What's with the Jackets?

"TRASH JACKETS" are a Carnival season tradition in Shreveport-Bossier.

BY CHRIS JAY

www.20x49.com blogger

Visit Shreveport-Bossier for Mardi Gras, and you're likely to meet lots of local krewe members sporting "trash jackets." These festively decorated tuxedo jackets usually start out as last season's formalwear before being covered in colorful pins, patches, stitching, and doo-dads.

Often, you can determine which krewe the wearer belongs to, their position on Mardi Gras courts (look for pins emblazoned with titles like "Duchess"), and even their hobbies by looking closely at the jacket. Each trash jacket tells a story, and the wearer typically adds one new decoration each Carnival season.

Want to assemble your own trash jacket? Just buy a used tuxedo jacket and get started!
