

Travel to one of these U.S. cities to discover and experience many restaurants, museums, cultural sites and more in celebration of Black History Month. From Memphis, Tennessee, to Oakland, California, to Dallas, Texas, each of these cities offers travelers the chance to enrich their visits and learn about different perspectives in the United States.

Providence, Rhode Island

Providence offers visitors Providence Walks: An Early Black History Tour, a self-guided tour throughout the city created as an act of remembrance of those whose stories never got told but contributed to the growth and development of the city of Providence. The tour includes a detailed map of the many experiences of the Black community in the 17th, 18th and 19th centuries, as well as how Black personalities paved the way in Providence for future generations.

News from...

15,120
unique monthly
visitors

Providence boasts a large number of excellent Black-owned businesses, from restaurants to distilleries to bakeries. White Dog Distilling offers guests a bar-like atmosphere while serving corn whiskey, gin, moonshine and white rum. The distillery's famous Cornucopia whiskey and bourbon is available for guests to enjoy. Visit Troop, a bar and cocktail lounge situated in an old mill where the 1990s hip hop-themed interior accompanies the international street food, Revival beers and cocktails served. For those looking for a delicious vegan restaurant, try The Afro Indigenous Vegan.