

Dining with a Team in Seattle Southside

Dining with a large group of people, especially with a team of children fresh from a sporting event, can be tough. You have to juggle dietary restrictions, finding space for a party of your size, and making sure that people are able to get something they'll like. Add in the difficulties of wrangling a pack of hungry-but-still-hyped-from-the-tournament kids, and you've got a real handful! Thankfully, there are plenty of restaurants in Seattle Southside with tons of experience in serving teams.

Naturally, you'll want to make sure you contact the restaurant if you have a large party - usually considered to be any party larger than six - and discuss your options with the staff there to ensure they can accommodate your team on the date you need. Some restaurants offer private or semiprivate dining spaces, while others may place you in general seating. If your party is large enough, you may need to do a buyout of the whole restaurant. All of the restaurants listed below have experience with serving large parties. Some are chain restaurants you already know and love, others are local favorites waiting for you to discover them. A wide variety of cuisines are represented, so your team will definitely find something to its liking!

But you also have options aside from dining in a restaurant - from catered options to pizza to some outside-of-the-box alternatives that aren't always the first thing people think of when it comes to feeding a large team.
