GARY MINISH

Valdez is the activity center for Prince William Sound; a mix of tidewater glaciers, rainforests, and mountains. The growth and settlement of Valdez can be attributed to fur trading, salmon canning, and gold and copper mining. During the Klondike Gold Rush of 1897-98, prospectors came to Valdez believing the Copper River and Valdez Glacier to be the entry to the Interior gold fields. From 1910 to 1916, copper and gold mining flourished in the area. In the early 1970's, Valdez became the staging area for work on the lower portion of the trans-Alaska Pipeline. Today, Valdez hosts the Valdez Marine Terminal, which is the southernmost end of the 800-mile oil pipeline.

Valdez and vicinity is abundant in marine and land wildlife. The seawaters near Valdez abound with sea otters, Dall porpoise, harbor seals, Steller sea lions, and humpback and orca whales. Coastal mountain cliffs are home to mountain goats, and the surrounding landscape boasts black and brown bears in addition to many other smaller animal species. Valdez takes flight with area bird viewing opportunities. Bald eagles are abundant and scores of ducks and shorebirds can be identified through most of summer and fall. Please be sure to observe wildlife and their dens, rookeries, and nests with respect.

Unparalleled natural scenery is matched only by the abundant activities offered throughout the year. Valdez is home to five glaciers that can be accessed by cruising, flying, walking, driving, or enjoy glacier trekking, exploration and even ice repelling. See the beautiful Columbia, Meares, Worthington, Shoup, or Valdez glaciers. You can raft nearby rivers floating through magnificent canyons and underneath towering waterfalls. Kayaking is another way to explore the region up close and personal. Hike or bike historic Gold Rush trails. Watch the past come alive before you while visiting the local museums and collections displaying Alaska Native artifacts and area history from early to recent days of the previous century.

Valdez's Prince William Sound is a premier fishing destination, offering all species of salmon and some of the most accessible big halibut in Alaska. Don't forget the growing excitement of big game salmon shark fishing. Valdez is home to the oldest fish derbies in Alaska, awarding thousands of dollars in prizemoney each year. You can fish from shore or take a charter from the Valdez small boat harbor.

Valdez is a clear choice for winter adventures in Alaska. The surrounding Chugach Mountains receive over 600 inches of fresh powder each year. Helicopter and snowcat skiing and snowboarding is the best in the world, ranging from intermediate to extreme. Backcountry, telemark and cross-country skiing provide more options. Snowmobiling near Valdez is also a world class experience with endless peaks, valleys and glaciers to explore. Cold temperatures serve to freeze waterfalls around Valdez, providing unparalleled ice climbing opportunities. Traveling to Valdez adds more fun to any Alaskan vacation. Several intermodal options are available: Drive the Richardson, Alaska's first highway, past the Wrangell-St. Elias and Chugach mountains; fly to Valdez on a state regional airline with regularly scheduled service; cruise to Valdez from Whittier or Cordova on the Alaska Marine Highway or a private charter service.

The History of Valdez

DEAN CUMMINGS: H2O GUIDES

Prior to 1778

The territory south of Valdez belonged to the Chugach (pronounced "chew-gach") Eskimo, a maritime hunting people and the land to the north is that of the Ahtna. The Chugach and Ahtna used the area around Valdez for fishing and trading copper, jade, hides and other furs.

1778

Captain Cook sailed into the Sound in 1778, naming it Sandwich Sound after his patron, the Earl of Sandwich. The editors of Cook's maps renamed the sound after Prince William IV.

1790

Spanish cartographer Lt. Salvador Fidalgo was sent to Alaska to investigate Russian involvement and to establish the Spanish claim in the area. The exploratory party was the first to approach Columbia Glacier and then ventured down the Valdez Arm.

1800

Russians, during their ownership did little exploring of the Sound; they were primarily interested in amassing sea otter pelts. Nuchek, on Hinchinbrook Island, became the center for trade in the Prince William Sound area, between Russians and the Alaskan Natives.

