1. Executive Summary

GPS: A Tourism Roadmap

Executive Summary

Introduction to the Roadmap

DuPage County's tourism industry is a major economic contributor to the health and vibrancy of communities throughout the County. Today, it possesses the second largest base of hotel rooms outside of the Central Business District of Chicago. In order to maximize the potential of the industry, the DuPage Convention and Visitors Bureau (DCVB) undertook a new long range strategic planning process in May of 2016.

The planning effort was named GPS: A Tourism Roadmap, recognizing its goal of helping the industry Grow, Prosper and Share.

While the Roadmap was coordinated through the DCVB, it incorporated input from a wide range of tourism professionals from around the county, and thus the plan is an industry-wide plan which helps direct initiatives of both the DCVB and its many partners.

Broad Participatory Process

In order to incorporate a diverse array of perspectives in the process, a Roadmap Advisory Board was developed which brought professionals representing areas such as lodging, retail, education, heritage and governmental leadership. This Board helped coordinate a series of input sessions around the County, bringing together more than 200 individuals to help identify the opportunities and challenges facing the industry. A dedicated GPS: A Tourism Roadmap web presence was also launched, providing another opportunity for feedback. Interim findings were presented at the DCVB Annual Meeting in October, and feedback was incorporated in the final set of recommendations.

Through this inclusive process, the Roadmap has strong potential to be embraced and utilized, not just by the DCVB, but also with the many businesses and professionals throughout the County, helping maximize the potential of this critically important industry cluster.

State of the Industry

The process began by investigating the current "State of the Industry" (SOI), essentially what critical factors faced DuPage's visitor industry. The SOI focused on four key strategy areas: Customers, Products, Delivery Systems and Competition. Participants in the input process provided insights within these strategy areas and a wide mix of research was then investigated to better evaluate key findings. Key findings in each of the areas follows.

Customers

- ◆ The tourism industry within DuPage County is powerful, attracting almost $2.5 billion dollars of visitor spending in 2015.
- ◆ DuPage County has seen improving vibrancy in the visitor industry, with improvements in both lodging occupancy rates and average daily rates.
- ◆ While experiencing positive trends, other competitors in the state have grown even more rapidly and have pulled market share from DuPage.
- ◆ This loss of market share cost the County over $27 million of visitor spending in 2015 alone.
- ◆ The large size of the county, its many communities and the range of entities undertaking tourism promotion can result in a fragmented, confusing presentation to visitors.
- ◆ The group and conference market is of critical importance to DuPage's visitor industry and ongoing efforts to maximize this segment should be pursued.
- ◆ While recognizing the importance of the group market, the leisure segment also holds deeper opportunities for DuPage.
- ◆ There is a great diversity of experiences that customers come to DuPage for - it is more important than ever to "connects the dots" for DuPage customers.

Products

- ◆ The DCVB is increasingly moving from a Destination Marketing Organization to a Destination Management Organization, seeing product development as a key function.

- ◆ The term "Destination Architect" should increasingly be used in thinking about this evolving role.
- ◆ The integration of DuPage products has been pursued in the past with themes like Route 66, Science & Technology and Architecture.
- ◆ New approaches need to be used to better understand how visitors are linking and integrating DuPage products.
- ◆ DuPage Forest Preserve District holds strong potential for greater visitor alliances.
- ◆ Deeper connections with non-traditional businesses already located in DuPage should be pursued.
- ◆ Amateur sports is an important, evolving segment and merits further research and local input.

Delivery Systems

- ◆ In delivering visitors to DuPage County, the many organizations vying for attention often presents a fractured presentation to prospective visitors.
- ◆ The DCVB should increasingly play the role of a county-wide umbrella organization, presenting a holistic presentation to prospective visitors.
- ◆ Expanded community integration by the DCVB is necessary to ensure the full range of tourism industry benefits is understood by leaders and residents.
- ◆ A refined branding initiative should be pursued that helps clarify DuPage County's competitive advantage.
- ◆ New steps should be taken to ensure the DCVB possesses resources that are competitive with other similar organizations.

Competition

- ◆ DuPage County faces a broad range of competitors vying for the same prospective visitor - a competitive reality that is resulting in lost market share.
- ◆ Many of these competitors possess strong attributes they use to shift interest to their destination.
- ◆ More should be done to keep these DuPage competitive realities “top of mind” with both industry partners and political leaders.
- ◆ This competitive framework should serve as the foundation that reinforces a mindset of “Cooperate Internally—Compete Externally”.

The Roadmap Strategy

Using the SOI findings as a foundation, a refined Vision and Mission statement for the DCVB was developed. Building on the Vision and Mission statements, three Goal Tracks were identified:
