

Caring for your workforce, in COVID-19 and beyond

Novant Health Corporate Health: Your partner in workforce well-being

In our new COVID-19 world, you want employees who are healthy — and a safe workplace the public can trust. Novant Health Corporate Health can help you and your workforce transition back to our new “normal” — and make sure your business is protected.

How we can help you get back to business

COVID-19 consultations. You can schedule a one-on-one consultation with Charles Bregier, MD, medical director of corporate health and Novant Health employee health, and a board-certified physician. Dr. Bregier can provide guidance on occupational medicine, work site well-being and best practices for COVID-19 return-to-work plans.

Web-based COVID-19 assessment. Our proprietary product allows you to offer daily assessment of employees through a customized website. Employees report their temperature and other health indicators and receive guidance on whether they can safely work. We'll contact workers for next-level care for those who need it.

Workplace assessment. We'll help you return safely to daily business by providing a healthcare professional on-site to conduct infrared temperature checks along with our proprietary COVID-19 assessment and connection to follow-up care for those at risk.

COVID-19 testing. Novant Health has a wide range of screening and testing sites. Find the closest one near you at NovantHealth.org/coronavirus#screening.

Workplace education. Need to prepare for new safety procedures? With access to a healthcare provider and options available on-site, virtually or over the phone, we can customize training for your workforce. Training can include masking, social distancing and the supplies you need to keep your workplace safe. We can also provide information on what to do if one of your employees tests positive for coronavirus.

Virtual care. Our providers offer video visits to provide care for your employees, wherever they are. We also offer TytoHome, a device employees can use to check for a wide range of conditions and get a diagnosis and treatment plan via video with a Novant Health provider. TytoHome can be used to conduct a comprehensive physical exam from any location. TytoCare offers the same convenience from the office, to ensure quality medical access for your employees.

Let Novant Health Corporate Health be your workplace wellness partner in our post-pandemic world. During COVID-19 and beyond, we're here for you.