Valdez has amazingly rich history that has shaped the community that exists today as well as played an important role in the development of the state of Alaska.

Valdez's humble beginnings laid the foundation for transportation within the state. Valdez has been integral to transportation development within the state and has served as the gateway to Prince William Sound and the Interior.

Everything, including the layout of our streets and the look of our buildings, reminds us of events from our past.

With the destruction of our community after the 1964 Earthquake, Valdez had the opportunity to plan the layout of streets and buildings which was unheard of at that time. Most communities simply take shape as they grow. Fires and snow removal and storage had a big impact on the outcome, which is no surprise considering over 300 inches fall on the city annually.

The 1960-70's architecture reminds us that we are a new, rebuilt community. The terminus of the 800 mile trans-Alaska pipeline rests on the south side of the Port of Valdez and can be viewed from any shoreside point in the city. Many residents remember the construction and people today can watch tankers coming and going, transporting oil to the Lower 48. The oil spill of 1989 caused an influx of people to Valdez to help with the cleanup efforts. During this time new buildings were erected. The building that housed the command center is now one of our seven hotels. All of these aspects are constant reminders to residents and visitors of how much we have overcome.

1900-1920

Once the rush to the Klondike subsided, prospectors concentrated on gold, copper and silver deposits on the islands and shores of Prince William Sound. The most profitable mines near Valdez were the Cliff Gold Mine, about five miles east of Valdez, and the Midas Mine, in nearby Solomon Gulch.

1919

The Keystone Canyon Trail became the Richardson Highway, Alaska's first highway and served as the only viable inland route to Fairbanks. Valdez became the coastal port for the majority of traffic going into and out of the interior.

1923-1929

Fort Liscum closed and was obtained in 1929 by the Day family, who renamed it Dayville. The Days prospected the land, ran a cannery, a sawmill, a school and a store at the old military site.

1940

Valdez was a major port for military freight during World War II.

1964

On March 27, 1964 at 5:36 pm, a 9.2 earthquake lasting over four minutes struck 45 miles west of Valdez. The quake triggered an underwater landslide creating tremendous waves that washed away the Valdez waterfront, drowning 30 people on the dock and three men on the steamer "Chena."

1967

Town of Valdez condemned when it was discovered it was built on unstable ground. Town was relocated to present site. Fifty-two buildings were moved 4 four miles west.

1973

Congress approved the plans for the trans-Alaska oil pipeline with its southern terminus at Valdez. The town's population soared.

1989

March 24 (Good Friday), the tanker Exxon Valdez struck Bligh reef, approximately 25 miles outside of Valdez causing the largest oil spill in North American history.

The Maxine and Jesse Whitney Museum holds a rare collection of Alaska Native artifacts, clothing and animal mounts, and is located at the campus of Prince William Sound Community College right at the center of town.

Explore Keystone Canyon with 20-plus beautiful waterfalls. Then head up to Thompson Pass and stop at Worthington Glacier and experience alpine Alaska. Valdez also has taxi service available for transportation and short Valdez tours.

Nature and Wildlife

Valdez is a wildlife viewer's joy. It has an abundance of most everything, from birding to bear watching and many others in between. One of the most popular wildlife viewing in Valdez is bear watching. From May, when you can see the bears grazing high up the mountainside when they first awaken, until late October, the bear watching is great. They are most often seen on Dayville Road after the salmon begin their runs in late July. Check with the visitor's center for information about where the latest viewings have been.

Also seen in abundance in the summers in Valdez are eagles, and many kinds of ducks. Valdez is a bird watchers paradise. Eagles are prominent year round as are the mallards, harlequin ducks, kittiwakes, terns and ptarmigan, just to name a few. There are also many species of birds that stop at the Valdez duck flats on their way north and again as they return south. The opportunities to observe nesting birds is tremendous.

