.us/soil\_water/quiltTrail.htm

The Randolph County Quilt Trail began in 2010 as a project of the Piedmont Conservation Council, with grant funding from the Natural Resources Conservation Service. The Randolph County Soil & Water Conservation District received and approved applications, and members of the Randolph County Quilters Guild volunteered their time to paint and hang the quilt squares.

Randolph County Quilt Trail

The Quilt Trail is a self-guided tour through rural Randolph County. For convenience, the Trail has been divided into three sections. Each may take between an hour and a half to three hours to drive, depending on how much time is spent at each quilt square. Visitors may visit the trail locations in any order they choose. Road conditions, traffic, and weather may affect this time estimate. This map is a graphical representation only and accuracy is not guaranteed.
