Spooky Sights in the Southern Outer Banks – The Crystal Coast, North Carolina

Nestled in the Southern Outer Banks and home to the third oldest town in the state, North Carolina's Crystal Coast is encompassed in thrilling maritime history – from legendary tales of swashbuckling pirate adventures and sunken shipwrecks to tours of spooky burial grounds and ghoulish graveyards. As the crisp coastal air sets in, it's the perfect backdrop to hear chilling stories and heart-pounding tales, like the 300-year history of Blackbeard the pirate and his infamous ship, "Queen Amy's Revenge," during the Beaufort Ghost Walk. For those who want a more hands-on experience, dive into the "Graveyard of the Atlantic" – which has claimed over 5,000 ships since the 1500s – just off the coast to see historic shipwrecks and sunken treasure.