At different times the fjord that makes Port Valdez has many kinds of wildlife. Most commonly seen are the seals, sea lions and sea otters. In June, when the hatchery releases the fry, Dall porpoise and humpback whales are spotted in the area feeding. Both black and brown bears can be seen feeding along the sides of the bay at low tide as well as the eagles and several kinds of gulls when the salmon runs begin.

In winter, bird viewing is the dominant wildlife watching activity. Eagles will line the rivers looking for fish and the roads looking for mice and rabbits. Also seen in the winter is an occasional moose. While moose do not heavily populate the area, they are becoming more frequent and have been seen along the Lowe River, in the Robe Lake area and, rarely, even on the Valdez duck flats. Also more easily seen in the winter, are the mountain goats which are pushed down the mountain in their search for food. Their long shaggy coats have a yellow tinge to them against the white snow of the mountainside and they do not seem to fear people while they are at the lower elevation.

Bring your camera to Valdez and experience some wonderful wildlife viewing.

The Glaciers of Valdez

Whether you are spending your days on water or land, Valdez has a glacier that will fit into your vacation.

COLUMBIA GLACIER is the second largest tidewater glacier in America and the largest in Prince William Sound. This glacier can be accessed daily by taking a wildlife cruise. You can also take a day tour and paddle the calm waters of Columbia Glacier, which is teeming with wildlife in a maze of icebergs, then enjoy a walk on the moraine.

MEARES GLACIER will blow you away as it calves, sending huge chunks of ice into the water below and incredible sounds into the air. Meares is the only tidewater glacier, at the head of the Unakwik inlet that is currently advancing. Day cruises will take you a quarter mile from the face.

SHOUP GLACIER is tucked away in Shoup Bay and can be accessed by boat, kayak, helicopter or on foot. Kayak companies offer day trips that allow you to explore the icebergs, marine wildlife and more. More experienced hikers, meanwhile, can take the 8.5-mile hike to Shoup Bay for fabulous views and an amazing kittiwake rookery.

VALDEZ GLACIER is located on the outskirts of the town of Valdez and is full of amazing history. It was known as the All American Route by gold seekers looking to head over the glacier and into the interior of Alaska during the Gold Rush of 1898. It can be accessed by kayak with one of our experienced local adventure companies.

WORTHINGTON GLACIER is a must-visit stop on your way to Valdez (if you're traveling by road). Worthington Glacier is one of the most accessible glaciers in Alaska, located on the infamous Thompson Pass, just off the Richardson Highway. All you have to do is stop your vehicle and get out for an up close and personal experience. You can also take a half- or full-day hike and ice climbing tour, the guide's choice for an adventure on the ice.

Berries everywhere! ▲

Wild berries are an integral part of a hiker's experience in the Valdez area. From late July until the first snow, one doesn't have to look far to find them on the trails that surround the town.

Salmonberries and raspberries abound in the undergrowth along paths, while blueberries are generally located higher on hills and around streams or other moist, mossy areas. Lesser-known edibles such as watermelon berries and gooseberries are found scattered throughout the local woods as well. A good book or chart, which can be purchased at local gift shops, can eliminate the risk of ingesting poisonous berries. Finally, keep in mind that after a salmon dinner, bears love nothing more than a belly full of sweet berries for dessert. They are typically afraid of humans and will run away if given the chance, so bells, noise-makers and conversation are good options should you find yourself in the hunt for some sweet Alaskan berries.

Fish Hatchery ▲

Solomon Gulch Hatchery presents a unique opportunity to observe salmon as they return to spawn. The Hatchery is located across the port on Dayville Road en route to Allison Point and was established to ensure sufficient numbers of salmon return and reproduce each year. Completed in February 1983, the facility is licensed to incubate and rear to release size 230 million pink, and two million coho. With a concerted effort with Alaska Department of Fish and Game as well as the City of Valdez, the Solomon Gulch Hatchery annually imprints and releases 105,000 king smolts from the Fish and Game Fort Richardson Hatchery.

