NARRATIVE

The York County Brand Narrative uses emotional language to establish the written character of the York County brand. Stakeholders throughout the community should be encouraged to use all or some of the copy as is when describing the York County community or the relationship of York County to an organization, event or businesses. The narrative can also be used to guide the tone of new copy.

Have it made in a land of agriculture and alluring beauty...

Part of the Pennsylvania Piedmont, York County stretches westward from the Susquehanna River over fertile ground and scenic landscapes. For generations, this land has proven fruitful to the families that live off its bounty and has appeared stunning to those that explore its boundaries. Whether on the Mason-Dixon Trail or sprawling fields, in thick forests or winding creeks, sustenance for the body and soul grows here. The land gives what we put in: a fall harvest, an outdoor adventure, and sunlit memories made more special by where they are made.

...with a history intertwined with the country's founders and fighters.

Charming main streets and downtowns form urban centers throughout York County, each one as historic as the next. From the City of York to the Borough of Hanover, the county's architecture and monuments preserve three centuries of American life in South Central Pennsylvania. They tell of congressional delegates who signed the Articles of Confederation, of former slaves who traveled to freedom on the Underground Railroad, of Union soldiers and WWII-era factory workers who did their part to defend the nation. With every account and every detail, it feels easier to be immersed in a deep and meaningful history right where it was made.

Have it made in an economy built on a legacy of dedication...

A maker spirit drives the economy of York County like a revving motorcycle engine or a symphonic snack-packing machine. This means loud bursts of productivity that announce the region's continued excellence in manufacturing and innovation, or perhaps a dynamic opus that sings the praises of the varied enterprises represented here. Either way, one thing is unanimous: a decades-old ethos to do what we can with what we have. Today, we have a skilled workforce aided by the latest technology, as well as the trust of companies like Harley-Davidson, Utz, and Snyder's of Hanover to handle their iconic products—because they know that the county is one of few places where they can be made.

...by a people traditional and industrious in character.

Lawyers and luthiers, architects and foremen and vintners—in York County, diverse professionals share in our maker spirit. No matter their calling, these are creators, innovators, teachers, and neighbors who recall a bygone era when honing skills and owning a business were part and parcel of the American dream. They are passionate about their craft, diligent in their labor, and eager to pass on their knowledge to a new generation. So we give our children the opportunity to learn these customs in K-12 schools and institutions of higher learning like York College and Penn State York, hoping to raise future electricians, entrepreneurs, and engineers in the same classrooms where they've always been made.

Have it made in a community working together...

Bound by land and heritage, by work and ethic, York County fosters a community that is genuine and conscientious, persistent and supportive. Just as the York Plan inspired the region's industrialists to band together in the nation's service, the emphasis on assistance and collaboration convinces us of the value of staying together. It lets us organize cultural performances, provide much-needed resources and social services, or simply be present for one another in hardships and in triumphs. Ours is not a network of contacts and acquaintances but a circle of friendships that grow stronger where they were made.

...for a life worth living.

York County has a setting to suit every moment, every passion, every lifestyle. For the solo traveler, the outdoors beckon in all four seasons, from the golf green to the ski slopes. For the young family, a first home awaits, close enough to the big cities yet far from all their noise. For the painter, there is a panorama on the edge of town; for the critic, an art show downtown. In a time of endless interruptions and distractions, York strives to give each their own, to be the place where their lives are finally made.
