

Travelbinger
travel smart. travel well.

7 Social Distanced Travel Events To Check Out This Summer

From drive-thru art museums to concerts from your hotel balcony, here's 7 socially-distanced music, film and art events happening across the country.

By Jimmy Im - August 13, 2020

0

The \$2-trillion dollar question: When can we travel again?

There's no clear answer. The Covid-19 curve needs to flatten then completely disappear before travelers take back to the skies (for now, road trips are gaining popularity). While travel in general may be limited, many places across America are becoming creative for travelers who are craving art, music and experiences.

Now more than ever, destinations in the U.S. are offering social distance travel events that promote and ensure guest safety, like Live Nation's instantly famous drive-thru concert series. Adhering to strict guidelines that minimize staff and guest interaction and enforcing social distancing, these events are safe to consider.

From drive-thru art museums to concerts from your hotel balcony, here's 7 socially-distance music, film and art events happening across America.

Courtesy of Visit Rhode Island.

6. Drive-In Movies and Dining in Rhode Island

Operating in Blackstone Valley since 1951, Rustic Drive-In has re-opened for the summer screening some of the most popular movies of the year under the Rhode Island sky.

Perfect for date night and family dinners, it's an easy way to social distance and catch a great flick. New safety guidelines will ensure a stress-free night of entertainment.