4 Amtrak Routes That Make for Scenic— And Affordable—Summer Getaways

Westerly, Rhode Island, on the Northeast Regional

For an iconic New England summer vacation, hop on Amtrak's Northeast Regional train to Westerly, Rhode Island. About a three-hour trip from New York City and an hour ride from Boston, the town's train station sits just minutes from some of the best oceanfront hotels in the U.S. Just a 15-minute drive away is the Ocean House resort, a rambling sunflower-yellow estate sitting right on the Atlantic (free pick-up car service can be arranged with the hotel). Private beaches, lush lawns, and sweeping ocean views from the guest rooms are part of any stay at the historic resort.

Equidistant from the train station on the other end of town is Weekapaug Inn, a historic boutique hotel with just 27 rooms and four suites (free pick-ups from the train station can also be arranged with hotel staff). Just a quick stroll from the inn is two-miles of pristine Atlantic beach for you to enjoy.