Coho (silvers) and pinks fight the odds against predators and the elements to swim up a series of ladders where they spawn. The VFDA (Valdez Fisheries Development Association) goals are to produce an annual return of 10 million pink, 100,000 coho and 10,000 king salmon. The best time to view salmon at the hatchery ranges from July through September.

Bears, eagles, sea gulls and sea otters can be found feeding on the fish. Fishing is prohibited within 300 feet of the premises and please respect all wildlife, especially maintaining a safe distance from any bears in the area. Take the self-guided walking tour along the fish ladder and view how the hatchery spawns the fish. During mid-July and early September visitors have a chance to view the commercial fishing boats haul in their nets from the shores of port Valdez. The self-guided walkway is open daily, 8 a.m. to 7 p.m., from May to October.

Sport fishing ▲

Valdez's Prince William Sound is a premier fishing destination, open year round, offering all species of salmon, rock fish, ling cod, and some of the most accessible big halibut in Alaska. You can drop a line from shore, your own boat or take a charter into deeper seas.

For those looking for an opportunity to fish "big game" style, the waters surrounding Valdez offer salmon shark fishing at its finest. These 300-pound-plus sharks will test even the best angler's abilities and endurance.

During winter, ice fishing in upcountry lakes and ponds is popular. In the warm season, fly fishing in these fresh water bodies excites most anglers in search of trout, grayling, and Dolly Varden.

Valdez is home to the oldest fish derbies in Alaska, awarding thousands of dollars in prize money each year. Young and old, all skill levels, the thrill of reeling in a record-breaking white giant will keep you coming back for more.

Prince William Sound

A Sound You'll Never Forget

Alaska's Prince William Sound is ringed by the coastal mountains of the Chugach Range and situated in the midst of the Chugach National Forest. Its 2,700 miles of coastline is home to the towns and villages of Chenega Bay, Cordova, Tatitlek, Whittier and Valdez.

Only 60 miles from Anchorage, Whittier offers wildlife, walking along the harbor or hiking the Portage Pass, Salmon Run, or Horse Tail Falls trails. Take the Alaska Marine Highway from Whittier to Cordova to amble across the Million Dollar Bridge, explore Orca Inlet, or be surrounded by tens of thousands of shorebirds at Hartney Bay. Valdez is a short ferry ride from Whittier or Cordova and offers some of the most stunning scenery in Alaska. This unparalleled natural scenery is matched only by the abundant activities offered throughout the year. Enjoy Valdez's five accessible glaciers for cruising, hiking, trekking, exploring and even repelling. You can raft nearby rivers, kayak in Prince William Sound, hike, bike and enjoy historical museums. Valdez is also a premier fishing destination, offering all species of salmon and some of the most accessible big halibut in Alaska.

The Marine Highway offers service throughout the year to all three major coastal Prince William Sound communities. With special permission, plan on visiting the unique communities of Tatitlek and Chenega Bay as well.

Winter Operations

Valdez is a clear choice for winter adventures in Alaska. With a long-standing reputation for great snow, more than 300 inches is measured annually in the city and 600 to 900 inches in nearby Thompson Pass!

As one might expect with this much snow, Valdez celebrates winter with downhill and cross-country skiing, snowboarding, snowmobiling, dog sledging and ice climbing.

Valdez and the surrounding Chugach Mountains define backcountry skiing and boarding. Access the backcountry on foot, by helicopter or snowcat for some of the most amazing big mountain skiing and snowboarding in the world. Local Valdez guides and outfitters help create the dream winter vacation with single- or multi-day packages.

Ice climbers view our beautiful waterfalls and glaciers as pathways to adventure. Whatever challenge you are looking for, whether top-roping or multi-pitch lead climbing, there are dozens of routes around Valdez that will suit your needs.

Valdez offers the ultimate backcountry snowmobiling experience with miles of untracked powder, and riding from beginner to expert, there is something for everyone.
