Southern Soul is more than just music, but a culture and way of life. This is expressed through the Northwest Louisiana Trail Riders Association, which has about 22 clubs from around this region. They all have independent trail rides throughout the season. For more information, call 318-286-7668.

WHAT IS "SOUTHERN SOUL?"

"Southern Soul" is defined as a unique type of soul music that emerged from the Southern United States, incorporating elements of blues, country, rock n' roll and gospel music. In the Southern Soul Capital of Shreveport, La., the sound and culture of Southern Soul influences every aspect of life – from the music played in night clubs to the food served in restaurants.

Shreveport's connection to what would become known as Southern Soul dates back to the 1930s, as birthplace and home of blues legend Huddie "Lead Belly" Ledbetter. A popular tour stop among African American performers on the famed "Chitlin' Circuit," Shreveport's night clubs served as a proving ground for such artists as James Brown, John Lee Hooker, Bobby Rush and more. Many of the most revered record labels in Southern Soul history were based in Shreveport, including such labels as Jewel Records, Ronn Records and Paula Records.

The traditions of Southern Soul – a regional sound that shaped American popular culture – are alive and well in Shreveport.
